The Astorian guarantees to its subscribers the largest circulation of any newspaper published on the Columbia river.

Advertising rates can be obtained on application to the business manager.

This paper is in possession of all the telegraph franchises, and is the only paper on the Columbia river that publishes genuine dispatches.

The Daily Astorian's circulation is five times as great as that of the combined circulation of the other daily papers of Astoria.

The Weekly Astorian, the third oldest weekly in the state of Oregon, has, next to the Portland Oregonian, the largest weekly circulation in the state.

Subscribers to the Astorian are requested to notify this office, without loss of time, immediately they fail to receive their daily paper, or when they do not get it at the usual hour. By doing this they will enable the management to place the blame on the proper parties and to insure a speedy remedy.

Handley & Haas are our Portland agents and copies of the Astorian can be had every morning at their stand on First street.

Maximum temperature, 58 degrees; minimum temperature, 46 degrees; precipitation, 1.10 inches.

Total precipitation form July 1, 1893, to date, 84.49 inches; excess of precipitation from July 1, 1893, to date, 26.33 inches.

TODAY'S WEATHER.

Portland, March 28.—Forecast for Washington and Oregon: Rain; fresh southerly winds and gales on the coast.

THE RIGHT MAN.

"All roads lead to London," and all indications for the coming June elections point to the nomination and triumphant success at the polls of Hon. C. W. Fulton for governor of this state. All Western Oregon has grown enthusiastic at the mention of his name; the counties in the south have already shown how welcome his selection will be; and in Portland, a fact remarkable as a display by that clannish city in favor of a non-resident, Mr. Fulton seems to be the unanimous choice of the Multnomah republicans. Of his own city and county it is unnecessary to speak. The vote he would receive, even from his political opponents, in Clatsop, would be far more than a complimentary tribute. It would amount to a universal desire to show the balance of the state how eager our residents are to put to the test the brilliant powers of the most popular man among us.

How Mr. Fulton has been able to become a gubernatorial possibility, is a question that may be answered very simply. The profession of a lawyer is above all others the business that brings out before public audiences the best and worst sides of a man's intelligence, and which stamps him for all time in the public mind as powerful or mediocre in ability. There are many clever advocates in Oregon, and of course many of the most excellent live and work in the city of Portland. Mr. Fulton's place among members of the Oregon bar is well known. He stands on the top rung of the ladder, a position reached after years of patient study and aided by an amount of personal magnetism that is not possessed by many men. A very gratifying and spontaneous tribute to his value in this direction occurred a couple of months ago in one of the most important cases ever heard by the bench in this state—the trial of the Puget Sound smugglers. Five of the most prominent lawyers in Portland, including an ex-governor, unanimously settled on Mr. Fulton to lead them in the case for the defense.

Two years ago Oregon most unfortunately elected to the position of governor an individual who, while we believe he has been sincere in his gyrations, has brought us into disrepute and made us the butt for ridicule, and almost shame, from every other state in the union. The name of Oregon has become a by-word and the name of Pennoyer a laughing-stock for the rest of the country to jeer at. It is the duty of every man and organization in our borders to place in the governor's chair at the coming election a citizen whose record and whose every act speak of good common sense, high ability, and a full knowledge of the demands of the high office to which he is elected—a citizen whose friends have been made, not by catch-penny populism or the possession of wealth, but by the desire to serve and recognize a conservative, honorable man with the courage of his own convictions. Such a man, and only such a man, will be able to blot out the stain of Pennoyerism and give Oregon its old place again among the states. Such a man is C. W. Fulton.

"The Senator from Clatsop" has become the man of the hour.

The remarkable power of Kossuth over the imagination of the people with whom he was associated, is seen in the interest his death excites. His departure visibly shakes the Austro-Hungarian empire-kingdom. Flags of mourning for the lost leader are forbidden in Vienna. In Hungary the people mourn the man most venerated. His unfaltering adherence to the principles he avowed; his impracticable but invincible resentment toward the powers that prevailed against him; his refusal to forgive or be forgiven, while his country failed to be free; his tenacity in relying upon his own resources, refusing gifts, repulsing flatteries, accepting poverty—gave him a dignity that was unique. Deak bargained with imperialism to gain concessions for Hungary, as Parnell obstructed parliament to assert the rights of Ireland and advance her interests; but Kossuth demanded absolute independence for the Hungarian nation, and all less than that he despised. This was like the parade that was magnificent, but not war; it was exalted, but not politic; the poetry of state affairs, but not statecraft.

Lord Rosebery ought to have offered Mr. Labouchere a peerage, and thereby have got rid of a vexatious adversary. It is not by any means improbable that he would have accepted it, cynically remarking that the most practical way of reforming the lords would be for him to take his place among them.

Mr. Hewitt's capital epigram about "doining a vacuum" is one of the things that will stick. It has already fastened itself in the popular mind and memory, and it is bound to stay there because of the truth which it epitomizes.

Senators Voorhees and Vest are taking Mr. Cleveland's famous Providence declaration that reciprocity is a republican tribute to democratic tariff reform very seriously indeed.

FACTS, FIGURES AND FANCIES.

Borax to the value of at least $1,000,000 was produced in California in 1893.

The estimate of Brazilian coffee crops is 4,500,000 bags present, and 7,500,000 next growth.

The official estimate of government growing crop of Java coffee is now placed at 311,000 peculs. Private crop, 500,000 peculs.

It is said that advices at hand claim a crop of Mocha coffee at only 60,000 bundles, against 90,000 last growth.

Eight thousand acres of olives have been planted in California, of which nearly three-quarters have begun to bear, though only a small fraction has reached the age for large yields. Ten or twelve thousand gallons of olive oil will be made this year, and about 50,000 gallons of pickled olives.

The overland shipments from the Santa Clara valley for the season to March 3 are reported as follows: Prunes, 32,582,520 pounds; peaches, 2,823,105; apricots, 3,550,365. The only fruit on hand in the valley consists of prunes. Santa Clara valley has furnished for shipment 38,945,990 pounds of cured fruits.

EXPERIENCE OF AN EX-CHAMPION.

Athletes and men who take ordinary outdoor exercise, such as walking, running, bicycle riding, jumping, swimming, tennis, etc., are often the subjects of acute troubles. The experience of an ex-champion walker will be of interest to all who are afflicted. Harry Brooks writes:

"No. 324 East 19th St., New York, April 2, 1886.—Numerous statements relative to the merits of different plasters having been brought to my attention, I take this opportunity to state that I have used Allcock's Porous Plasters for over 20 years, and prefer them to any other kind. I would furthermore state that I was very sick with catarrh of the kidneys, and attribute my recovery entirely to Allcock's Porous Plasters."

EXECUTRIX NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given to all whom it may concern, that the undersigned has been appointed executrix of the last will and testament of J. M. Olsen, deceased, late of Clatsop county, Oregon, by the County Court of said county, and all persons having claims against the estate of said deceased are notified to present the same, duly verified, to the said executrix, at the office of Fulton Bros., in the City of Astoria, in said county and state, within six months from this date.

Dated at Astoria, Oregon, this 13th day of March, 1894.

MAREN A. OLSEN, Executrix.

NEW JAG CURE.

A Portland Detective's Plan for Curing Drunks.

Detective Griffin, of Portland, who is somewhat of a joker, says yesterday's Oregonian, furnished considerable amusement for the spectators in the municipal court a few days ago. Among the prisoners was a tall, raw-boned man from Yamhill, arrested for drunkenness, who threatened to continue his spree as soon as released from jail. Detective Griffin thought the man had better go home and spend his hard-earned money for the benefit of his family. But persuasion had no effect on the fellow, and the detective resorted to another plan to accomplish his reformation. Summoning him into the office of the deputy district attorney, he had him seated before the transmitter of the telephone, which is worked on a pivot. Turning the instrument toward him, he rang the bell and informed him that his picture had been taken by electricity in every city in the country and a repetition of the offense meant arrest everywhere. "Is that so?" grasped the man from Yamhill. "Well," he added, resignedly, "I will go home and never drink again." At which the spectators laughed immoderately. The man from Yamhill, however, suspected no trick, and was true to his promise. When last seen by Detective Griffin, he was boarding a West Side train for Yamhill and repeating to a friend his promise to abstain from liquor.

HARD TO FIND.

A man who wants no office.
A pistol that isn't loaded.
A girl who can whistle.
A real, live boy who doesn't read baseball gossip.
A Portland policeman.
Any sense in Coxey's campaign.
The umbrella one received at Christmas.
A man who will acknowledge that he kissed that Chicago cobblestone.
A Chinaman in a drinking saloon.
Chicago's estimated population.
A well kept street.
A lost opportunity.
The 1891 tax roll.
Hens' teeth.
A job.
An unmarried woman over 25.
A friend when you are hard up.
Where a delegate stands on the recordership.
Men to build the Astoria railroad.
The man in Astoria who does not read The Astorian.
The man who can whip Corbett.

HE WAS CORNERED.

"I wish you would not fill the next pig with cloves," growled Mr. Murray Hill, as he sank his carving knife into a well garnished infantile porker.

"Why, I thought you liked cloves," replied the wife, with considerable astonishment.

"Of course I don't. The flavor of a clove is enough to make a graven image sick."

"This is the first time I ever heard you complain about a clove."

"Always abhorred them."

"Why is it then you can't sit through a play without tramping over a dozen persons in your eagerness to get them between the acts?"

"Ahem! Will you kindly pass me the butter?"—Texas Siftings.

CROSSING THE ATLANTIC

Usually involves sea sickness. When the waves play pitch and toss with you, strong indeed must be the stomach that can stand it without revolting. Tourists, commercial travelers, yachtsmen, mariners, all testify that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the best remedy for the nausea experienced in rough weather on the water. Nervous and weakly travelers by land often suffer from something akin to this, and find in the Bitters its surest remedy. No disorder of the stomach, liver or bowels is so obstinate that it may not be overcome by the prompt and thorough remedy. Equally efficacious is it for chills and fever, kidney and rheumatic trouble and nervousness. Emigrants to the frontier should provide themselves with this fine medicinal safeguard against the effects of vicissitudes of climate, hardship, exposure and fatigue.

NOTHING LIKE S.S.S.

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC is totally unlike any other blood medicine. It cures diseases of the blood and skin by removing the poison, and at the same time supplies good blood to the wasted parts. Don't be imposed on by substitutes, which are said to be just as good, it is not true. No medicine has performed as many wonderful cures, or relieved so much suffering.

IN THE WORLD

"My blood was badly poisoned last year, which got my whole system out of order—diseased and a constant source of suffering, no appetite and no enjoyment of life. Two bottles of S.S.S. brought me right out. There is no better remedy for blood diseases.

"I do not Eat Pastry."

How often you hear this expression, and the explanation that usually follows: "I am troubled with dyspepsia." The explanation is not far to seek. In the past Lard has been used as the principal shortening in all pastry, the result—dyspepsia. The dyspeptic need no longer be troubled, providing is substituted for lard in the preparation of all food. It is composed strictly of highly refined vegetable oil and beef suet. When used as a shortening, it produces wholesome and healthful pastry. Physicians and expert cooks indorse it. Refuse substitutes.
