A gentleman who had been refreshing himself a short time previously at one of the Boulevard cafes hurriedly re-entered the establishment, and addressing the waiter, anxiously inquired of him:

"Did I leave behind me a small parcel, tied with a string, on the table?" "No, sir," replied the waiter.

"By Jove, then, its unlucky. I don't like the parcel to get into strange hands, for it contained some valuable—'Jewels, sir,'" suggested the waiter, smiling blandly.

bor leaders" at Leghorn to working-men to go on a strike to protest against the restoration of order in Sicily, looks revolutionary—only the men appealed to largely had sense to go on with their work and leave the excitement in the streets to the idle.

The opening paragraph of the New York Tribune's leader on Mr. Carlisle's bond proposition is cold, blue history, and will bear reading several times: "Thirty-three years ago the democratic party went out of power borrowing money to meet a treasury deficit created by its incompetence. Within a year after its return to power, a great deficit created by its incompetence again compels it to borrow. Further, it is compelled to use for that necessity a republican law enacted eighteen years ago, which was for years denounced in every democratic meeting at the West and South as a shameful robbery of the people for the benefit of bondholders, and is forced to employ this same old act because, as its chairman of the finance committee in the senate publicly confesses, the democratic party, through its factional divisions, is incompetent to pass any act for the relief of the treasury or the defense of the public credit."

"I had been troubled with heart disease for years. My left pulse was very weak, could at times scarcely feel it, excitement would weaken my nerves and heart, and fear of impending death stared me in the face for hours. Dr. Miles' Nervine and New Heart Cure are the only medicines that have proved of any benefit and cured me."

"My wife has been taking Dr. Miles' New Cure for the Heart. She thinks it wonderful. She has not been troubled with pain or smothering spells since using it. We have also used Dr. Miles' Pills, and we find them all they are claimed to be."

"The dining room at the Astor house has again been opened. Only the best of white labor is employed. Give the favorite a chance."

"Did I leave behind me a small parcel, tied with a string, on the table?" "No, sir," replied the waiter.

"By Jove, then, its unlucky. I don't like the parcel to get into strange hands, for it contained some valuable—'Jewels, sir,'" suggested the waiter, smiling blandly.

"I know that you can understand the terrible strain the provisional government has been under ever since Mr. Gresham's letter reached us. It came upon us like a thunderbolt, and we are not yet ready to believe the whole of it—and then we think that Cleveland has played Nero to us. Alas, man's inhumanity to man!"

"Our disappointment in Mr. Blount has been painful and complete, because we did not think it possible for Cleveland to 'paramount' a man who would do such biased and treacherous work."
