FRANCE IN MOURNING.

Her President Stabbed in the Streets of Lyons.

AN ANARCHIST THE ASSASSIN
The World Shocked by the News, and Condolence and Sympathy Universal.

Associated Press.
Paris, June 25.—President Carnot was assassinated last night by an Italian anarchist named Cesare Givovanni Santo, at Lyons, where he was visiting in connection with the international exhibition.

He was stabbed near the heart while sitting in his carriage, which was being slowly driven to the theatre, in the midst of a throng in the street.

Deep sorrow, dismay and anger prevail throughout France, and telegrams of sympathy are pouring in from all points. Newspapers of all shades of opinion deplore the assassination. Throughout France flags are at half mast, and the public buildings are draped. Mme. Carnot, accompanied by her three sons, arrived at Lyons this morning. She proceeded immediately to the prefecture, where the body of the late president reposes in state. The death chamber was cleared and the family left alone. It is stated that Mme. Carnot desires the body embalmed, and it will be removed from Lyons to this city. The body is to lie in state in the chapel of Elysee palace. A strong detachment of troops is guarding the building in which Giovanni Santo, the assassin, is confined. On the boulevard scenes of the greatest excitement are witnessed today. Several Italian flags which are displayed out of sympathy with France's loss, draped with crepe, were hooted at and at last torn into shreds. In every quarter fierce demonstrations against Italian residents have taken place. Nearly all the Italian cafes and restaurants have been closed, but the feeling against Italians is strong, and the sentiment of hatred with which the majority regard the anarchist is still stronger. This murderer Santo has boldly asserted that he is an anarchist. It is reported that the police are convinced the assassination of Carnot is the result of a plot. The weapon used by the murderer was a long, triangular blade of stiletto pattern. Upon the blade are engraved the words "Record, of Toledo." The sheath of the weapon is of velvet, with red and black stripes.

President Carnot's last words were: "Thank you, my friends, thank you." It is believed that ex-Premier Casimir Perrier, now president of the chamber of deputies, has the best chance of succeeding the late president.

There no longer seems to be much doubt that the assassination was the result of an anarchistic conspiracy to avenge the deaths of Vaillant and Emile Herr. Twenty detectives have gone to the Cete department, where Santo recently domiciled, to track down the supposed accomplices.

The announcement of the death of President Carnot was formally made in the chamber of deputies today by Premier Dupuy, and in the senate by M. Chamella-LaCeur. The chamber of deputies was thronged to the utmost, and there was great excitement when Premier Casimir Perrier entered. Every person present arose and remained standing while the president of the chamber of deputies read M. Dupuy's letter making the formal announcement of the death of Carnot, and adding that the whole of France was stupefied by the abominable crime. The senate and the chamber of deputies will assemble in the electoral congress at Versailles at 1 p. m. Wednesday, for the purpose of electing a successor. Police inquiry late this afternoon resulted in obtaining the following facts in regard to the assassin's movements previous to the crime: Santo missed the train running direct to Lyons from Cete on Saturday, and had to go to Montpellier, France, and to Vienna. From there he was unable to pay his fare on the train to Lyons, and having only 60 centimes in his pocket was obliged to walk the 30 miles. He arrived at Lyons the same afternoon.

Although no formal order has yet been made, it is understood the petition will be granted and that McNeill will be appointed receiver.

LOTAN'S RETRIAL BEGUN.
Portland, Or., June 25.—The second trial of James Lotan, ex-collector of customs; S. Beck and E. P. Thompson, on a charge of conspiracy to land Chinese illegally, began in the United States district court today.

EFFECT AT WASHINGTON.
The President Issues a Message and Congress Adjourns.
Washington, June 25.—The president this morning sent the following message to congress:
"The shocking intelligence has been received that the president of France met his death yesterday at the hands of an assassin. This terrible event which has overthrown a sister republic cannot fail to deeply arouse the sympathy of the American nation, while the violent termination of a career promising so much in aid of liberty and in advancing civilization should be mourned as an affliction to mankind."
"GROVER CLEVELAND."
The death of President Carnot was the subject of prayer by Dr. Millburn in the senate, and after the reading of the president's message a resolution of condolence was adopted and the senate adjourned until tomorrow.

No business was transacted in the house, and after the president's message had been read it adjourned, as a mark of respect to the death of President Carnot.

The following message was sent by the state department:
"Eustis, Ambassador, Paris, France: Express to the minister of foreign affairs the profound sorrow with which the president and American people have heard of the atrocious crime which robbed a sister republic of its wise, humane and patriotic chief magistrate."

THE FEELING IN LONDON.
New York, June 25.—The Evening Post's London cable says: "President Carnot's assassination depressed all the markets here this morning, but a better feeling was produced by the announcement that the Italian bourses had closed to express their sympathy and the report that the king of Italy would attend the funeral. The financial condition of America is viewed with some alarm here, but a feeling predominates that the worst is over."

AT ROME.
Rome, June 25.—All the Italian bourses have been closed out of sympathy for France. The Italian government sent a message sharing the grief into which France has been plunged by an Italian anarchist, a man without a country.

CONDOLENCE FROM GERMANY.
Berlin, June 25.—The assassination of President Carnot has created a profound sensation at Berlin. All classes are indignant. Emperor William has telegraphed Mme. Carnot his condolence.

ENGLAND IN MOURNING.
London, June 25.—Following the precedent adopted at the time of the death of Garfield, the British court will be in mourning out of respect to the memory of President Carnot.

A LAW AGAINST ANARCHY.
Capital Punishment for the Members of Anarchist Societies.
Washington, June 25.—William A. Stone, a member of the judiciary committee, today presented a bill in the house providing that any person, or persons, who shall belong to, or who shall be appointed or designated by any secretary or organization existing in this country, or in any foreign country, which provides in writing, or by verbal agreement, for the taking of human life unlawfully, or for the unlawful destruction of buildings or other property, where the loss of human life is probable, shall be deemed an anarchist. Any person or persons being anarchists, as defined by the first section of this act, or who shall attempt the life of any person holding office under the United States, or who shall attempt the destruction of buildings or other property where the loss of life of any such official would be probable, as the result of such destruction of buildings, shall, upon trial and conviction, be sentenced to death by hanging.

A Tug Capsized and Thirty-three Persons Drowned.

New York, June 25.—The disaster caused by the capsizing of the tug Jax, D. Nicoll off Sandy Hook yesterday is rendered more harrowing by the fact that most of the men leave large families. It is thought that not less than 33 persons perished. So far, however, only seven bodies have been recovered. Capt. John Hyde, the commander of the ill-fated tug, is 25 years old. "I could count but 15 passengers on the tug when she left her second stopping place, Pier 3, East river," said Hyde today. "There were five men in the crew, making 63 all told. We were lying off Sea-bright when the wind began to freshen up. We raised the anchor, intending to leave. We were about three-quarters of a mile from shore. The passengers, thinking they might get wet, crowded on the port side. I asked them to divide and a part to take the starboard side. No heed was paid. The sea was somewhat choppy, but not what could be called heavy. We were in no apparent danger, except for the people crowding to the port side. I suddenly saw a heavy swell bearing down on us close by, followed by a second. I called again to the people to take the starboard side, but it was not done. When the first wave hit us I cried, 'For God's sake, get over to the other side.' I pulled the whistle rope then as a signal of distress, and being the great danger tied it down. It kept blowing until the Nicoll went down. After the boat had careened under the second swell, Al. Hammond, a deckhand, and myself climbed through the starboard windows of the pilot house and went overboard. There was a life raft near the spot where the tug sank, and I made for it. There were a number of passengers hanging to it, and their struggles capsized it. When I arose to the surface I managed to grasp it again. The crew of the boat were all picked up by the tug Sayre. I am not a drinking man, and had touched no liquor whatever. Had the passengers acted as I told them we would have come through all right."

THE FOOTBALL MATCH.
A Game at Which the Gallant Soldiers Have No Superiors.

The rain on the A. F. C. from going to Fort Canby to witness the practice of the game between the holders of the cup, was in San Francisco, and the home team. Forty-five people were aboard the E. L. Dwyer when she pulled out. On arrival at the fort the grounds were perfectly dry, with good prospects for a fine evening.

The visiting team fully expected defeat, as the home players' record had arrived ahead of them. Sharp at 6 p. m. the ball was kicked off by the visitors, and was rushed into their opponents' territory amidst great applause, but it was soon returned to the centre of the field, and for 20 minutes it was hard to choose between the two teams. After 30 minutes' play the home boys had sized up the visitors, and began to show them combination plays. Soon the ball was shot between the posts, and from then on it was very lively for the Astorians. At the kick-off the visitors put on a spurt and secured a goal, but were severely punished for their trouble, as the boys in blue kicked five goals in quick succession. At half time the score read 7 to 1 in favor of the home team. Five minutes' rest and the ball was put in play by the Forts, who indulged in some pretty work at dribbling and passing, a game very foreign to the majority of the visiting team and the spectators. At the call of time the score stood: Canby, 8; Astoria, 1.

The visiting eleven were short George Smith and Prof. Wright, two men who are difficult to replace. Even with them the game could not have been won.

At the close of the game the gallant boys in blue escorted the A. F. C. eleven and their numerous lady and gentlemen friends to the mess-room of the Fort, and here found a tempting lunch.

The excursion party reached Astoria about 11 p. m. not an incident having occurred to mar a trip which every one enjoyed. The boys found that in their practice game there were some players who were their masters, yet were glad of the opportunity to learn some new tricks, of which they will readily avail themselves in future games. The Astoria team will not be satisfied until they have had an opportunity of showing the gallant soldiers that while they do not excel in the science of football, they can at least show their appreciation of the whole-souled hospitality of which they were the recipients.

HEALTH IS IN DANGER

Cleaning Up Being Done in a Careless Manner.

ALL CELLARS ARE STILL FLOODED
The River Has Gone Down and Reveals Destruction Far Worse Than Imagined.

Special Correspondence of The Astorian.
Portland, Or., 24th June, 1894.—A well-kept rain late this afternoon, the first for some weeks, had the effect of clearing the air considerably after the great heat of the last few days, but had no perceptible effect on the filthy pools of stagnation all over the city, except perhaps to stir them up a little and to cause them to emit, if this were possible, even a worse odor than ordinarily. The manner in which the flood is subsiding is very plain proof of the bungling system of sewerage now possessed by the city, though this is probably more the fault of natural conditions than artificial incompetency. Up on Fourth, and even as far as Fifth street, in the middle of the city, and as far as Tenth in the north end, the cellars are, with very few exceptions, still thoroughly flooded with water, and all the pumping in the world will not get them clear till the Willamette goes down to its ordinary level. This condition is caused by the extremely flat lay of the land between the river front, and the points spoken of, and this same flatness will keep the heart of Portland for a length of fifteen blocks and an average depth of eight, forever incapable of receiving proper and healthful drainage. The ordinary troubles of defective sewerage are of course increased ten-fold just now, and in fact the whole of this flat district is at present practically one large open sewer. The contents of the pipes, backing up in a continuous and heavy stream, have been sent floating into every cellar, and crevice, and hole in the district, and in a portion of the sewer themselves are the contents any more impure than what is exposed to by the names of thoroughfare, but which are really large cesspools.

A well known medical man, enjoying probably the largest family practice in the city, said to me today: "The careful orders now beginning to be perceptible on every side are in reality poisonous gases of very great power for evil. You will find that, if breathed for any length of time, even only an hour or two, it will be attacked by a dryness and harshness in the cords and membranes of the throat. The feeling is really the result of a local fever in these parts. Several young ladies in the families my work takes me among have experienced this sensation, accompanied by sick headaches, and every indication of malaria. The majority of them, desiring to see all that was to be seen of the effects of the flood, have done considerable 'slumming' in parties, and I have had a good deal of trouble in making these young people see that it is positively courting the worst forms of epidemic to continue such a foolhardy practice. The vile smells that you notice right here' (the doctor was standing a few yards from the chamber of commerce building) 'will be especially dangerous after the next few days, when the filth you see floating around now has got well into the decomposition stage. I have been really astonished at the puny and miserable efforts made by the authorities in a city the size of Portland to clean up. They seem to think that talk, and a column of newspaper gush every time one of their employes uses a shovel, is all that is necessary. Hundreds of laborers in this town today would gladly work for nominal wages. I have been stopped today by no less than seven able-bodied men on these streets begging for money with which to buy a meal."

This last experience of the doctor's is, by the way, a very common one. Beggars literally swarm the streets. They approach you confidentially and ask you for food. The worst of it is that it seems to be really food that they want. The majority of them did not strike me as being loafers or drunkards, and all say that they might as well go to an
