The Astorian guarantees to its sub-scribers the largest circulation of any newspaper published on the Columbia

Advertising rates can be obtained on application to the business manager. This paper is in possession of all the telegraph franchises, and is the only paper on the Columbia river that publishes genuine dispatches.

The Dally Astorian's circulation is five times as great as that of the com-bined circulation of the other daily papers of Astoria. The Weekly Astorian, the third oldest weekly in the state of Oregon, has next to the Portland Oregonian, the largest weekly circulation in the state. Subscribers to the Astorian are requested to notify this office, without loss of time, immediately they fall to receive their daily paper, or when they do not get it at the usual hour. By doing this they will enable the munagement to place the blams on the proper parties and to insure a speedy remedy.

Handley & Hans are our Portiand agents and copies of the Astorian can be had every morning at their stand on First street.

Now that the property owners are devising ways and means to reduce exthe different departments of the city and county governments, it might be well to consider the indebtedness of the county, and the large sum which must eventually be paid for interest when the outstanding warrants are redeemed. At the present time, ac cording to the financial report of th clerk, recently submitted, Clatsop county's net indebtedness is $79,071.12, which bears interest at the rate of 8 per Almost half of this sum could The credit of the counts and no good reason suggests why money could not be borrowed or ar most, 5 per cent for the purent outstanding. In addition to the saving in interest, such a course would also be beneficial in being the means of getting more coin into circulation Many of the holders of warrants are men who could readily find use fothe money, but who naturally dislike forfeiting the interest by having theil warrants cashed at a discount by those who are more fortunate in the possess sion of a surplus of coin. Suppose the committee of thirty bring the matter to the attention of the county officials. Being men of good business sense, they will readily see the merit in the plan suggested, and take the proper steps in the direction of its adoption.

British manufacturers are rejoicing over the prospects of securing a firm grip on the industries of this country and openly avow their belief in the great benefits that will accrue to them by the passage of the Wilson bill, They say the prospect of a great increase ir business with the United States is very hopeful and that should the new bil (Mr. Wilson's) pass in its proposed form, "it will make a great difference in the exports of the lower classes of woolens, upon which the specific or weight duty bears so heavily. This will be a crucial point in the discussion of the bill. Nothing can be fairer than an ad valorem duty, but the difficulty always exists that there are always unprincipled people who invariably under-declare values, and those who make honest declarations are made to suffer for the faults of others." A correspondent of the "Textile Manufacturer," writing from Bradford, England, imitales the straightforward policy of Ben Folsom, when the latter congratulated the cuilery manufacturers of Sheffield that they would again secure control of the American markets, a policy than it appears has been also adopted by Mr. Meeker, the American consul at Bradford. The conclusion at which the Bradford expert in the English worsted trade arrives is that the proposed Wilson turiff measure will

Some even say that such statements might prevent the bill from passing. There is no adequate ground for this fear, which is entertained chiefty in fair trade quarters." Fortunately there is sufficient intelligence among American republicans to enable them to understand fully the results of the passage of the Wilson bill, if anything further were needed than the expeof education has had the effect of eduating some millions of democrats in such a manner that they have cast their last ballot for a democratic pres-
