The Astorian guarantees to its subscribers the largest circulation of any newspaper published on the Columbia river.

Advertising rates can be obtained on application to the business manager.

This paper is in possession of all the telegraph franchises, and is the only paper on the Columbia river that publishes genuine dispatches.

The Daily Astorian's circulation is five times as great as that of the combined circulation of the other daily papers of Astoria.

The Weekly Astorian, the third oldest weekly in the state of Oregon, has next to the Portland Oregonian, the largest weekly circulation in the state.

Subscribers to the Astorian are requested to notify this office, without loss of time, immediately they fail to receive their daily paper, or when they do not get it at the usual hour. By doing this they will enable the management to place the blame on the proper parties and to insure a speedy remedy.

Handley & Hans are our Portland agents and copies of the Astorian can be had every morning at their stand on First street.

COCHRAN AND WILSON.

The Hon. Bourke Cochran has been making speeches in West Virginia for Mr. Wilson. Cochran is a self-sacrificing sort of citizen. The more he is put upon the more fragrant his eloquence. He rises to great heights, and soars and sails and swings and flops. After dragging Hill into the rapids to shoot Niagara, he floats far away to arouse the echoes of the Virginia mountains. He was under obligations to Wilson, for he said in the house that Mr. Wilson was a "pathetic figure," and added:

"The measure which we are now asked to pass through this house and to make the permanent law of this country is a more obnoxious protective measure than the McKinley act, which it is designated to supplant. (Cries of dissent on the Democratic side and jeers.) Mr. Speaker, I am addressing myself to the intelligence of the house; its ignorance I cannot enlighten in twenty minutes. (Applause on the Republican side.)

"Mr. Speaker, I repeat that this is a more obnoxious protective measure than the McKinley act, and I hope to prove it. What is the principle that underlies the law? * * * those who openly support protection on the other side at least believe in its value, but we who know what protection really is when we give it to a few individuals and deny it to others, or when we bestow it upon our citizens in unequal proportion, are committing a crime with our eyes wide open; we are hugging to our breasts the enormity that we affect to despise, and that we have not hesitated to denounce."

This was about the very bill now a law—a more obnoxious protective measure than the McKinley act."

FALL IN LINE.

Mr. G. Wingate has been appointed by the Water Commission to call upon the owners of property along the route of the proposed pipe-line, for the purpose of hurrying up the deeds to the right-of-way.

There should be no opposition presented when Mr. Wingate calls. He should be assisted in every way, in closing up the matter, and the only way to do this is for the property owners to turn over their deeds to one of the city banks as called for in the encrow.

With the deeds all in the Water Commission will be able to go ahead with the work of clearing up the right-of-way and building the proposed road.

This means that during the winter thousands of dollars will be expended in this work, and the money will go directly into the pockets of the workmen of this city, which fact alone is sufficient to warrant a hasty action of the property holders.

It would seem, after all, Ambassador Bazard means to go back in a month to the island where prayer is universal before breakfast and the use of bad language is unknown. It is just a little bit awkward that the British accepted Mr. Bazard's unreserved tribute as something funeral in its nature, and inferred that by meant it as a personal farewell incident to the return contemplated to the city of his affection.

Wilmington, where his education began, according to the prescription of Dr. Hymen, a century before he was born. Perhaps Mr. Bazard anticipates the downfall of the British Empire, and proposed to say a good word for it before the collapse. It was very kind and sweet of him, anyway.

Ex-President Harrison says: "The president and vice-president are as a rule, never very intimate while in office. The contrary was the case with relation to Mr. Morton and myself. Our relations were the friendliest, and our families were intimate. Mr. Morton made a most admirable vice-president, and presiding officer of the senate. He went there new to the position, but very quickly acquired a knowledge of parliamentary law. He presided in a way which made him popular with both parties in the senate. Mr. Morton is a man of extraordinary ability. His character is clean, and he is well equipped for any position."

M. Anatole Leroy-Beaulieu, in his work on Russia, gives this favorable mention of the Czar:

"At all times the sworn enemy of abuses and of corrupt men—profoundly honest himself and unable to tolerate dishonesty about him—impervious to the feminine blandishments to which his father so easily succumbed—combining, unlike the latter, the virtues of the private man with the sovereign's noble aspirations—incapable of any weakness or low compromise with conscience for the benefit of favorites of either sex—scrupulously thrifty in the use of the public wealth, and filled with the sense of the sacredness of his mission, Alexander III appears to be, personally, better qualified than any of his predecessors to deliver the state from the hideous canker that gnaws at its vitals."

The alleged industrial "General," named Kelly, who persevered for a long time in a parade of tramps, has been seized with state sovereignty views, and will change his line of operations. It occurred to the "general" that a movement on congress is not likely to be a success, and he proposes there should be concentrations of tramps on political picnics on the several state capitals. It is just as well there is a change. The people will not consent another summer to be black-mailed by herds of loafers, who did not want to work, and put themselves into a movement that was scandalous and hopeless. Let the sovereign states look after their several loafers.

In an article regarding sea lions, which appeared in yesterday's Astorian, an oversight of the proof reader caused the length of the male specimens to read "eleven miles," which, as everyone knows, who is familiar with these amphibious animals, is several miles longer than they really are. We can vouch for the "brand" used by the hapless proof reader.

The Chinese language contains 40,000 characters. This may explain why their generals can't get through giving out an order until the army has been whipped.

Any citizen of New York who starts a rumor that he is to be a Lexow witness can easily secure a trip to Europe at the expense of the police.

The immigration bureau will increase its efficiency by catching a few less coachmen and a few more anarchists.

The Chinese commander who loses his head, metaphorically speaking, is apt to also lose it, literally speaking.

EXTENDED SYMPATHY.

"Do unto others as you would have others do unto you," is sympathetically shown in the following lines, the presumption being that sympathy is born, or akin to pain or sorrow:

"Gentlemen:—Please send Krause's Headache Capsules as follows: Two boxes to Flora Seay, Havanna, N. Dak. Two boxes to Lillie Wilcox, Brookland, N. Dak. I have always been a great sufferer from headache and your Capsules are the only thing that relieves me." Yours very truly, FLORE SEAY, Havanna, N. Dak.

$100 REWARD, $100

The reader of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical world. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Sold by druggists, 75 cents.
