A SAD REMINDER.

A touching memento of the election is on exhibit at the store of a local merchant whose faith in Councilman O'Hara's chances for success in the race for the office of sheriff, together with a fondness for backing his opinions with coin, cost him several big dollars. The memento in question is an embossed card that looks like a relic of Valentine's Day, bearing the words, "Vote for Patrick O'Hara, Populist Nominee for Sheriff." On one corner is neatly fastened, with a bow of ribbon, a bunch of forget-me-nots, which the storekeeper looks at frequently with an expression which seems to say: "Forget you! you; I'm not likely for some time to forget the big dollars you cost me."

A MEAN STEAL.

Capt, Hallock was informed Tuesday that a boat and net had been stolen the night before, and requested to keep his eye open for the thieves and catch them if possible. In the afternoon he noticed that a boat which he had seen anchored well out in the river that morning showed no signs of life aboard, so he had a fisherman row him out to her. It proved to be the missing boat, but without any occupants, and the greater part of the net had been cut off and carried away by the thief.

A NEW APPOINTMENT.

Mr. G. Ziegler, who has passed the civil service examination, is now at the postoffice occupying the position of mailing clerk left vacant by the resignation of Mr. Watson. Mr. Zeigler has the highest standing of any eligible candidate for the position, and as Postmaster Hare is a stanch supporter of civil service reform, he placed Mr. Zeigler in the position, as much as he disliked the appearance of interfering with any of Mr. Wise's proposed appointments.

WILL REBUILD.

Tuesday night Winans Bros. lost an other fish wheel, it washing down stream This makes the fifth lost during the recent freshet, and will foot up a loss of several thousand dollars. It is particularly heavy on them at this time; but with pluck which insures success they are determined to rebuild, and, if possible, by attention to business, to recover the losses they have suffered .-The Dalles Times.

MOODY AND LUTHER.

Luther's Battle Hymn, "A Mighty Fortress is Our God," which in recent years has become quite a favorite in non-Lutheran circles, was sung by a choir of 1,500 voices, and orchestral ac companiment, in one of D. I. Moody's meetings in Washington city, and with the music coming down from Luther's own pen.-The Young Lutheran.

RED SELDOM BECOMING.

It is a great mistake for most women to wear red in any shade. If there is any color in the face the least bit of red near it will bring out a dreadful most ugly. Those who are excessively pale, on th econtrary, will find vivid scarlet will make very Snow Queens of them. It should be adopted in profusion by the pallid, and by them alone.

The business man who says that advertising does not pay does not advertise. He is the one that always doubts the prosperous trade reports he hears of his competitor, who does advertise. He sits in the back of his store, smokes his pipe and wonders why he isn't making street, in McClure's, to First any money. He has the blues when he should have trade. He not only lets his neighbor get that neighbor's share of the business, but a good part of his also. He sees people whom he thought old friends of his go into his competitor's store and come out with bundles of goods, when he has the same articles on his shelves, and perhaps at lower prices than they paid his competitor for them. Why is this so? It is because his competitor lets the public know in an intelligent way through the local papers Fifteenth street. West Seventh street, in Shively's, to what he has to sell and when he has it. The successful advertiser looks after his advertising space as he does his Eighteenth street.

He feels that to make money he must brick shade in the complexion that is be willing to spend some; that there is strong competition in all lines of business, and to get his share of the trade he must advertise, and to do it in the most skillful and intelligent way. If he cannot write advertising matter himself he seeks the aid of some one who has made the writing of advertisements study-some specialist, who will see that it is properly written in a catchy and displayed way-some one whose duty it is to take off the shoulders of a busy man all the worry of making up an ad No business man attempts to cure his own sickness, pull his own teeth, make his own clothes or attend to his own law cases. He employs specialists for each of these various services, and saves money by doing it. It is through its language and arrangement that ar advertisement gets its business-bringing qualities. There must be something to attract public attention and hold it something of interest, something out of the ordinary, something that is different from others of the same line of business. To give it these peculiar features requires experience, and the owner of The Astorian has engaged the services of such a specialist for the benefit of its advertising customers who may wish to take advantage of his services. The Evening Star, of Washington, D. C., has an advertisement writer connected with its business department, and its terms to advertisers are, "So much blank space, so much money.
