

ROYAL CHILDHOOD.

The biography of the Duke of Clarence, which has just appeared in England, presents some pleasant pictures of royal childhood. In the boy's nursery there was little or no pomp or ceremony.

The child princes were taught that it was right to greet courteously any servant whom they might meet in their wanderings through the house. The servants were instructed to address them simply as prince, without any ceremonious preliminary. Their nurture was that of English children of the better class and, if anything, simpler than usual. A German and a French lady in the nursery were present in order that they might be familiar with foreign languages from their youth. The tender love of the Princess of Wales was always manifest, and she was in her glory if she could find time to run up into the nursery, put on a fannel apron, wash the children, and see them asleep in their little beds. It was the custom of Her Royal Highness to compose a little verse for each of her sons to say on their father's birthday. The following is dated November 2, 1889, and entitled "Eddy's Verse for Papa's Birthday":

Day of pleasure,
Brightly dawning,
Take the gift
On this sweet morning,
Our best hopes
And wishes blending,
Must yield joy
That's never ending.

EDWARD M. FIELD
AN EXTENSIVE SWINDLER.

Edward M. Field, who has been pronounced perfectly sane, has been returned to New York City from the state asylum for the insane at Buffalo, and must now stand trial upon the five indictments charging him with forgery and larceny in connection with the wreck of the old firm of Field, Lindley, Wiechers & Co. Field has been confined in the Buffalo asylum nearly two years. He was the senior member of the firm that failed. The liabilities were declared to be $2,500,000, but when the assignee began his investigations he could not find any assets above $37,000. It was found by hypothecation and forgery, Field had taken nearly all the rest of the assets of the firm. One indictment charges him with the larceny of fifty $1,000 bonds of the Union Pacific, Denver and Gulf railway.

Little Dot—Mamma, us girls is gettin' up a football team.

Mamma—Horrors.

Little Dot—Oh, we won't play it like the boys do, a-tumblin' round like puppies in a box; no, indeed. We's only goin' to kick the ball. I guess our side will win, cause most of us knows the skirt dance.—Good News.

Don't go to Portland to buy your tickets for the "Old Country" and the East when you can get them for the same price at the Union Pacific office in this city, and thereby save your local fare to Portland.

HELD UP.

Another Holdup.—Watts—My wife tells me that you were telling your wife that you were held up for $40 night before last.

Potts—Yep.

Watts—Did the fellow have a gun?

Potts—Worse than that. He had a straight flush.—Indianapolis Journal.
