MUST SINK WITH THE SHIP. An Unwritten Law from which Naval Mrs. Officers Never Deviate.

The action of Vice-Admiral Tryon in refusing to leave the bridge of the Victoria while there was a chance, is being compared by military men of this city with the action of Brigadier Gen-

of warships preferring to go down with their ships in preference to outliving them. It is an old practice in the Brit ish navy, and one which practically amounts to a rule, that the caotain who loses a war ship never obtains a recond one. The belief among many American officers is that Tryon was fully imbued with the seaman's idea of $1,408.89 at this date; also a mortage of the company of the company of $1,408.89 at this date; also a mortage could real thereto conveying the the duty of a commander, and, kno ing that hundreds of men were imprisoned below decks, calmiy decided to go down with the ship so long as a man aboard had to die as a result of carrying out orders given by him during the manuvering. At the United States Naval academy a monument in the center of the grounds stands today with the mame "Herndon" on its face. Herndon was in American naval officer who before the civil war was engaged while on furlough in the command of a mail steamer plying between New York and steamer plying between New York and the West Indies. The ship was lost in the gulf stream off the Florida coast. the carried a large number of passengers at the time. The majority of the passengers Herndon saw safely placed in the boats. The last boat waited for Herndon to jump in. Instead of availing himself of the opportunity, Herndon ordered the boat to cast off. The ship went down with Herndon, in his naval uniform, standing alone and in full view on the bridge,-New York

MARRIED SIXTY YEARS AGO. A Pennsylvania Couple Receive in Such Clothes as They Were Married.

A year ago last spring Mrs. Henry B. Shelland, of Gibson township, Susquehanna county. Pa., said to her husband: "Henry, we ought to raise some flax this year." The aged farmer had not raised a crop of flax in thirty-nine years, so he asked:

What for, Elizabeth?"

'Well, you know, Henry," replied the good old wife, "if we live till a year from next June we'll have been married sixty years, and I thought it would be nice to give a party and receive our guests in the same kind of linen clothing we were when we stood up to be married down in Connecticut in 1833. We've got all the old flax tools stored away, and if you'll raise some flax, Henry, I'll spin and weave it and make a nice home-made suit for each of us,"

Farmer Shelland was 86 and his wife 85 an the time. Both were rugged and healthy, and when the old farmer had thought the matter over for a moment he exclaimed: "By George, Elizabeth, I'll do it!"

Within three weeks the old lady cut and made a frock and apron for herself and a whole suit for her husband, and on June 26th the aged couple. decased in their homespun linen gorments, celegrated the sixtieth anniversary of their marriage in a company of three-score relatives and friends.-
