BURNING PRIFTWOOD.

Far more than all I darest to dream, Unsought before my door I see On wings of fire and sicels of steam The world's great wanders come to mel

And all her signs, unmarked hefore, The man evolving from the slave

And life, no longer chance or fats, Safe in the gracious fatherhood, I foldo'er wearied hands and wait, In full assurance of the good,

And well the waiting time must be, Though brief or long its granted days, If Faith and Hope and Charity Sit by my evening hearthfire's blaze,

And with them, friends from heaven have with them, the same spaced spaced, whose love my licent has comforted, And, sharing all my joys, has shared My tender memories of the dead.

Dear souls, who left us lonely here Bound on their last long voyage, to whom We day by day are drawing near, Where every back line sailing room.

I know the solemn monotone I know the scienti monorms
Of waters calling unto me.
I know from whence the airs have blown
That whisper of the Eternal Sea.
—Whittler.

An Abscess In the Church.

There is a negro church in Somerville, and some funny things happen there. It seems that there was a little recess behind the pulpit which was used for the pastor's dressing room. One day in a heavy rain the fresco fell with a crash upon the floor. Preparations were made to repair the damage with the customary

African promptness. The pastor, however, soon got disgusted, and one morning, after getting his feet covered with the dusty mortar, he ascended the pulpit. Casting his eye upon the dusty deacons of the church, he announced with dignity: "Bredren and sisters, it gibs yo' pastor great pain to call attention to the state of affairs in disyere church; but, bredren, de gospel in disyere church, prost coses to be disyere church, prost coses to be disyere. dis yere church must cease to be dispensed with till de abscess in de rear ob de pulpit am friensseed."

The fresco was put up next day. -Boston Budget.

Don't Brag.

There is no more childish trick than the too common one of boasting. One encounters it everywhere, particularly where one's antecedents are not realized by the listeners. Older people indulge in it more than their children, who seem to have a keener sense—in this way—of the ridiculous, and women are far more prone to it than men. This is, however, because they care more for the pomps and vanities of this world than do men street and Charter street, in Shively's, in general. If a man has a weakness for fine things, for swell society and acquaintances, he is pretty sure to allow his folly to creep out in the form of brag. Such folks should serve as object lessons for their fellows. In that sense they are of use in the world.—Philadelphia Press.

Statistics are said to show that young men do not on an average attain full physical maturity until they arrive at the age of 28 years. Professor Scheiller of Harvard asserts, as the result of his observations, that young men do not attain to the full measure of their mental faculties before 25 years of age. A shrewd observer has said that "most men are Sixth street. In McClure's, to boys until they are 30 and little boys until they are 25," and this accords with the standard of manhood which was fixed at 30 among the ancient Hebrews and other races. - Jenness Miller Monthly, Angelo.

Michael Angelo, while painting "The Last Judgment," fell from his scaffold and received a painful injury in the leg. He shut himself up and would not see any one. Bacio Rontini, a celebrated physician, came by accident to see him. He found all the doors closed. No one responding, he went into the cellar and came up stairs. He found Michael Angelo in his room, resolved to die. His friend the physician would not leave him. He brought him out of the peculiar frame of mind into which he had fallen.-New York Times.

Color Weddings.

The color weddings in which the bride sacrificed even the traditional bridal white of her own gown to the prevailing hue of the decorations have not become popular at all. They had some vogue last season in London, but were only read of, not copied, over here. There are some things whose changelessness is positively unassailable, and one of these is a white wedding gown.-Exchange.

Women Farmers.

The farmer of the future will be a woman, if Michigan affords a basis for prophecy. In Wayne county alone there are 220 women farmers, and in the whole state 8,707, with an ownership of 670,439 acres. The value of the land is estimated at $43,500,000, and the earnings of the women aggregate $4,354,500.
