The following crop and weather bulletin for Western Oregon reached this office yesterday: A remarkably warm wave passed over during the first part of the week. August 31st was the warmest day of the year: The temperature reading 96 degrees at many places. The latter part of the week was decidedly cooler. The mean temperature ranged from 58 degrees at places or the immediate coast, to 66 degrees at the immediat) coast, to 66 degrees at inland places. The atmosphere was smoky, due to numerous forest fires. The smoke was particularly dense in the Willamette and Rogue river valleys. Falling ashes became objectionable to pedestrians on the streets of Portland, where the deposit was sufficiently thick to attract attention. There was about the average amount of sunshine, and no rain occurred. Harvest is nearing completion, being principally confined to late sown spring wheat and oats. Early sown spring wheat was oats. Early sown spring wheat was practically a failure. The grain crop falled to mature and many out crops were cut for hay. The second crop of clover was light. The hop crop is demanding the attention of the public Preparations are being made for picking and securing large yields. From the first propitious weather which predominated resulted in securing to the hop groewr an excellent stand. Now the vines are laden with burrs of good average size and of excellent quality. Picking will commence in some sec tions on the 7th of September. The warm, dry weather of the past week caused the lice to multiply, especially on bottom lands where the vines are green. The crop is so far advanced towards maturity that there is little fear of any material injury being done by insects; should the weather be sufficiently warm to assist them in increasing. Fruit is plentiful in market. Plums and pears are of excellent quality. Much fruit is being shipped to Elastern markets. Apples are plentiful but inferior, being injured by the codlin moth. Peaches are plentiful in the southern and interior counties. The crop in northern counties suffered from curl-leaf, and in some sections was an entire fallure. Some fine specimens of vegetables are being shipped to market. Vegetables are plentiful for home consumption. Potatoes will overage well; the crop has suffered from drought. More rain would have matured an enormous crop, Corn continues green, with good growth; the ears are not maturing. More rain is necessary to make an average crop in all
