In September last the Tribune re not being then fully at hand, but Sassou, resulting in the slaughter of at all times anomalous and defenceless, oppressors like that at Ezeroum. Their territory is divided between Russia, Turkey and Persia, leaving them no nationality of their own, but only the common bond of their faith and race, which is no buttress against any oppression which their various rulers may them a heavier tribute than the official of robber, acting under the authority of the governor of the province in collecting his levy, oftentimes with as much violence and cruelty as the Kurdish and Turcoman bandits themselves. The fanaticism of their Mohametan neighbors is a constant menace to them, cres like the recent one, century after century, since the Caliphate spread be yond its Arabian boundaries. Some thing protective and effectual ought to be done for this harrassed and be leagured Christian people, almost isolated there in the midst of their oppressors and enemies. That portion of them who since the last Russo-Turkish war, and its causing territorial distribution, are under Bussian rule get on very well, and are adequately protected, but those left to the tender mercies of the Turk and the Persian are in a situation of constant oppression and peril. If the recent massacre be as great as reported, it will arouse in behalf of that people the sympathetic sentiment of the Christian world, and as the prejude of their relief the grand Turk will be called upon to do some lively dancing.-New York Tribune.

The condensed report of the experts employed to examine the county's books-which was prepared at the spechal instance and suggestion of the Astorian, for publication in its columnshaving ceased to be news, through the kind consideration of some employe of the county judge's office, this paper has now no occasion to yield the space required for La re-publication.

In a couple of days the Astorian will give a list of names of property owners who are retarding the work of the mmission by refusing, or to put it more middly, showing utter neg-lect.
