The Astorian guarantees to its subscribers the largest circulation of any newspaper published on the Columbia river.

Advertising rates can be obtained on application to the business manager.

This paper is in possession of all the telegraph franchises, and is the only paper on the Columbia river that publishes genuine dispatches.

The Daily Astorian's circulation is five times as great as that of the combined circulation of the other daily papers of Astoria.

The Weekly Astorian, the third oldest weekly in the state of Oregon, has next to the Portland Oregonian, the largest weekly circulation in the state.

Subscribers to the Astorian are requested to notify this office, without loss of time, immediately they fail to receive their daily paper, or when they do not get it at the usual hour. By doing this they will enable the management to place the blame on the proper parties and to insure a speedy remedy.

Handley & Haas are our Portland agents and copies of the Astorian can be had every morning at their stand on First street.

THE RED MAN.

The Indians keep up their sun and ghost dances, which come around regularly with the summer solstice, and abate none of their savage self-torturing features. They mutilate their persons and hang themselves up by thongs inserted through the muscles of their arms and shoulders, and in all ways revive and continue the savage practices common among them when the white man first began his observations of them, four centuries ago.

This, of course, is not true of all of them, as the remnant of certain tribes have developed a certain amount of civilization and wear an imitation of raiment, own real estate, and build and maintain schoolhouses, but it is true of a good many of them, showing that the lessons of civilization most useful to them are yet to learn, and likely to remain so until they reach the happy hunting grounds, where the white man intrudes not, and where jerked buffalo, blueberries and wild rice, with another Indian always at hand ready for scalping, are fixed and invariable conditions. The red man has cost a good deal in appropriations and absorbed a good deal of sympathy neither of which has turned out a paying investment. He has also been perishing from the earth for a good while, but there is something dilatory and incomplete in his perishing, and he continues to hang around in an obstinate, enduring manner, drawing rations and mixing war paint, when there is no war for him to engage in, and hanging for scalps when all the available crop has long since been harvested.

When everything is said in his favor that can be said, the fact remains that he is a mahogany-colored incubus, useful only to enrich contractors and post-traders and excite the imagination of Chicago and St. Louis with the prospect of drawing off the central agency of his supplies from New York. While he remains he must, of course, be supported; but it is not necessary to admire him; at any rate not till he changes some of his habits.

WHERE LIES THE BLAME?

The drowning of Judge E. A. Wiswall at Seaside yesterday, recalls other similar fatalities that have occurred at that place in recent years. Whether these accidents were due to treacherous undertows and whirlpools, or from the fact that the swimmer was suddenly taken with cramps, or otherwise, the fact remains more apparent than ever that better protection should be afforded the bathers at this particular beach. By some means the property owners and business men of Seaside should see that a good lifeboat is kept at a convenient place on the beach, where in case of accident it could be manned at once and help rendered to those who by chance got out too far or are rendered helpless while in bathing. The ridiculously long time it took to procure a boat on this occasion, and laugh it, makes it seem almost criminal that such things are not provided and within easy reach. There is one thing very certain. The hotel keepers and business men of that beautiful resort may growl and grumble from now till doomsday, yet they will never be able to attract the crowds and hold them until the visitors are convinced that when they arrive they will receive some attention other than to get out of them the particular amount of money which they came to spend. There is more than one reason why North Beach secures three guests to Clatsop's one, and the sooner the people who own and control the Clatsop resorts recognize and admit the fact the better it will be for all concerned.

Representative Breckinridge, of Kentucky, has found a new and zealous clerical apologist in the person of the Rev. J. P. Mullally, who takes the advanced and commanding position that "if penitent David was fittest to be king, penitent Breckinridge may be fittest to be representative." There are, however, several lame joints in Mr. Mullally's analogy. In the first place, David was not made king by a popular vote. In the next place he simply confessed his sins without going upon the stump and boasting of them; and, finally, he did not make the extraordinary assumption that a career of infamy and vice was a necessary qualification for the representative of a virtuous constituency. The Kentucky idea, as expounded by Breckinridge is that a man who points exultingly to his own baseness is one whom the people should delight to honor.

The Poles who have come to this country had originally a great deal of good will to go on. The memory of Polish patriots who fought was dear to the people; but the Poles that have been imported to take the place of strikers have become, with the assistance of the Hungarians, who were also held in high estimation, the most unreasonable and desperate of the rioters in the case of strikes. The fault is to be found in the educational perversities of despotism, and the effort to import labor to break the labor market.

A dangerous derelict, the hull of the abandoned British schooner Golden Rule, is reported as floating directly in the track of the fast transatlantic steamships. Unless it is speedily destroyed, there will be danger of a disastrous wreck—possibly of the mysterious disappearance of one of the ocean greyhounds. To insure safety at sea, it may soon be necessary to have ocean patrols to see that the way is clear as it is to have track-walkers on railways.

OREGON NOTES.

It is now certain that the Oregon hop yield for 1894 will be the largest ever known in its history of the state.

There's one man in the Southern Pacific Company's employ that can not be "sat upon" with impunity, and that is Mr. Spear, the new baggage agent at Ashland.

The Albany shop keepers are howling because so many of their young lady customers who are generally too weary to carry home a spool of thread, have taken up mountain climbing as a fad.

A young lady of Jacksonville whose sweetheart sent her a baby alligator, purchased at the Midwinter fair, poured Florida water on it to make it grow faster.

Because one of Portland's daughters at the beach has fallen in love with a man fully fifteen inches taller than she is, she has gone to using giant powder on her face.

They still sit on horsehair sofas at Ashland and write album verses.

Richard Brandon was the first soldier to die at the new soldier's home at Roseburg, and was buried at the home cemetery.

Bill Anderson, a saloon man at Salem, invited some ladies who called for a church subscription to take some beer. They accepted his invitation, which was too much for the knight of the bar, and he wrote his check for a liberal amount.

The joy that a mother knows when she learns by actual sight and feeling, that the baby's tooth has come at last, has swept through Hillsboro, as she is to have a condensed milk factory with a capital stock of $25,000.

What became of several head of cattle that disappeared about Ashland Butte is no longer a mystery. A 500 pound bear was killed in that vicinity Tuesday last.

'Tis a year ago since Geo. E. Bloomer, defaulting cashier of Jackson county, took to reading railroad guides in order to decide where not to go.

A Sherman county man whose life has been despaired of, but whose affliction is such that he can eat anything his appetite craves, has ice cream every day. Perhaps he does not expect to see any more after leaving this earth.

ELECTION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that an election will be held in the city of Astoria by the taxpayers thereof, on Tuesday, the 21st day of August, 1894, for the purpose of authorizing or refusing to authorize said City and the Common Council thereof, to appropriate, condemn by proper actions, and pay for a strip of land two rods wide from the reservoir sight in said city recently purchased from Chas. Shively, adjoining Blocks 6 and 7, of Central Astoria, as laid out and recorded by B. Van Dusen and others, on the east, and more particularly described in the deed therefor, recorded at page 290 of Book 28 of the records of conveyances for Clatsop county, Oregon, to a parcel of land on Bear Creek purchased in a rectangular form from Aug. Wedin, out of the extreme southwest corner of the southeast quarter of section 2, in township 7 north, of range 8 west, of the Willamette meridian, and 1400 feet long from north to south and 600 feet wide from east to west, and more particularly described in the deed therefor, recorded at page 2, of Book 28 of the records of conveyances for said county, as a right of way for a conduit or water pipe to supply said city with water from said creek. The polling or voting place for said election will be at Rescue Engine House, on Commercial street, and will be open for the reception of votes from nine o'clock a. m., until six o'clock p. m. of said day of election.

By order of the Common Council,
K. OSBURN,
Auditor and Police Judge, City of Astoria,
Astoria, Oregon, August 9th, 1894.

A GOOD THING

is always limited. This is a well-known fact, and, therefore, it is not strange that the country has been flooded with condensed milk, said to be just as good as the Gail Borden Eagle Brand.

Experience has proven that it has no equal. It stands to reason that the superior facilities of the New York Condensed Milk Company, with persistent, conscientious, scientific study of the production of milk, give it a decided advantage. Consider this.
