ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE.

The Yales Defeat the Harvards After a Rough Encounter.

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 24.—After each Harvard-Yale football game for 20 years now, writers of news history have been obliged to open the annual record of these encounters with a trite statement that "Yale again defeats Harvard."

This, to be sure, is not literally a fact, because Harvard has since 1875, when the record began, won two victories from the New Haven men, and though again defeated today, the ejections of hopeless disgust over Harvard's performance are not altogether fair.

A Yale partisan tonight said: "If I never before believed in Yale luck," said this man, "I believe in it now. I assure you that while Yale had the better team, Harvard played better football, if anybody can understand what I mean by that."
