The Astorian guarantees to its subscribers the largest circulation of any newspaper published on the Columbia river.

Advertising rates can be obtained on application to the business manager.

This paper is in possession of all the telegraph franchises, and is the only paper on the Columbia river that publishes genuine dispatches.

The Daily Astorian's circulation is five times as great as that of the combined circulation of the other daily papers of Astoria.

The Weekly Astorian, the third oldest weekly in the state of Oregon, has, next to the Portland Oregonian, the largest weekly circulation in the state.

Subscribers to the Astorian are requested to notify this office, without loss of time, immediately they fail to receive their daily paper, or when they do not get it at the usual hour. By doing this they will enable the management to place the blame on the proper parties and to insure a speedy remedy.

Handley & Hans are our Portland agents and copies of the Astorian can be had every morning at their stand on First street.

THE PULLMAN BOYCOTT.

It is difficult to see how the railway employes can justify their action in the Pullman boycott, and it is not likely they will meet with the sympathy usually accorded labor demonstrations of that character. They have no dispute with their employers, and there is no question of wages involved that in any way affects them, yet they voluntarily refuse to perform the duty for which they are regularly receiving satisfactory wages, to the injury and inconvenience of the general public, and the special damage of the employers who will be held liable in the courts under their contracts with the Pullmans. There is no sacred right or principle involved, but simply a controversy between a manufacturing corporation in Chicago and its employes as to whether its business shall be conducted at a loss. It will be remembered that at the outset of the trouble, the Pullman company offered to submit their books to the examination of a committee of the employes, in order that they might satisfy themselves as to the profits of the business, but the offer was refused, and no denial of the truth of the company's claim has been made. The men who are making the public suffer and inflicting damage not only on their employers, but to thousands of other workmen whose occupations are interfered with, by the tie-up on the railroads, have no grievance to redress, and make no complaint of any sort against their employers. So far as they are personally concerned, they did not wish to quit work, and would be glad to go back tomorrow; but are restrained by a strange sense of fraternal duty to those who started the strike. They call their conduct an expression of sympathy with those to whom they are bound by ties of mutual service and interest; but surely it is a perversion and mockery of the sentiment of sympathy to forfeit their own families' means of subsistence, to cause cause the worst possible inconvenience to thousands, and to bring ruin to many others, solely because a comparatively few of the best situated and most skillful mechanics in the world have failed to obtain the price they ask for their services from a Chicago employer. The position of the strikers amounts to a conspiracy against the interests of the country, and it is not at all improbable that the courts may be forced to take this view of it; and the strikers may find before they have gone much further that instead of benefiting and upholding the principle of labor organization, their action has been a direct injury to it. If laboring men of all kinds would do more thinking for themselves, and pay less heed to reckless and often selfish leaders, the cause of labor would be more successful and stand a better chance of winning the sympathy of all classes of people. The mere sentimental triumph over Mr. Pullman hoped for by the instigators of the present trouble, can only succeed at the expense of a serious interference with the returning prosperity of the country, and the sooner the strikers realize this and desist from their undertaking the better it will be for them personally, as well as for all combinations of organized labor.

The repeal of the reciprocity clause of the McKinley act, by the senate on Friday, is, to use one of their own expressions, the crowning atrocity of the Democratic congress. Even under a free trade, alias tariff reform, policy, the reciprocity principle could not fail to be beneficial, and its repeal is simply intended as an emphasis of the deliberate purpose of such impostors and unscrupulous rebels as Vast to wipe every vestige of beneficent Republican legislation from the statute books before they can be called to account by the people in the ordinary way. It is enough to stagger coincidence in the stability of a popular form of government to witness the complacency with which a large number of American citizens regard the work of these wreckers of the national prosperity and credit. In France—or even in England—as past history goes to show, the conduct of these public enemies would have caused a revolution long ago.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to Mr. Marshall J. Kinney and his associates in the Astoria Packing Co., on their loss by the fire yesterday. Astoria has too few business establishments already, and can ill afford to spare one of such mammoth character as their cannery. It is gratifying to know they are so situated as to be able to resume business without delay in another locality.

"BREAKING IN,"
 Many a man has "broken out" in a passion, and felt all "broken up," trying to get a new pair of shoes "broken in." He has had to "break off" many an engagement on account of crippled feet, and has gone "broke" many a time trying to get relief for his corns—the direct cause of ill-fitting shoes.
 You will find all this obviated by purchasing your footwear at the store of JOHN HAHN & CO.

A POINTER
 Many people believe that all blacksmithing jobs are alike—that they are nothing but muscle and material mixed. That is true of ordinary jobs. Brains are also used to make a good job. So is conscience. A job made without skill or honesty is no good. Our work is widely known for its quality, durability and economy in the end.
