The Astorian guarantees to its subscribers the largest circulation of any newspaper published on the Columbia river.

Advertising rates can be obtained on application to the business manager.

This paper is in possession of all the telegraph franchises, and is the only paper on the Columbia river that publishes genuine dispatches.

The Daily Astorian's circulation is five times as great as that of the combined circulation of the other daily papers of Astoria.

The Weekly Astorian, the third oldest weekly in the state of Oregon, has, next to the Portland Oregonian, the largest weekly circulation in the state.

Subscribers to the Astorian are requested to notify this office, without loss of time, immediately they fail to receive their daily paper, or when they do not get it at the usual hour. By doing this they will enable the management to place the blame on the proper parties and to insure a speedy remedy.

Handley & Haas are our Portland agents and copies of the Astorian can be had every morning at their stand on First street.

YESTERDAY'S WEATHER.

Local weather for the twenty-four hours ending at 5 p. m. yesterday, furnished by the U. S. Department of Agriculture weather bureau.

Mamimum temperature, 46 degrees; minimum temperature, 36 degrees; precipitation, .17 inch.

Total precipitation from July 1, 1893, to date, 76.62 inches; excess of precipitation from July 1, 1893, to date, 22.40 inches.

TODAY'S WEATHER.

Portland, Ore., March 9.—For Western Washington and Western Oregon: Occasional showers; slight changes in temperature.

For Eastern Washington and Eastern Oregon: Fair weather.

Joseph Donjan, the crank who sent Vice-President Stevenson a threatening postal card, demanding $25 for expenses, under peril of doom, has been sent to what our amiable ancestors called the donjon keep, and there M. Donjan will be kept for some time. He is the sort of a crank that does best when not revolving.

It is fortunate for the peace of the world that the emperor of Russia was engaged in the latest war between the Russians and Turks. The military capacity of the latter, it will be remembered, was displayed in that combat in a very striking manner. They were at last overwhelmed, but inflicted frightful slaughter upon the invaders, and the lesson was so impressive that the czar has constantly since the murder of his father insisted upon peace. The kaiser said the other day that he and the czar were princes of peace. William has not, however, been an eye-witness of the horrors of war.

La Bourgogne, one of the French liners, met a big wave on a recent trip westward, and the usual story is told. "Suddenly an immense wave towered up out of the sea directly ahead of the steamship, and, without any warning, crashed down on the forward deck," says the report. "Then it started on a chase of destruction along the deck, and before those on the bridge could prepare for its coming, they were buried beneath it." That is the way to tell it. The gallant Frenchmen say nothing about a "tidal wave." The tidal waves are kept for the passengers and reporters. What was the matter with La Bourgogne is easily stated. She was kept under headway in bad weather until, taking a plunge from one watery ridge, she struck another and ran into it too far.

Senor Prudente Moraes and Senor Pereira, who were recently elected president and vice president, respectively, of the Brazilian republic, are both civilians. President-elect Moraes being a lawyer by profession, and at one time president of the senate. There was no display of military interference whatever, and the slanders of the enemies of the republic were refuted. Brazil has, unmistakably, opened a new era for South American republics, by showing that such a government can be established and maintained without militarism, and that no dictator is necessary. The mistake most of the Spanish-American republics of South America have made has been in elevating purely military men to the chief place, and they have applied purely military administration to public affairs. The military men elevated to the presidency in countries of the southern part of the western continent have been unlike our own, for in the United States the civil idea has predominated over the military, and no successful general who was a professional soldier, and nothing more, has ever been elected president. All were civilian-soldiers. Grant was the only West Pointer who was ever elected, and the larger part of his life, after graduation, had been spent outside of the permanent military establishment and in civil pursuits. In Brazil the people seem to be of different temper from the other republics south, and more like our own. They do not take kindly to dictators. The first president, Marshal Da Fonseca, was a soldier, but martial rule just then seemed to be needed. As soon as he attempted to illegally extend his power he was overthrown. Floriano Peixoto, the present president, was a soldier also; but he was constitutionally elected, and has made no attempt to usurp power or violate the constitution, although the imperialists, who care nothing for that instrument, have charged him with such acts. The election of a civilian administration knocks the last prop of pretense from under Mello, Da Gama and the imperialist crew. They may as well retire now, for they are in a bad plight.

RANDOM SHOTS.

It's never too late to wed.

A hungry husband is hard to coax.

A husband's wrath spoils the best broth.

One kind thought spoken is worth two unsaid.

It is not what one knows, but how one tells it that determines one's ability.

If Gov. Waite would like to secede all by himself, the country will be inclined to let him.

If all the devils were cast out of some people they would look like walking skeletons.

Many men are more careful of the breed of their horses and dogs than of their children.

A sensible husband in hand is worth a dozen heroes in dreamland or foreign titles.

Boss McKane got one day's stay of sentence; now he gets a stay of six years in prison.

He—Is there such a thing as a man knowing too much? She—Not if he tells it all to his wife.

After knocking out the governor, Pug Mitchell and lastly the court, Corbett ought to be happy.

Waiter—De usual steak, sah? Regular Customer—No; I am tired tonight. Bring me a plate of hash.

The avarice of the miser is the grand sepulcher of all his other passions as they successively decay.

The census man is going to count Chicago's population again, but New York will never believe him.

Riches, remarked Uncle Eben, had wings. But dat ain' no 'scuse fo't' worshipin' ob 'em laik dey was angels.

Every man has his opinions, but in many instances he picked them up where somebody else dropped them.

If a woman wants a welcome when she gets home, she should leave her husband with the baby when she goes.

Occasional vacations are worth more than silver handles on a coffin that come sooner than nature intended.

Bizzy—What silly story was that you were telling that gave those people the giggles? Fizzy—One of yours.

Aunty—So you have had your first meal at your new boarding house? Was it a course dinner? Little Girl—Awfully.

It is frequently the case that men who are unfair and unjust, consider even a recital of the facts to be the grossest injustice.

A man engaged in selling "elixir of life" in Boston was arrested for wife-beating recently. She says "elixir within an inch of her life."

What would the newspapers do without such women as Queen Liliuokalani, Zella Nicolaus, Mary Ellen Lease and Madeline Pollard?

Spatts—I'm very sorry for that boy. Your scolding cut him to the quick. Bloobumper—That's impossible. He has no quick. He is a messenger boy.

She—And would you marry me if I had no wealth? He—Would I? Just make your money over to me and see if I wouldn't, poor as it would leave you.

Scribble has to keep his verses traveling from one magazine publisher to another, and yet he will have it that they are real poetry. Maybe they're the poetry of motion.

Tommy—What is the meaning of the word street-cleaner, pop? Tommy's Pop—It is practically an obsolete word, my boy, and there appears to be no longer any occasion for its use.

Willie Wilt—You—aw—don't seem to have observed that I have grown a mustache. Miss Perte—Oh, yes. I have, Mr. Wilt. I am more observing than most people, you know.

NOTICE OF ADMINISTRATION.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned has been this day appointed the administrator of the estate of A. K. Barrow, deceased, by the county court of Clatsop county, Oregon. All parties having claims against said estate must present the same, duly verified, to the undersigned, at the office of Fulton Bros., attorneys, in Astoria, Clatsop county, Oregon, within six months from this date.

JOURNALISM IN 1800.

Prof. C. H. Levermore recently delivered a most interesting lecture in New York on "Journalism During the First Half of the Present Century." The lecturer's remarks were, of course, directed particularly to the changes in New York city itself. He told of the condition of journalism in 1800, and recalled the histories of such newspapers as the Commercial Advertiser, Courier and Enquirer and Journal of Commerce, and said that in those days Col. Webb, a local newspaper proprietor and editor, labored under the impression that the sword, pistol and cane were mightier than the pen. Col. Webb, he said, often assaulted people, and then told the stories of the assault in the columns of his own newspaper.

He also told of the great rivalry existing between the editors of the various papers, and told the story of how one proprietor, to get ahead of his rivals, had fast-sailing schooners to meet incoming vessels and get the latest sea and foreign news from them in advance of all the other dailies. Then he told of the introduction of the pony express. In short, Mr. Levermore drew comparisons of the newspapers of 50 years ago, and the great dailies of today. In speaking of one renowned editor, he said that gentleman had said that newspapers should be daily reflections of the world, as it really was, and that editors and reporters should be wedded to the profession, as doctors and lawyers are wedded to theirs.

Skidds—I suppose it is all right to call a spade a spade, but—— Skadds—But what? Skidds (with a sad remembrance of having tried to beat a flush with two small pair the night before)—A man is a blooming chump to call five of them.

ATHLETES OF THE PRESENT DAY.

J. E. Sullivan, secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, President of the Pastime Athletic Club, and Athletic Editor of The Sporting Times, writes:

"For years I have been actively connected with athletic sports. I always found it to my advantage to use Allcock's Porous Plasters while in training, as they quickly remove soreness and stiffness; and when attacked with any kind of pains, the result of slight colds, I always used Allcock's with beneficial results. I have noticed that most athletes of the present day use nothing else but Allcock's Plasters."

LIFE OR DEATH?

It is of vital importance that it should be understood by persons whose kidneys are inactive, that this condition of things is finally inductive of a state of the organs where life hangs in the balance. Bright's disease, diabetes, albuminuria are all diseases of a very obstinate character in their mature stage, and all have a fatal tendency. They often baffle the most practised medical skill, and the most approved remedies of materia medica. But opposed at the outset—that is to say, when the kidneys begin to discharge their functions inactively—with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the dangerous tendency is checked. Very useful, also, is this household medicine for those ailments of common occurrence—constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia and nervousness. It is a safeguard against malaria and averts chron rheumatism.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Clatsop.—Rose G. Jackson, Plaintiff, vs. J. J. Kinney, Defendant.

By virtue of an execution and order of sale issued out of and under the seal of the above-entitled Court, in the above-entitled cause, on the 21st day of February, 1894, and to me directed, upon a decree of foreclosure and judgment rendered therein, on the 23rd day of December, 1893, in favor of the above-named plaintiff, and against the above-named defendant, for the sum of $386.25, and the costs and disbursements of this action, taxed at $16.50, and notice is hereby given that on Tuesday, the 3rd day of April, 1894, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m., of said day, in front of the County Court House door, in the City of Astoria, in said County and State, I shall proceed to sell all the right, title, claim and interest of the above-named defendant in and to the following described real estate, to-wit:

Lots numbered five (5), thirteen (13) and fourteen (14), in block numbered one hundred and sixty-two (162), in the town, now City, of Astoria, as laid out and recorded by John McClure, and extended by Cyrus Olney, and situated in Clatsop County, Oregon, or so much thereof as shall be sufficient to satisfy the said sum of $386.25, and the costs and disbursements taxed at $16.50, and accruing costs of this suit, at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash in hand, in United States gold coin, at time of sale. H. A. SMITH,

Sheriff of Clatsop County, Oregon.

Dated Astoria, Ore., March 1st, 1894.

NOTHING LIKE S.S.S.

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC is totally unlike any other blood medicine. It cures diseases of the blood and skin by removing the poison, and at the same time supplies good blood to the wasted parts. Don't be imposed on by substitutes, which are said to be just as good, if it is not free. No medicine has performed as many wonderful cures, or relieved so much suffering. IN THE WORLD

"My blood was badly poisoned last year, which got my whole system out of order—diseased and a constant source of suffering, no appetite and no enjoyment of life. Two bottles of S.S.S. brought me right out. There is no better remedy for blood diseases.

To assure both the above ends, good, wholesome, palatable food is demanded. It is next to impossible to present a sufficient variety of appetizing bills of fare for our meals without a liberal allowance of pastry and other food in which shortening is required. How to make crisp, healthful, digestible pastry has puzzled the cooks. A difficulty in all good cooking in the past has been lard. Always fickle, never uniform, most unwholesome—lard has always been the bane of the cook and the obstacle to "good digestion."
