Meantime, tidings of the murder swept like an electric shock through the city. Everybody seemed to gather about the central station. Bulletins were posted in prominent down town places posted in prominent down town places and about them eager throngs surged and struggled. The newspaper offices were besieved by eager questions, and all down town business for a time was at a stand still. Before the prisoner reached the city hall, news of his coming had been communicated to the crowd. The murderer was rushed through the throng and taken by a private entrance into Chief of Detectives Shea's office. The officers hurried from adjacent stations to guard the place. adjacent stations to guard the place The prisoner, as soon as he reached the office, sank exhausted into a chair. His head fell back and his livid face and staring eyes presented a ghastly picture.
