

The Well Bred Woman.

The funny papers are never weary of descending upon the batteries of your society dams. "How are those beautiful children? I shall never forget how sweet they looked when I peeped in at them in their nursery that day. And how is your precious mother? What a wonder she is! Everybody speaks of her marvelous crazy quilts. And your husband? All the men are talking about him. That speech of his at the club dinner took everybody by storm." And so on, ad nauseam. But it never gets to that point with the listener. "The one thing of which men never tire is the honeyed voice of approval."

If, as Frederica Bremer says, "the great duty of life is not to give pain," your society dams are performing the great duty of life with admirable success. She not only does not give pain, but she bestows positive pleasure. Even to those who know that her words are meant only to smooth the passing moment and must not be taken too seriously her little "euphemisms" are grateful.

Among the better class of well bred people compliments are not "laid on with a shovel" nor "dragged in by the hair." They flow easily, for they are the result of a lifetime of effort to make one's self agreeable to everybody, so far as one can do it within the limits of truth. The unflinching plumb of the well bred woman assists her wonderfully here. She recalls clearly at the first glance the peculiarities and the circumstances of her visitor, she sorts out the pleasant from the unpleasant, and she invariably alludes in her remarks to the pleasant. The transplanting, without its luxurious effectiveness, of this good custom into the home life and into the narrow circles of the "outs" could result only in good.—New York Times.

Girls in Business.

Very much has been said on the subject of girls with independent incomes or well to do parents going into business or taking up any means of livelihood, and severe and it would seem very unjust criticisms have been indulged in.

It is claimed by working women and their champions that for a girl with a good home or an income to go into business or take remunerative work to do is unjust to those who are dependent on their own exertions for a living. Just where the justice of such criticism comes in it would be difficult for any philosopher to decide. No one thinks it strange, indeed it is quite the proper thing, when a boy or a girl arrives at maturity, goes out into the world to earn his living. However wealthy his father may be seems to make no difference. Indeed under such circumstances industry and application to business are looked upon as all the more praiseworthy, but for some mysterious reason the girl is not allowed this privilege.

This appears to be but another of the relics of barbarism which unfortunately cling like barnacles to the ship of progress.

Everybody has a right to earn a living or any portion of it by whatever honorable occupation he may see fit to take up. Whether it be a man or a woman matters not.

There is plenty of work in the world for both the boys and the girls.—New York Ledger.

Wedding Wreaths of the World.

The wreath which graces the head of a bride on her wedding day has been sung by more poets, even the great ones like Schiller, than any other chaplet of fame or honor. In the early days the Jews saw in the wreath a sign of what for them was the most beautiful and precious—the promised land—and of the myrtle the bride crown was woven. Later this myrtle wreath became the symbol of womanly purity and as such is worn by every girl bride in Germany. In many parts of Germany the sprigs from which the wreath shall be twined must be taken at a fixed hour of the night between certain holy days. And in both Denmark and Germany families possess myrtle trees which have for quite a generation or more furnished the bridal wreaths at family weddings. In Greece the myrtle and the rose were considered the favorite flowers of Venus, the twining of the two together signifying the union of love and virtue. In England, in France and in Poland, as in America, the orange blossom reigns supreme in wedding chaplets. In Italy the white rose has taken the place of the evergreen and fragrant myrtle wreath. In Spain it is the red, red rose that adorns a bride, and Portugal's wedding flower is the carnation.—New York Sun.

Savage Indifference to Pain.

Generally speaking, the more civilized and refined races are more sensitive to pain than barbarous and uncivilized races. This was proved by Dr. Felkin in a series of carefully planned experiments which he made upon Arabs, negroes and Europeans. The stoical fortitude of the Arabs he considered due to peculiar mental characteristics, of which mental repression, self control and dogged endurance were the leading features. The indifference to pain in negroes he thought was due to diminished general sensibility, and he was led to believe that the relative sensibility of Europeans, Arabs and negroes was in the proportion of one, two and three. A New Zealander has been known to chop off his great toes so that he might get on a pair of boots which had been given to him. On one occasion a native Australian came to a settlement to get a wooden leg, his own leg being burned away at the knee. It had been wounded so severely that amputation was necessary, and as his tribe had no appliances to stop the flow of blood his leg had been simply burned off.—Elmira Telegram.

Only of Secondary Importance.

Parson Scattergood (to his wife on Saturday morning)—I have both of my sermons all ready for tomorrow.
Mrs. S.—What texts have you been writing upon?
Parson S.—Texts? Oh, I've just got through writing the sermons. Haven't had time to select the texts yet.—Boston Courier.

Hunted by Wolves From Wolves.

Joseph Heider, a homesteader, who lives near Iron River, Wis., had a thrilling experience with wolves a few miles from Iron River Sunday evening. Heider had been out hunting for deer presumably, and his gun was charged with buckshot. While scambling through some bushes one barrel of the gun was discharged, and a volley of shot entered his left arm and right thigh. At the time of the accident it was very fortunate for him that he was near some houses of other homesteaders. After the discharge of the gun he lay unconscious on the ground for three-quarters of an hour, and after gaining consciousness his cries attracted the homesteaders, and they reached him just in time to save him from a most frightful death. The wolves, which at this season of the year are very vicious, had gathered about him in large numbers, and they were making preparations for a great feast. Heider was taken to Iron River, where medical attendance was given him. His wounds are not thought to be fatal.—St. Paul Globe.

How Gladstone's Peers Voted.

It is interesting to note how the peers created at various times by Mr. Gladstone voted on the home rule division in the house of lords. Thirty-six peers, bound to Mr. Gladstone either by office or by direct creation, voted for the bill, while 31 peers who owe their titles wholly or in part to Mr. Gladstone voted against the bill, and four more of the same category announced that they would have opposed the bill, but were unable to be present. So that of 71 peers bound to Mr. Gladstone by office, or who were created or were accorded additional titles by him, 36 voted for home rule and 35 against it, thereby showing a pretty close division.—Paris Herald.

A Hot Metal Route.

The hot metal route at Braddock is now a certainty. Ladles of molten iron were run recently from the Edgar Thomson blast furnace to the converting mill in Braddock. The distance is six miles, which will be made in 14 minutes. The metal when covered with coke dust will remain in a fluid condition for several hours.—Philadelphia Record.

Algiers Has a Stream of Natural Ink. In Algiers there is a small stream which the chemistry of nature has converted into real ink. It is formed by the union of two rivulets, one of which is very strongly impregnated with iron, while the other, meandering through a peat marsh, imbues gallic acid, another ingredient in the formation of ink. Letters and manuscript matter are satisfactorily written with this singular natural compound of iron and gallic acid.—Exchange.

Quick, but Seldom.

Mrs. Watts—Goodness! Aren't you afraid you will ruin your digestion by eating at so rapid a rate? You ought to eat more slowly.

ON THE SAFE SIDE.

Everybody knows this is a good place to be, but everybody does not take measures to be there. An efficient preventative places us on the safe side of incipient disease, and there is no one more reliable than Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in cases where the kidneys are inactive, which is the preliminary to various destructive maladies, which disorganized have a fatal termination. Bright's disease, diabetes, dropsy, oedema, are but the outgrowths of neglected inaction of the kidneys and bladder. They should be checked at the outset with bitters, which will prevent their progress by arousing the renal organs to activity, and thus place those who resort to this saving medicine on the safe side. This preservative of safety also conquers constipation, liver complaint, malarial fever, nervousness and dyspepsia.

IT FOLLOWS AFTER.

—A disordered liver—that you're subject to attacks of cold or chills on slight exposure. You get "tired" easily. The feeling is accompanied by a "liver" digestion, which fails to assimilate the food. This often results in what we call indigestion or biliousness.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets rouse the liver to vigorous action, and this in turn starts the machinery of the body into activity. Liver, stomach and bowels feel the tonic effect, and in consequence the entire system is invigorated. The processes become self-regulating, and a reserve force is stored up against exposure to disease.

If you're too thin, too weak or nervous, it must be that food assimilation is wrong. This is the time to take Pleasant Pellets. They permanently cure Constipation, Sour Stomach, Dyspepsia, Sick or Bilious Headache, Dizziness and Jaundice.

Catarth cured by using Dr. Sage's Remedy.
