ABANDON THE SINKING SHIP.

Candidates for the next presidential tion on a free silver platform are not to numerous as they were, says the St. Paul Plonner Press, It is both amusing and gratifying to observe the executions with which a certain sort of politicians seize the first opportunity o deny that they ever thought of such o thing, and force a statement of their virtue upon an unquestioning public. Don Cameron is one of these. He voted and spoke, or rather, read a boy's composition, on the side of free aliver in the senate at the last account, and it was understood that all his political resources was to be bent to the with the aid of the mountain states. he should read the Republican party. and stand a good chance of making it a triple fight with no one party in the majority, or else force it to the free aliver busis. And now all these lovely prospects have gone glimmering, and the Republican party is quite good men for those who were in the con andracy. It would not be surprising h evan Jones should feel lonesome pres ently, although he can do what he pisases in the little state that sends him to the senate, where corporate in terests rule, and there is no healthy

A SOBER REFLECTION.

It is perfectly natural that some of he personal friends and old political anapolation of the late Clatsop county candidate for the exaited office of United States senator should take his efeat very hard, and it entirely comiorts with the acknowledged and parfonnible frailty of all human nature that mingled with this disappointment

there should be a tinge of resentment towards the successful candidate at the late caucus, but it is to be hoped in Republicans, they will have the good
