

SALMON HATCHERIES.

Commissioner McDonald's Ideas
Regarding This Important Subject.

The State Should Look After the Clackamas Hatchery Before
More are Started.

E. C. Holden, Esq., Secretary, Astoria
Oregon.

My Dear Sir—I am in receipt, by reference from Mr. Mitchell, of your letter to him of the 23d ult. I suppose you remember that Prof. Stone, some years ago, made an elaborate and careful examination of the Columbia river for a site for a salmon hatchery. His report was published in full in the Oregonian at the time. His conclusion was that the Clackamas river was the only suitable location for a hatchery.

I, thereupon, made a personal examination of the site, spending a day for that purpose, talked with prominent citizens of Oregon City, and others familiar with the habits of the salmon and the Clackamas river, concerning the proposed supply of salmon, and becoming satisfied that the site was a suitable one, secured, after a hard fight in congress, an appropriation for a hatchery, and have secured appropriations for the maintenance of the hatchery in subsequent years.

The hatchery has become useless to the government, as the state has allowed the river to be dammed below the hatchery. I have been in communication and have been having correspondence with the United States fish commissioner for some time about the trouble, have written to the Oregonian, and sent for publication a copy of a letter received from the commissioner, and been doing everything in my power to devise some plan by which the fish commission can overcome the difficulties, and to have the state take proper action to co-operate with the general government.

I have suggested to the commissioner whether it would not be practicable to catch the salmon required for the hatchery in traps near the mouth of the Columbia river, and to empoind them there, and transport them in floats to the hatchery. Of course, that would be an additional, and should be an unnecessary, expense.

The result of my labors is stated by the honorable United States fish commissioner in a letter to me of the second inst., which I enclose, and wish you would have published. I assure you that I shall do everything in my power to aid in securing all possible congressional legislation for the protection and propagation of salmon in the Columbia river, but you will see that it is absolutely imperative that the state, itself, should take appropriate action.

Very Truly Yours,
J. N. DOLPH.

Hon. J. N. Dolph, U. S. Senate—
Dear Sir—I have sent to the senate my report upon the salmon fisheries of the Columbia river, and the same has been ordered to be printed, and will be published as soon as the plates accompanying it are ready. In this I have embodied such recommendations as the circumstances of the case seem to call for. I am indisposed to advise any further appropriations for the construction of hatcheries in the Columbia river basin until the state has established such protective regulations as will enable us to make the hatcheries productive after they have once been established. The Clackamas hatchery, from which we had expected each year a large supply of eggs, has been rendered almost useless by reason of the obstructions by dams and netting in the Clackamas river which prevent entirely the ascent of salmon to the hatchery; and the present season I have been compelled to go to the Sandy river in order to secure eggs to carry on the work at Clackamas. It is, further, my intention the present season to operate the state hatchery on the Sluiceway, the state having no means for this purpose, and considering the work important to be carried on.

The work to be done for the Columbia river at present is the regulation of the fisheries so as to permit a portion at least of the salmon run to reach headwaters. I have advised in the report already referred to that the pound net and gill net fishing in the lower river be restricted to the months of May, June and July. I have further advised that no wheel fishing be permitted until the 15th of May, with a month's intermission beginning in August. Should the state adopt this recommendation, the result will, in my judgment, be to permit a very considerable portion of the run of salmon to pass up beyond the limits of the net fishing, and provide not only for an increased natural supply, but also furnish a base of operations for hatcheries on the upper tributaries.

As the report to which I have referred will be of considerable interest to fishermen upon the west coast, I have requested the committee on printing to ask authority for the publication of 1,000 extra copies, which Senator Gorman has promised me to have attended to. I would be greatly obliged if you would interest yourself in the matter, so as to be sure that there is no failure or omission. Very Truly Yours,
MARSHAL McDONALD,
Commissioner.

Blue Devils

The business man who says that advertising does not pay does not advertise. He is the one that always doubts the prosperous trade reports he hears of his competitor, who does advertise. He sits in the back of his store, smokes his pipe and wonders why he isn't making any money. He has the blues when he should have trade. He not only lets his neighbor get that neighbor's share of the business, but a good part of his also. He sees people whom he thought old friends of his go into his competitor's store and come out with bundles of goods, when he has the same articles on his shelves, and perhaps at lower prices than they paid his competitor for them. Why is this so? It is because his competitor lets the public know in an intelligent way through the local papers what he has to sell and when he has it.

The successful advertiser looks after his advertising space as he does his clerks. He changes his ads. in such a way the people are attracted by them. He feels that to make money he must be willing to spend some; that there is strong competition in all lines of business, and to get his share of the trade he must advertise, and to do it in the most skillful and intelligent way. If he cannot write advertising matter himself, he seeks the aid of some one who has made the writing of advertisements a study—some specialist, who will see that it is properly written in a catchy and displayed way—some one whose duty it is to take off the shoulders of a busy man all the worry of making up an ad. No business man attempts to cure his own sickness, pull his own teeth, make his own clothes or attend to his own law cases. He employs specialists for each of these various services, and saves money by doing it. It is through its language and arrangement that an advertisement gets its business-bringing qualities. There must be something to attract public attention and hold it; something of interest, something out of the ordinary, something that is different from others of the same line of business. To give it these peculiar features requires experience, and the owner of The Astorian has engaged the services of such a specialist for the benefit of its advertising customers who may wish to take advantage of his services.

The Evening Star, of Washington, D. C., has an advertisement writer connected with its business department, and its terms to advertisers are, "So much blank space, so much money. The same amount of space, with the assistance of the advertisement writer in getting up ad. attractively, so much additional." The Astorian charges nothing extra, the services of the expert being thrown in.

Progress and Cookery.

"The World Moves."

There is no better illustration of this old saying than the numerous schools now-a-days devoted to practical kitchen processes. These schools have been alert to find a reasonable substitute for lard, the use of which is so generally condemned. This want has been fully met by the new vegetable lard. When science strikes the kitchen, it strikes home and everybody gets the benefit. Cottoline is a clean, delicate and economical substitute for lard—cleaner than the hog, delicate as the finest vegetable oil, economical from its low price and small quantity required to be used.

COTTOLINE
