

Is there A man

With soul so dead that he isn't willing to save a dollar or two on his clothes and buy them at home? We believe not. We believe that the only reason we haven't five times more business in men's suits is simply because enough men have not inspected our lines. Once a looker, always a buyer. We certainly would like you men to look at the grand suits we sell as $35.

CHAS. McDONALD, The Tailor. 523 Commercial Street.

THE BEST

Goods to get for the money—are what we sell. We have the best reasons to attend to business courteously and strictly. We only have the Hope brand of whiskey, and are selling more of it every day. Its goodness and our customary business methods answer to make it well known.

All persons who would like to know where those gambling pits are, and by whose authority they are kept running, are most cordially invited and you will find out.

Captain Richardson, of the Columbine, left for Portland last evening on a three-days' leave of absence. The ship is at the buoy station undergoing a thorough cleaning. Her double bottom will be inspected and cleaned, the boilers blown out, and many parts of the machinery tightened up. When a vessel is at sea for a few weeks it is a hard matter to keep certain parts from working loose, and it becomes necessary to haul up for a day or two now and then and go over the whole ship. Usually on such occasions as this point is used very freely, and the boat appears as clean and bright as when first placed in commission.

The Astorian is in receipt of some new hydrographic maps of the North Pacific ocean, forwarded by Lieut. Calkins, of the branch office at Portland. They are especially interesting to the mariner, as they show the location of several new shoals that do not appear on the maps issued three months ago. It shows the location of the log raft which went to pieces on October 16, and adds that the drifting logs will probably find their way to the west coast of Vancouver Island, but in this statement the hydrographic department is wrong, as most of the logs are already on the beaches between the Nehalem river and the mouth of the Columbia river. The wreckage of the brig T. W. Lucas is shown directly in the course of sailing vessels from San Francisco to the straits of Juan de Fuca, and the recent location of several large logs and pieces of wreckage. The storm map of the North Pacific ocean is a neat piece of work and very interesting.

QUICK ACTION DEMANDED.

Astoria, Oregon, Nov. 16, 1894.

To the Editor:—

In connection with my suggestion yesterday and the day before, that the city undertake the construction of the Young's Bay bridge, I want to say, that while the summer of 1895 seems, at present a long way off, if we are going to carry the enterprise through before that time, we must think and move rapidly. While the first of July next (which is the latest day on which the bridge should be in operation) is over seven months in the future, when we realize that to carry forward the project, our corporate limits must be extended, the charter must be amended to authorize the issue and sale of bonds and the construction and operation of the bridge, the present bridge and its purchase, or a franchise obtained for an entirely new bridge and the bonds sold, before the matter of constructing the bridge (which will take three or four months' time) can be entered upon, it will be seen that there is no time for delay.

The legislature meets in January, and such legislation as is required for the purpose should be prepared at once, in order that it may be introduced the first day of the session, and pushed rapidly forward, to avoid the inevitable delay occasioned later in the term by the press of matters of general legislation.

I would suggest that a meeting of property owners be held, not later than the 25th of this month, and that committee be appointed therefrom to take the necessary steps to have this enterprise pushed to completion at the earliest practicable date.

As the question of ownership and operation of this kind of property is a new thing for our city, I had intended, in this communication, to call the attention of our citizens to some of the methods existing in other municipalities; but owing to press of business matters I have been unable to take up that subject today. However, with your permission, I will tomorrow give some data showing that the ownership and control of bridges, ferries, street car lines, etc., is not new in some of the older cities, both in this country and in Europe; but on the contrary, they are owned and operated to the great advantage, financially and otherwise, of said cities, and the drift of public sentiment is strongly in the direction of municipal ownership and control of those matters.

MOSSBACK.

COMMUNICATED.

Editor Astorian:—

I have read the articles lately appearing in your paper signed "Mossback," with much interest, and their perusal has suggested an idea to my mind which I think is worthy of consideration in connection with the plan proposed by Mossback. There has always been more or less disposition on the part of the promoters of the town-site called Flavel to see in their proposed town a rival to Astoria, and I have no doubt, in the mass of advertisements sent out as descriptive of Astoria and its surroundings, the impression has been or is likely to be created abroad, that some such rivalry will really exist when the long looked for period of development sets in. While some of us who live and own property here may scorn the pretensions of the Flavel boomers, yet the fact that two independent towns exist or may in future exist so close to each other, cannot fail, in some degree, to hurt the prospect of both; to say nothing of the waste of money and advertising skill involved in placing in apparent opposition two towns which really constitute part and parcel of each other, and which should be made to grow in harmony together.

Now, since the plan of municipal ownership and control of the bridge across Young's Bay, as suggested by Mossback, is so feasible that it appears to be the proper scheme for Astoria to adopt without delay, why would it not be wise, at the same time, to extend the corporate limits of Astoria so as to include the town of Flavel and all the intermediate territory, thus ending the question of any future rivalry between the two places, and giving them both the mutual benefit of whatever peculiar advantages either may now possess.

I should like to know what Mossback thinks of this suggestion, and if he is disposed so to do. I hope he will discuss it as an additional inducement and reason why the city of Astoria should own and operate the Young's Bay bridge, rather than any railroad or other private corporation.

JAMES W. WELCH.

THE NEW STYLE CHOP HOUSE.

Tomorrow, Sunday, will witness the opening of the finest short order and chop house that has ever been conducted in Astoria. Mr. Joe Terp, who has successfully conducted eating houses in Astoria for several years, and is considered one of the finest caterers on the coast, has just fitted out a place at 120 11th street, next door to The Office, and will be known as the New Style Chop House. The place is handsomely furnished inside, with chairs at the counter, where one can sit with as much ease as if at home at one's own dining table. Private rooms at one side of the room have been arranged for ladies and private dining parties.

Only the most skillful and experienced cooks will be in the kitchen, and everything that the most particular epicure might call for will be on hand. Fish and game in season, meats of every kind, all served to order. Sunday's dinner will be particularly inviting to the public, when it is known that it will be one of his famous "Turkey Dinners."
