FOREIGN IMMIGRATION.

The increase in the number of steerage passengers outward bound over those arriving, and which has been noted for some months without abatement, is taken to mean that the tide of immigration, for the time being at least, has turned, and that the emigrants exceed the immigrants very considerably.

In its efforts to elevate the price of corn last week it is noticeable that the drought was, as usual, assisted by the labors of the slow but industrious chinch bug.

The phonograph repairing business has struck a boom since the great American public has been struggling with the names of those Oriental war leaders.

There is grave reason to fear that some of those profound statesmen in Washington have worn out their minds by changing them so often.

A prominent feature of last week's corn market in the East was that the thermometer journeyed hand in hand with the market.

Blood flows in China, and the coming social season will probably witness a big increase in those fashionable "pink teas."

Clearance-sale, job-lot, weather-beaten schedule remnants. Apply to the tariff-conference committee.

decorating the business blocks and residences of the city before the first of the regatta races occur.

There is nothing that will add more warmth to the occasion than to see the whole city a profusion of flags and bunting, and it is to be sincerely hoped that the citizens will leave nothing undone to make this feature of the Yachting Carnival a success.

After the tariff row, the corn flurry, and the wonderful way in which Mr. Corbett is astonishing the New York reporters with tales of European travels, the country awaits with confidence the coming magazine article on sun spots and their influence.

Li Hung Chang's calling card looks familiar. Every patriotic American who celebrates the Fourth of July appropriately has seen the same thing on his fire-cracker packages.

If the price of corn and wheat keeps going up the calamity howlers will be out of a job, and the happy Democrat will be in a position to say modestly, "We Democrats did it."

That anxious, care-worn look, reported of late to be on the flabby physiognomy of the sea serpent is undoubtedly the result of those Chinese names journeying over the cables.
