

"BREAKING IN,"

Many a man has "broken out" in a passion, and felt all "broken up," trying to get a new pair of shoes "broken in." He has had to "break off" many an engagement on account of crippled feet, and has gone "broke" many a time trying to get relief for his corns—the direct cause of ill-fitting shoes.

You will find all this obviated by purchasing your footwear at the store of JOHN HAHN & CO.

A POINTER

Many people believe that all black-smithing jobs are alike—that they are nothing but muscle and material mixed. That is true of ordinary jobs. Brains are also used to make a good job. So is conscience. A job made without skill or honesty is no good. Our work is widely known for its quality, durability and economy in the end.

AROUND TOWN.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will give a rare musical treat on the 19th of May.

The regular Friday evening service at Grace Episcopal church will be omitted this evening.

C. P. Uphur, who enjoys driving a horse that has to be held with both hands, has been speeding his nag on our streets the last few days.

Thomas Trullinger went up the Lewis and Clarke river yesterday to scale a 500,000 foot raft of spruce logs for Fisher Brothers. The steamer Fannie will be down today to take them to Portland.

"Under the Gaslight" attracted a good-sized audience last night at Liberty hall, the railroad scene being as attractive as ever. The same play will be repeated tonight and tomorrow, Sunday, "La Bastille."

The entertainment to be given May 4 by the Ys and library promises to be unusually entertaining. The especially interesting feature will be the lady minstrelns. Although the times are hard, don't stay away and afterwards wish you had gone.

One of the numbers on tonight's program is "A Magic Mirror." Will it tell the young ladies "who they are" and "where they are at" after they have donned the burnt cork, long-pointed collars, etc.? If so, please turn it towards the audience, as it will likely wish to know who's who! and what's what.

If the licensed bill poster of Astoria has to pay very much for the exclusive privilege of covering our dead walls with illuminated posters, it's dollars to cents that he is not getting enough work to cause any one to envy him his franchise. The bill board west of Shanahan's store hasn't had a new poster on it since last summer.

The Loyal Temperance Legion will repeat their "Hard Times Social" on Saturday evening at Rescue hall, and, by voluntary vote of the members, an admission fee will be charged, as they generously propose to donate the entire proceeds to the club. The children intend to give the best entertainment ever furnished for the money, and hope to see the usual crowded house.

If more attention was paid to educating children thoroughly, and less effort made to bring out a large graduating class at the end of the term, our schools would show a marked improvement. It is often the case that children graduate who can't stand an examination, and the only reason they happen to do so is that it pleases the parents and gives the school a reputation.—Ex.

There are thousands of salmon butting their heads against the Pokegama Lumber Company's dam in the Klamath river. This winter's freshest took away the fish ladder, and the Klamath river just below the dam is composed of so much fish as it is of water. All the creeks, streams and brooks, and miners' sluice boxes in some instances, are fairly gorged with salmon trying to go up further.—Gold Beach Gazette.

MISS DUNLAP'S LECTURE.

Miss Ione Dunlap, of Portland, will lecture at Rescue Hall at two o'clock Friday, May 4th, upon kindergarten work.

This will be before the teachers attending the teachers' institute assembly and the public generally are requested to be present.

Miss Dunlap is an enthusiastic kindergarten teacher, possessed of high attainments in this field and is a very pleasing speaker.

It is to be hoped that mothers will take advantage of this opportunity to see what the work can be made to do for our "little ones."

MUTINY SQUELCHED.

There was some breaking for cover when the rain began at Commonweal headquarters yesterday morning. Sleeping amongst the net racks around a cannery is not what it is cracked up to be, especially if a man has the delirium tremens in the night and gets his head shifted so his ear is over a crack and the seabeese blows on his tympanum. That was what happened to Parmitte Eli at the break of day at the Anglo American cannery. He was found wrestling with a superb zoological collection that the Smithsonian Institution would give millions for. The cream of the outfit was a brilliant red ant-eater with a tail like a feather duster. When Eli's companions turned him over so that his face pointed more to the zenith he gradually recovered and the menagerie disappeared.

When the rain drops came At daybreak in his battered tent, Willie was dreaming of the hour When he could have, where'er he went A mug of beer or whisky sour.

The patter of the rain disturbed him just as he was accumulating a great and glorious thirst. The first few drops that dripped through upon his face made him blink his eyes. He sat up, touched his finger to the moisture, and applied it to his tongue. "Water," he roared in disgust. "Move the army to the starting dock."

By 7 o'clock the camp was all astir, and the committee on eye-openers was ordered to report at headquarters. At this juncture a fight broke out. Thrifty Willie's cayuse had been tied to a testing tank. In the aforesaid testing tank peacefully slumbered Calamity Jim, the six-fingered brakeman of the Astoria and Portland limited freight. He was stretched upon his back, with a fine stand of seal-brown, Willamette whiskers pointing towards Tongue Point. In the darkness the cayuse had mistaken this outfit for bated hay and had browsed freely thereon. The result was that most of the whiskers on one side of his face had disappeared.

When Jim sat up and rubbed his eyes a shriek of laughter went up from his comrades in arms.

"Wot's eatin' yer?" he grunted. "Jim felt for his whiskers, and with a cry of anguish bounded over the kettle and at Hungry Hank's throat. Over the two went, rolling in under the splinting table, clasped in each other's embrace, scratching and biting like all get out."

Thrifty Willie heard the disturbance and stalked to an empty salmon case, placing his broad fin to his eye as if to shield the glare of the morning sun, he roared:

"What, ho! me legions!"

Anaconda Pete, the sergeant, rushed up with a barrel stove at present arms, and sang out, "Aye, aye, sir; legions is present."

"Wot! mutiny in de camp? Bring dese skates to me tent and have 'em shot for breakfast."

"Dez was half shot for supper," suggested the sergeant.

"Mashts nicht aus," thundered the leader. "If any blokes is looking for a scrap I'll give 'em a game. De keys to both the graveyards are a hanging to me vest. See."

The rioters were brought in and pinched down to three beers a day for the rest of the week. They begged piteously for a reprieve, but the leader was deaf to their entreaties.

The encampment was christened "Camp Half-and-Half" last night, and the opening ode for the day was:

A little black beer at this time of year Is likely to knock a man blind. But when he awakes, how his appetite quakes.

For the lunch that he left behind.

This was sung loudly and lustily to the tune, "The Girl I Left Behind," and the official poet, Woodside Wayne, was ordered to have a new chorus each morning.

The army expects to move Saturday or Sunday morning.

Contributions are coming in fast. Thrifty Willie received a check for $21,000 from Cornelius Vanderbilt on the down boat, but it was too late to cash it in yesterday. No doubt Mr. Gordon, of the First National bank, will pay it this morning on presentation, without telegraphing as to whether it is good or not. Also the following was received:

Philadelphia, May 3.—Parched William: Should you visit our city, would be pleased to show you our bargain counter. We have a job lot of cigars that have never been smoked, and other supplies you will need. (signed) JOHN WANAMAKER.

The checks, drafts and other evidences of good-will received yesterday filled a good-sized basket, and the general said that if this kept up he would have to advertise for a typewriter—one with yellow hair and blue eyes preferred.

All reporters have now been excluded from the camp, but it has leaked out that before the army starts it will make a secret midnight raid on the North Pacific Brewery, claiming there is no beer in Portland equal to the North Pacific's brew, and they want the best. We'll see what we'll see.

Consignee Sale

We have had a run lately, and hundreds of ladies are purchasing laces and corsets. We are selling German yarn at 15c per 1-4 lb. skein, zephyrs 4 oz. package at 10 cents. Men folks have made a great many empty places in our clothing line, and hats are moving rapidly. Suspenders are going by the hundreds. In fact, people have found a place where they can save from 40 to 60 per cent on their investments. This sale has caused a great deal of comment among the merchants, and they would like to close us out. The manager of this Consignee Sale is an old resident in Oregon and has lived in one place over 20 years; is competent to walk through any store and give an estimate of the value, within 5 per cent, and has never missed it; therefore, while known as the best expert on the Coast, is often trusted to handle large bankrupt stocks, and has already handled over one hundred stores in Oregon and Washington, and is known to make no statement but facts. While he never interferes with other merchants, yet some of them sometimes are fool enough to try and interfere with him, in which case they generally get the worst of it. The sale goes on just the same, however, and the people can buy cheaper in this city than in Portland, at this Great Consignee Sale.

S. Friedman, Manager Astoria, Oregon.

RAKES AND THINGS.

The little warm rays of sunshine dropping in a little earlier these mornings, as the season advances, plainly say, "Get ready, for folks will soon be wanting garden things!" So we ARE getting ready our hoes, rakes, spades, etc., for your coming. Never mind the prices—they'll be as little as anybody's, almost surely smaller.
