Christmas will soon be on hand, and many a heart will be gladdened by the thoughtful remembrance of some one. Imagine if you would receive a "White sewing machine," or a tea set, or some nice ancient vases, a carving set, a set of silver-plated knives, forks and spoons, or a set of fruit dishes; a silver-plated table set, berry spoons, cake knives, or a nice fancy cup and saucer. While you imagine all this, do not forget that Foard & Stokes Co. keep all this for sale.

The Western Union has made an order that after the first of January next, every operator on the transcontinental, or trunk lines, shall use a typewriter in taking messages. This will not affect the Pacific coast so much as the territory east of the mountains, as here, nearly every office is supplied with machines. In the east, however, but few machines are used, and the number that will have to be purchased between now and the first of the month will be enormous.

A Chicago jury brought in an interesting decision during the past week. It appears that Emory M. Van Tassel owned a grain elevator at West Eleventh street and Thirtieth avenue in that city. He instructed Besner & Benedict, a firm of insurance brokers, to place $30,000 insurance upon it, but they only placed $5,000. The building burned, and VanTassel sued the brokers for the $25,000 insurance. The case was on trial for several days. The jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff, with $500 extra allowance for costs.

It is probable that today will see the presence in this city of another party of railroad men, telegrams having been received by a member of the subsidy committee from Portland, stating that Messrs. Hammond, Stanton and Kimball would be on hand. Just what will be done is hard to state, though many are of the firm belief that a proposition will be submitted. If a proposition goes before the committee, it is hard to say whether or not it will be accepted, though if it be one with any fairness in it, some members of the committee seem to think it will be closed up and a contract let. Mr. Hammond has been down looking over the Oregon Pacific property that is to be sold this month, and for which he will probably be a bidder.

The British ship Scottish Glen, 2933 tons, arrived in Thursday evening in ballast from Sorabaha, Java, which port she left on September 8th. On October 13 Captain Carey, well known in this port, was stricken with illness, and on the following day died, when the vessel was directly off the Foo Choo Islands. He was given a mariners' burial, and the vessel taken in charge by his brother, Douglas Carey, who was first mate. The last time Captain Carey was in port was in 1892.

The Astoria Football Club will open its series of winter amusements with a grand negro minstrel entertainment in Stutz' Theatre, on the evening of Friday, December 14th. Rehearsals have been in progress for some weeks, and the public can be assured of the finest evening's amusement they have had the opportunity of enjoying for a long while. The performance will conclude three hours of solid fun, and no expense or trouble is being spared in its production. The circle consists of twenty-six performers—certainly the biggest amateur minstrel aggregation ever put on the stage in this city. Six and seven will do the honors at the corners, and a large number of specialties, local hits, and uproariously funny character sketches are interspersed throughout the program. Tickets will be placed on sale Monday. Full particulars of the affair will be published in future issues of the Astorian. Residents of this city do not need to be told that the A. F. C. never does things by halves, and its best stage productions will be fully up to the level of its previous ventures.

FRANK TURK AGAIN.

This Time He is Landed in Jail and Taken in Irons to Portland.

The First Mate of the Ecclesfechen and Crew Arrested.

The notorious Turk outfit are prominent again in an apparently dastardly attempt to "shanghai" a number of sailors on board the British ship Ecclesfechen, which arrived in port yesterday afternoon. There were ten sailors in all, and they are now in Portland together with Frank Turk and the first mate, in the hands of Multnomah county officers. They were placed under arrest here yesterday afternoon, soon after the arrival of the vessel, by Deputy Sheriff's Cody and Watson, from Portland, and soon lodged in the county jail, where they were held until time for the Potter to leave, when they were taken aboard. From Deputy Cody an Astorian reporter secured the following:

On Monday last a sailor boarding house master named Wright arrived in Portland over the Northern Pacific with ten sailors. They were at once taken to the waterfront for the purpose of putting them on board the Ecclesfechen, which was lying in the stream. They refused to go until they had been properly signed, when Wright flashed an officer's badge and told them they could either go on board the ship or to jail. They chose the latter, after being told that the British consul would sign them aboard, and were taken off to the vessel. After going on board they were told to go forward, and were kept prisoners that night, and the following evening John Betts, well known in both Astoria and Portland, went aboard, and representing himself to be the resident British consul, signed the men and left the ship. During the first night the men called for help to every passing boat, and on a ship that was lying at the dock directly opposite, the sailors distinctly heard their cries for assistance. The police were notified, and the chief, detaching an officer to act with the harbor officer, gave instructions to go on board the Ecclesfechen and make an investigation. This was on Wednesday, and as the officers came alongside and prepared to climb up the side, they found themselves looking into the barrel of an ugly looking gun in the hands of the mate. They concluded that they had gone on their mission at the wrong time, so put back and reported at headquarters what had occurred. In the morning when the officers were ready for a second attack, the ship had gone. Warrants were at once sworn out by the district attorney for the arrest of Captain George Hinds, Frank Turk, and Arthur Jost, for kidnaping, and Thos. Wright for impersonating an officer. Captain Hinds was arrested in Portland and released on $1,000 bail. Wright escaped to Tacoma, and Turk and the first mate were with the vessel on its way to Astoria. No time was lost, for Thursday evening Deputies Cody and Watson started for Astoria, passing the vessel en route. They arrived here yesterday morning, and notifying Sheriff Hare, had the papers enclosed by Justice Abercrombie so that they could make the arrests in this county. As soon as the vessel arrived, or shortly after, they went alongside with the Electric, and placed the whole crowd under arrest. Turk and the mate on the charge already mentioned, and the sailors as witnesses. From there they were taken to the county jail.

The sailors seemed delighted that they were being taken from the vessel, and stated that Turk had given them clothes in Tacoma, and afterwards robbed them of not only all that had been given them, but others besides. They were being sent to sea with scarcely enough clothes to cover their backs. When the Potter left, Turk and the first mate were securely ironed together. Turk will probably be wanted by the Multnomah county officers, when he gets out of this scrape, on a charge of prize-fighting.

It has been but a short time ago that the rascally Turk sailor boarding house outfit were in a scrape here, similar to this one, in which he was trying to send sailors to sea without supplying them with clothing and other articles according to the contract. He was forced on that occasion to disgorge, and managed by so doing to keep out of jail. It is a pity that such pests are allowed to exist, and there are few here who will regret when this outfit gets its just deserts, which will come sooner or later.

CATHOLICS AND ODD FELLOWS.

The journal of proceedings of the sovereign grand lodge, I. O. O. F., recently held at Milwaukee, and just received by the St. Louis lodges, announces that a committee of three American bishops of the Catholic church has been investigating the order with a view to ascertaining whether it would be acceptable for Catholics to join.

The sovereign grand master says that he complied with the request of the bishops in giving information of the order, so far as was practicable without divulging any of its mystic work. But he would not submit the installative ceremonies for inspection.

In concluding, he says that he has not received any report as to the result of the bishops' investigations, but that it does not materially concern the order, as its doors are open to all creeds when applicants are qualified according to its rules.—St. Louis Chronicle.

Most of the papers are now engaged in giving advice to the state officers elected last June, warning them not to break their pledges, and cautioning them not to fall into the corrupt practices of their predecessors. Perhaps the officers appreciate the situation as well as the newspapers do, and are not in need of admonitions.
