

The Scenes By the Way.

To many readers of the Astorian the beauties of scenery of the Shasta Route from the Golden Gate to the Columbia River are so familiar that any description may pall on them like a tale many times repeated.

A Pullman Palace Car, in charge of a courteous conductor, ably assisted by a quietly attentive porter, and the excellent service of the Southern Pacific road, tend to put one in that genial mood consequent to physical comfort, and enable one to enjoy thoroughly the higher pleasures.

Add to this the refreshing influence of a night's sound sleep, though in motion, and one awakens assured that all these are a proper prelude to a day's pleasure.

A lovely sky—delightful air and kindly sunshine, produce an exhilarating effect, and we watch the grand panorama, so constantly changing and varying, even when seen repeatedly by all these are a proper prelude to a day's pleasure.

Then surely the words of the psalmist are sent like an echo from the mountains and we hear the refrain, "The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof"—and again from the same source comes the question "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord?" while the mountains answer, "He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully."

Mingled with the enjoyment of the lovely Sacramento river and the awe inspired by the magnificent mountains, is the feeling of admiration for the human daring and skill that pushed so stupendous a piece of engineering through so seemingly inaccessible regions. As we cross and recross the Sacramento, tracing it back through ferny vales, blossoming meadow and yawning chasm, to the snowy peaks whence it gushes and gurgles, roars and races, we wonder if those eighteen crossings were a necessity in the construction of the road or were deliberately planned and executed solely to add to the pleasure of the passengers.

So kindly do we feel toward everything animate and inanimate that our wonder inclines strongly to a belief in the extreme disinterestedness of corporations in general and the Southern Pacific in particular.

While these thoughts flit through the mind we are traversing the Shasta foothills and watching the grand old mountain, now at our left next in front of us, then losing sight of it for a time, to discover that what we are supposing is a cloud, is our sentinel looking down upon us from an entirely different position.

In spite of the clearness of the day, Shasta veiled his head in clouds, as if to seek solitude, or, having mercy on his beholders, to dim in part the dazzling whiteness of his snowy mantle.

We pass Castle Gray, and find, as we expect from the name, a wildness and beauty that account for the location of its famous tavern and attractive hunting lodges.

Here, too, a few devotees of Isaak Walton prove the truth of the trout stories already told us by the babbling, rushing stream and especially revealed by the cool, dardling pools.

Dunsuir, with its ancient Scotch name, receives a closer inspection as we stop for a brief half hour. Here so prosaic objects as markets and groceries distract our attention and make us aware that a neat, thrifty town is nestled here among the mountains.

Here, too, we see a typical village sight—a group of admiring men around the oracle of the town, who is expounding the latest events of importance in the outside world. While we cannot hear his words as we pass, it is easy to translate that self-satisfied look and air into

"Better be first in a little Iberian village Than second in Rome."

Leaving this glimpse of human nature, we come after a short ride to the Shasta springs, where we find Dame Nature as proprietor of a wonderful soda fountain in an exquisite setting of hills, whose sides are covered with mosses and lichens whence flow innumerable streams and gushing springs—the whole forming a water fall of incomparable beauty. While entranced by this beauty we do not fail to patronize the soda fountain and find the sparkling water far more agreeable to the taste than that of any of the Saratoga springs.

Again the climbing is resumed, and the mountains form a changing scene that keeps one constantly turning from side to side, or, as one good lady said, "she had been hopping about like a flea all day."

begins the descent. At times it seems to be the descent into Avernus, when we plunge into the bowels of the earth with little warning, unless one happens to notice the yawning blackness and see (the last thing to be seen) the tunnel, 15, or it may be 60—we are ready to believe either.

Through Klamath valley and Rogue River valley we have constantly before our eyes beautiful farms, with their flourishing orchards and thrifty surroundings, protected by the ever-present mountains.

The human element is here combined with the natural, and pictures are plentiful where man has aided and improved nature by the cultivation of these fertile valleys and the adaptation of her resources to his own benefit.

A descent of 2,200 feet in 17 miles furnishes some heavy grades, many sharp turns, loops and horsehoes, and numerous doublings of our course, so that at times three tracks run parallel to one another.

At one place we pass through a tunnel and emerge at a point a stone's throw distant from the exit of a tunnel passed some time previously. (A stone's throw being indefinite, I will explain that I mean a stone thrown by a woman.)

At Ashland we leave the observation car, as well as several tourists, who have occupied places on the cow-catcher—under the cars, and on top of a car—and have, to all appearances, been more intent on obtaining a free ride than anything else.

"The shadow creeps and creeps, and is always looking over the shoulder of the sunshine," and soon comes the end of a day that will long remain a delightful memory.

Only the weariness resulting from intense interest and enjoyment reconciles us to the coming darkness that hides from our vision other scenes by the way.

PERSONAL.

Alex. Moody was down from Knappa this week.

Mr. Morris Abrams, from San Francisco, is visiting friends here.

Mrs. W. E. Warren left for San Francisco yesterday for a three-weeks' visit.

Miss Myra Stevens left yesterday on the steamer Columbia for a three-months' pleasure trip. Before returning she will visit friends in Roseburg, Or.; Alameda, Cal.; also the Sandwich Islands. During her absence Mrs. J. A. Rannels will officiate in her stead as organist in the Congregational church.

A CALL.

Astoria, Or., May 1st, 1894. To D. S. Worsley, Astoria, Clatsop county, Oregon:

We the undersigned electors of the county of Clatsop, and state of Oregon, in recognition of the fact that we desire the office of county assessor to be conducted in that impartial manner and with the business ability which has saved to this county thousands of dollars. Since your appointment as county assessor by the Hon. county court, would respectfully request that you allow your name to appear upon the ticket as an independent candidate for the office of county assessor, of Clatsop county, at the general election to be held in this county on Monday, June 4th, 1894. Respectfully yours,

One Hundred and Six Petitioners on Filing Petition. To the One Hundred and Six Petitioners and the Electors of Clatsop County, Oregon: Gentlemen—Allow me to return to you my sincere thanks for the confidence expressed in your petition as your county assessor, and under the circumstances I most respectfully accept your nomination, and have filed my petition and if elected to succeed myself, I promise to perform the duties of the office with fidelity in justice and equity to all. Respectfully yours, B. S. WORSLEY.

A SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Itching Piles are known by moisture like perspiration, causing intense itching when warm. This form, as well as Bleeding or Protruding, yield at once to Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly on the parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching and effects a permanent cure. See Druggist or mail. Circulars free. Dr. Bosanko, 129 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by J. W. Conn.

REMOVED.

Dr. A. L. & J. A. Fulton have removed to their new offices, over A. V. Allen's store.

IN GLASS. That's the way Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets come. And it's a more important point than you think. It keeps them always fresh and reliable, unlike the ordinary pills in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes.

They're put up in a better way, and they act in a better way, than the lingo, old-fashioned pills. No griping, no violence, no reaction afterward that sometimes leaves you worse off than before.

In that way, they cure permanently. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are promptly relieved and cured.

They're tiny, sugar-coated granules, a compound of refined and concentrated vegetable extracts—the smallest in size, the easiest to take, and the cheapest pill you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get.

There's nothing likely to be "just as good."

I am seventy-seven years old and have had my age renewed at least twenty years by means of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. My foot and leg for two years and a physician said I could not be cured. After taking fifteen small bottles S. S. S. there is not a sore on my limbs, and I have a new lease on life. I can walk and run as well as all my neighbors know of your wonderful remedy. J. A. P. SMITH, Palm Springs, Calif.

S-S-S IS A WONDERFUL REMEDY—especially for Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels. It builds up the general health. Treat on the blood, and free.
