One of the bills presented at the beginning of the new year, the one bearing Mr. Wilson's name, will be the hardest to pay.

The number of unemployed people in the country at the present time is about equal to the number of those who wouldn't vote for Cleveland again if they had the chance

All talk about democratic opposition in congress to the Wilson bill should be taken with several grains of salt. The measure represents the policy of the party in power, and the kickers will all be whipped into the traces before the final vote takes place.

Boston is preparing to supplement her water supply for fire purposes, by pip ing her streets for the use of salt water from the harbor. The boats will thus be enabled to aid in extinguishing a trict. The wonder is that something of this sort has not been put in use long before, in all of the important seapor

Eight hundred and one thousand per sons out of employment; 1,956,000 dependent on them for a living. These are the figures compiled by Bradstreet, and while they may not be absolutely correct, they are near enough to point the moral which should adorn the tale, at this, the beginning of the new year Many of these hundreds of thousands of unemployed men voted against their own interests when they allowed the democratic party to assume con trol of the affairs of the country, and incidentally to tinker with the tarifi

Galusha A. Grow, who has just been nominated for congressman-at-large by the republicans of Pennsylvania, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of William Lilly, belongs to the heroic age of politics. He was speaker of the house in the congress of 1861-3, which was called on to provide ways and means for carrying on the war, and which did this work promptly and patriotically. He dropped out of public life so long ago that his name is unknown to the younger generation of voters in the country at large, but in the war days and for years before he was a conspicuous figure in the nation's store politics.

The record of railroads that have passed into the hands of receivers during the last year is the largest that has ever been known, comprising over 25,-600 miles of track, with an aggregate indebtedness of $1,200,000,000. Included in this schedule of wrecks are the three principal transcontinental lines, and seventy other roads of different degrees of importance. It is undoubtedly true that the raliroad system of the country has been extended faster than was necessary or advisable. As an inevitable conse quence, the railroad indebtedness has been steadily increasing for a number of years, and the only way out of the difficulty is a resort to the process of a receivership. The Salem Statesman of a recent date has the 'following:

It would be a good thing for our merchants to refuse to buy the butter, eggs, etc., of those farmers who selltheir products in Salem for cash and trouble and nervousness. send away to some purchasing agency for their goods. Such action migh bring these people spending their mone away from home to their senseswhere they would realize the full value of a home market—a market that helps them, and to which they in turn owe their patronage.

Such a retaliatory principle is a bac thing to encourage. The farmers in the vicinity of Astoria have at times comhad every morning at their stand plained that the merchants here would not buy Clatsop county farm producat a fair price, and it is a notorious facthat many people of this locality patronize Portland, much to the disadvan tage of Astoria. There may be just cause to complain on both sides, bu the same energy would be better e pended in devising a means for the city and immediate vicinity to work to mutual advantage. Maybe the farmer. expect too much for their produce and perhaps the merchants ask too mucl for their goods.

> The most famous of Mr. Cleveland's messages as president was that about the questions that are before the pub lle more than any others and with in creased intensity at this time. We refer to his annual message to congress it cember, 1887, when it occurred to him to take the leadership of his party it ideas. Hence the sudden and unexpected outbreak of his powerful views or the tariff, a subject to which he had never been known to give much of his attention. Indeed, he said on one occasion when governor that he did no know a thing about the tariff. In orde to make his first essay on the taril important and imposing, Mr. Cleveland touched no other topic in his message and was so radical he was reported a the time to have astonished and an palled Carilsle, going further than any body had expected. He said the tariff produced a fearful quantity of surplus revenue; and that having a large mount of money in the national treasry was taking it away from the people and placing it where it produced panics He urged that "it is a condition that confronts us, not a theory." Mr. Cleve and pointed out just how the tarif worked to pile up surplus revenue, and thus increase the premium on bonds of listressingly advancing the public cred t, to disturb industries and develop ack of confidence, and thus breed panes in a mountain of gold. Under the operations of the Wilson bill, however should that measure become a law, th possibility of a panic from any sucl ause will be speedily and effectively
