This paper is in possession of all the "wealthy franchisees" and is the only paper on the Columbia river that publishes genuine dispatches.

The Weekly Astorian, the third oldest weekly in the state of Oregon, has, next to the Portland Oregonian, the largest weekly circulation in the state.

Handley & Haas are our Portland agents and copies of the Astorian can be had every morning at their stand on First street.

LEARNING THEIR LESSON.

It seems almost incredible, but there are signs that the Democrats of the country are actually learning something from their recent overthrow. They cannot go back on their tariff performances, because they are too far committed for that. But the Democrats who insisted on holding the party to cheap money, and who made its free silver record for it, are having rather a bad quarter of an hour. The conversion of Mr. Carlisle, to which we have already called attention, and which shows signs of being a permanent affair this time, is only one instance of the conviction that cheap money will not do, which has come to the Democratic party since it was thoroughly beaten. We have some hope that it will learn its lesson from this overwhelming calamity.

A recent dispatch from Washington to our Democratic paper indicates that the Democrats of the capital are preparing to insist upon the point. They have, indeed, facts enough to enforce their moral. There never was anything clearer than the way that the people in the last election struck at the free silver idea. Every prominent free silver Democrat, Bland and Bryan and Fitzhugh, hit the dust. To leave nothing uncertain about it, the voters took pains to discriminate between cheap money and sound money men in the same state. One of the very few Democratic congressmen returned from Missouri, where they turned Bland down, was a representative who had voted for the repeal of the Sherman act. Patterson, of Tennessee, was another of the men who voted and talked against free silver until his associates made life a burden for him, and it was with the greatest difficulty that he secured a renomination. But in the landslide that carried the state away from the Democrats, Patterson escaped with a re-election. It does not take many such cases as this to point a moral.

It is said that the leaders are now determined to close up the party lines on a firm stand for a policy of honest money. It will be the first step toward that reorganization of the party without which it is useless for it to remain in the field. The tariff, as we have seen, offers a more difficult problem, and how the differences that prevail and have prevailed in the Democratic ranks on the subject of protection ever since the days of Sam Randall are to be reconciled, we do not see. But the internal schism over free silver ought to be stopped. If there is any such thing as leadership or discipline in Democracy, it will be stopped. Hereafter the free silver men, under the leadership of Bland and Bryan, have been utterly oblivious of party requirements. No matter what the president or the party caucus might say on the money question, they were bound to speak and work for free silver. Now it is time that the Democracy learned that there can be no such thing as a successful political party without discipline. What, have reverses, have these fellows brought about by their insubordination? The lines ought now to be drawn clearly, and every man who will not subscribe to an honest money platform, should be read out of the party and excluded from its honors and emoluments, such as they are. It is the only way to prevent the sure disintegration of Democracy, and the drift of one wing to the Republicans, and the other wing to the Populists, that has been going on in so many states, and notably in Minnesota. Republicans, as Republicans, could desire nothing better than this. But as citizens, who believe in the wholesome opposition of two parties, they would prefer to see Democracy reorganized on an honorable basis and provided with leadership.

American beef, dried fruit and cotton-wool oil have been excluded from the German markets, as a consequence of Democratic tariff reform; and this is only one example of the injurious effects of the law that was to enlarge our foreign trade, and show how protection had kept other countries from buying our products.

The Victoria Colonist says the new tariff law in this country is calculated to open an extensive market in the Puget Sound cities for British Columbia coal, and that both the Wellington and New Vancouver products are now successfully competing with that of the state of Washington.

An American order for 350,000 pieces of woolen goods, said to be one of the largest on record, has been placed in Bradford, England; and the sheep of Oregon and other Western states are being sold for mutton at panic prices. Such are the benefits of Democratic tariff reform.

"Come wealth or want, come good or ill, let young and old accept their part, and bow before the awful will, and bear it with an honest heart, who mingles or who wins the prize, go, lose or conquer as you can; but if you fall, or if you rise, be each, pray God, a gentleman."

It is to be hoped the discrimination against the Clatsop beaches resulting from the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company's arrangements at Livaco, detailed in another column, can be overcome in some way.

The Nicaragua canal bill will be voted on in the house of representatives tomorrow, and its friends are said to be very hopeful of its passage.

Resolutions commending the president's message are being adopted by boards of trade all over the country.

that it should understand that the money question is settled; and it is a cheerful thing that there are signs that it has learned the lesson.

A bill pending before congress to create a government department of commerce. It is said the late commissioner of navigation, Mr. O'Brien, of New York, has strongly recommended such a department, which should include the eleven bureaus of the treasury department which deal directly with commerce and navigation, and also the bureau of American republics of the state department, the Pacific railway commission of the interior department, the hydrographic office of the navy department, and the interstate commerce commission.

In two years Austria, says an exchange, has obtained through the Rothchilds, two-thirds of the $125,000,000 it is hoarding in order to adopt the single standard, and of the amount secured this year, $24,000,000 is in American eagles. While the Austrians are glad to get the gold for the asking, they fall to understand our system of finance, and no wonder.

The Astorian has already called attention to the importance of carefully considering the charter amendments before they become a law. Some of them are unquestionably very good, and deserve to be adopted; but the taxpayers certainly do not mean to allow the proposed changes in the boards of police, fire, and water commissioners.

POOR, INDEED!
The prospect of relief from drastic cathartics for persons troubled with constipation is poor indeed. True, they act upon the bowels, but this they do with violence, and their operation tends to weaken the intestines, and is prejudicial to the stomach. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is an effectual laxative, but it neither gripes nor enfeebles. Furthermore, it promotes digestion and a regular action of the liver and kidneys. It is an efficient barrier against, and remedy for malarial complaints and rheumatism, and is of great benefit to the weak, nervous and aged. As a medical stimulant it cannot be surpassed. Physicians cordially recommend it, and its professional endorsement is fully borne out by popular experience. Appetite and sleep are both improved by this invigorant and alternative.

Samuel Greenbaum, a native of Great Britain, was yesterday converted into a first-class American citizen before County Clerk Dunbar.

The World's Fair Tests showed no baking powder so pure or so great in leavening power as the Royal.

Thoughts for Fishermen

On a dark, stormy night, when the tide is ebbing fast and the hardy fisherman finds it almost impossible to handle his net, has he ever stopped to think, should it become caught on a snag, what brand of twine would stand the greatest strain? Did he ever ask his brother fishermen what sort of twine they used? If so in nine cases out of ten, if they be successful fishermen, the answer has been "MARSHALL'S TWINE."
