A couple of gentlemen who have been in the city the last few days from Butte City, Montana, have, it is reported, bonded a large tract of land above Tongue Point, and will put it on the Butte markets. Messrs. Hence it is thought that there will be no trouble in disposing of Astoria real estate in that locality.

Within the past few weeks work has gone on at a lively pace on the big wholesale city of Everett to get it ready for service and take advantage of the high tides of winter to float the steamer out of the shallow water at the mouth of the Snohomish river, says the Everett Herald. General Manager McDougall, Captain Buckman, besides superintendent Calderwood, and the officers of the vessel, are giving their undivided attention to the completion of the vessel. It will be ready to move into the stream in a few days, and will be taken around to the mill works wharf, where the tailwaters and other articles will put on some finishing touches.

Mr. Wm. C. Cornwall, president of the New York State Bankers' Association, has written an article for the February Forum entitled, "Should the Government Retire from Banking?" in which he declares that the currency troubles in the United States are due to the government's assumption of the prerogative, rightly belonging to the banks, of issuing notes for circulation, and he explains why this function should naturally be left to the banks in the same number of the Forum. Mr. Alfred S. Holdobach explains "Why Gold is Exported." The principal reason he gives for the constant drain of gold from this country are: disgust of foreign investors because of recent developments in our railroad management; dismay at the condition of the treasury and our currency; and the fear that if they invest money here they may not be able to get back as good money as they gave. He says that no change in this state of affairs may be expected until the government goes out of the banking business and we have a more elastic currency.

CORRESPONDENCE. Astoria, January 29th, 1895. Editor Astorian:—

With your permission I wish to add a few words upon the subject herein to be named. The city of Astoria may well take pride in the action of a majority of its council last evening in refusing to license the variety theatre proposed to be opened on Bond street—or elsewhere, without restriction. The heartfelt thanks and gratitude of every mother in the city, and of all its friends and manly men, is due to those councilmen who so nobly set aside all apparent pecuniary considerations for the higher one of the best welfare of our most precious possessions—our sons and daughters.

Disappointed had men will not be sparing of abuse and denunciation of those who dared oppose them. Let none who approve of such action by the council fail to express it as openly and emphatically.

The eloquent appeal of Mr. Welch was full of the soundest sense and finest feeling, and he was ably and courageously seconded by Mr. O'Hara.

Mr. Young demonstrated his exceptional fitness for his responsible position as a member of our city school board by his prompt action for the protection of the purity of our children. Mayor Kinney also gave his valuable influence on the side of the right.

To all the gentlemen who so fearlessly added us in defense of the safety and sanctity of our homes, and the fair name of our beautiful city, we give well-deserved honor; and we dare assert that neither they nor the city will ever be the poorer for their action in this matter; for money gained corruptly is invariably a curse to the giver, even in this world, and no man ever lost anything worth having by standing bravely for what he feels to be right.

It is, moreover, a mistaken idea that the money gained from licensing evil replenishes the city treasury. The sum paid out for the protection from, and the prosecution and punishment of the criminals created by it, far exceeds that received from it.

We women would gladly "stay at home" if men would, by a proper example and well-enforced salutary laws, protect our boys and girls from contamination; and we venture to act publicly only in despair of any other means. If carefully and properly guided, guarding and training our children into citizens that will be an honor to themselves, their parents, their country and their Maker, is not the "business" and the principal business of women, perhaps some one wiser than our Creator can tell us what is.

He lives with his invalid wife at his country home near Marly on the $100,000 or so realized by the sale of his collection of pictures last year.

For many reasons it is believed that the sailing fleet will have this year good success. All due economy has been observed in the outfitting of the vessels, and a large portion of the business is being handled on a different principle than heretofore. Seal hunters who have been accustomed to making big money in years gone by have in many instances not accepted the cut in wages, but have leased the vessel conditionally for the season. This is one of the strongest indications there are that the fleet this year will do well. About two-thirds of the fleet have now sailed from Victoria, and nearly all are going to the Japanese coast. Two rot away Monday—the Alaska and the Fisher Maid, the former in command of Captain Heiter and carrying a crew of 6 whites and 24 Indians, and the latter in Capt. Chipp's charge with a crew of 12 Indians and only one white man. This year each vessel's bonded stores are branded according to the customs' regulation to prevent the possibility of the goods being illegally used.

BIG LUMBER DEAL. The Bear River Canal Co. of Utah, Buy 1,000,000 Feet of Oregon Fir in Astoria.

Mr. W. H. Rowe, president of the Bear River Canal Co. of Corinne, Utah, and the Ogden Street Railway and Water Works Company, of Ogden, was in the city yesterday. While here he negotiated with local parties for the purchase of 1,000,000 feet of fir lumber to be used for fluming purposes in their canal system. This is the first of several large orders which are expected to follow, as his company have many thousand acres of land over which irrigation flumes are to be constructed. In conversation with an Astorian reporter, Mr. Rowe said:

"In our specifications the engineer calls for Oregon fir, and we have found that it is the most durable timber we can find. Recently we received the last of a 36-car order of Oregon fir from the Willamette Mills, at Portland, and we used it up as fast as received. I find that Astoria can quote us a better price on the lumber than we have been able to get in Portland, and it goes without saying that this market will receive our future orders."

"The Bear River Canal is a gigantic enterprise," continued Mr. Rowe, "and the man who passed on the engineers' specifications was none other than Mr. Schuyler, the expert engineer who reported on your water works system specifications. The source of water is at the head of a great gorge on the Bear River, and the first few miles of flume is through a series of tunnels and flumes built high above the river. After leaving the gorge the canal extends over thousands of acres of land, that before water reached it, was utterly worthless. Where formerly nothing but sage brush would grow on the land, now grows the finest of grasses, grains, and vegetables, and will produce anything that will grow above ground."

In speaking of the Ogden water works Mr. Rowe said: "I see that Astoria is preparing to construct a new water works system. I have had considerable experience in that line, as our company owns the Ogden system, which I consider the finest of its size in the country. It is on the gravity system, and contains 31 miles of pipe. The efficiency of the system was clearly demonstrated during a big fire that occurred at the time of the great strike last summer, when the conflagration threatened the whole city. For hours a pressure of 120 pounds was turned on the entire system, and fourteen lines of hose were constantly drawing from the mains. From start to finish there was no difference in the pressure. I can say this, however, in connection with your water system, the greatest of care should be exercised in selecting pipe. I don't care to say anything against various classes of pipe now on the market, but if the Ogden Water Works was to do the whole thing over again, nothing but cast iron pipe would be used where any great pressure is needed."

Mr. Rowe expresses himself as being greatly impressed with Astoria, and predicts a great growth for this city when the railroad comes. He is a director in the Z. Y. M. I., the great Mormon mercantile establishment of Salt Lake city, and incidentally remarked that from ten to fifteen car loads of Columbia river salmon were used by that institution every year. He returns east this morning, but will visit Astoria again at no distant day.

The federal judiciary of Alaska intend petitioning congress to make an appropriation and pass a law authorizing the appointment of deputy marshals and commissioners in the Yukon country. The miners will generally oppose the necessity of having a court, and for that reason and the moral effect it will have on the community, the miners made the request. United States Marshal Williams, of Alaska, in speaking of the matter said that he and the other Federal officials of the territory, would join in the request. There are upwards of 1,000 miners in the Yukon river country and its tributaries.
