

THE TROUBLE AT RIO.

An English Shipmaster's Version of the State of Affairs.

The following is an extract from a letter written by the captain of the British ship Incheith, dated Rio Janeiro, December 24, 1892: "On arrival I find that Rio is in a state of bombardment, shells flying around in all directions. The firing is almost continuous. It is nothing to hear a big shot whizzing through the air and dropping about a ship's length away from us. Our government is very slack, and don't seem to interfere. The afternoon I arrived here an apprentice from one of the English ships was shot dead, and our famous man-of-war commanders say they cannot protect life. On my arrival among the shipping here I had just secured a good berth, when a British officer came aboard and told me I was in the line of fire and would have to go on, and that I was here on my own responsibility. Where we are berthed now we are supposed to be out of the line of fire, but the shots sometimes fall too close to be comfortable. This afternoon I was returning from the Corunas, when a shell fell about twenty yards astern of our boat. It is wonderful the amount of muscle a sailor puts to an ear in a case of that kind. I have explained all this, thinking it should be aired and remedied. By appearances the end of the revolution is about as distant as imagination goes. I have at the time of writing one of the insurgent cruisers taking shelter under our port quarter, a nice state of affairs. I wonder why Norwegian ships are being protected and are able to get discharged while we cannot. Recently a shot killed an Italian in a boat. The Italian admiral ranged alongside the city and said he would blow it up if they did not pay indemnity and give the man a military funeral. They paid up and buried the man as demanded. Why cannot the English government do the same? This place is fairly packed with ships. Some have been here for weeks and not yet begun discharging. I was speaking to a captain on Saturday who has been here three or four months."

TRYING TO PLAY THE CANADIANS

An Ottawa correspondent tells a story in effect that following the reporting of the Wilson tariff bill at Washington an American gentleman arrived in Ottawa, who claimed that as a lobbyist he had great influence at the national capital, and he would use that influence in getting lumber put on the free list, provided he was successful, the lumbermen of the Ottawa district pay him $5 cents a thousand on all lumber exported from Canada to the United States for a period of one year. Even on the amount of lumber that ordinarily comes into the United States from Canada during twelve months such a commission would give him more than three times as much money as the president of the United States receives as salary yearly; and come to let the bars down entirely and the low grade of lumber flowing over here in a mighty current, there is no telling how much his income would be. The story is evidently a canard. Not the Ottawa lumbermen should lose no time in giving the name of the gentleman for publication. Surely his proper place is in a resort for feeble-minded, else he thinks that such a resort is a proper place for the Ottawa lumbermen.

The only stock in first hands in Astoria, held by the Alaska Packers' Association. Fair shipments are being made to coast points, and also eastward. Eastern advices report an increasing trade call and a strengthening in values. The following explains itself: Editor Herald of Trade: We beg to advise you that, at a meeting of the board of directors, held February 8, the price of red salmon was advanced two and one-half (2 1/2) cents per dozen. W. D. Bradford, Secretary. The London Grocer reports that market as follows: "Salmon is more inquired for, and quotations range as follows: Good ordinary fish at 18 to 20 1/2, finer brands at 21 to 23, and choice 24. Fat fish (two dozen in a case), at 18 to 20. The same paper says that at Liverpool "the demand is reviving, but prices are unchanged."

HEALTH IN OLD AGE.

Edward Collinson, Queens, N. Y., says: "I commenced using Brandreth's Pills over fifty-five years ago. I first bought them in London, and have continued using them since I came to this country in 1838. I am now over seventy-five years old, hale and hearty, and attribute my wonderful health to the persistent use of Brandreth's Pills. Occasionally I have a bad cold or severe attack of rheumatism, indigestion or biliousness, but four or five doses of Brandreth's Pills always cure me. Whenever my children have been sick with scarlet fever, measles, cold stomach, disordered digestion or stiffness, a few doses of Brandreth's Pills restored their health at once."

"A TALENTED EDITOR."

Gentlemen:—I had occasion to use several boxes of Krause's Headache Capsules while traveling to Chicago to attend the National Democratic Convention.
