The damage was not so great as to injure their market value. Since the rain, winter apples have begun to color, vegetables are growing more vigorously, pastures have become green and the face of Nature more pleasant to look upon. The dairy prodnot has increased in quantity and in quality. In some sections a third crop of alfalfa will be cut. It has become too cool for melons and late tomatoes, which will not ripen without the assistance of the sun and warm weather. The potato crop is too far advanced to be benefited by the rain and it is thought the crop will average well. Hop picking was first retarded by showers, but the weather of the past week was favorable and progress has been made. The crop will be large and the quality excellent. There is a noticeable absence of damaging insects. The weather was too cool to assist lice in multiplying, consequently the product will be unusually clean. Wheat is being marketed slowly.

ED TOR OF AMERICAN ANTIQUARIAN,

Author of Animal Efficies and Emblemati Mounds, etc.

This book treats of the Mound-builders; their occupation, modes of life, religious systems, tribal divisions and early migrations.
The work contains descriptions of the earthworks of all classes. The classification of the mounds is made according to their uses, whether as village residences, as defenses, as religious structures, or as sacrificial or burial places.

places.

The work contains many illustrations and descriptions of Mound-builders' relies, especially pipes and pottery.

The value of the book is that it contains a comprehensive view of the whole field, and gives information about the mounds and relies of all states and districts. It is one of a series which is devoted to pre-historic America, and perhaps would be regarded as the most interesting volume. esting volume.
