YES.

There is a difference between our tolls and albers that we know of. One difference is the shaping, another is in the workmanship, and another is in he style of goods, Nearly all of ours imported cloths; you can see in list why every third man along the need hasn't a suit like we sold you and why ours look different. It takes now than wood and fron to make the difference between a terry-boat and a cary cocan steamer.

tended to all to attend these services. HOODLUM HARRY.

He Attempts to Knife Ed. Lewellyn Yesterday.

'Hoodium" Harry, yesterday thoroughly demonstrated what a low, worthless cur he has become. It has been said of him that rather than face one like a man, he would sneak up like a thief and cut-throat in the dark, and banditta like, thrust his victim in the back. Of course, such a method of warfare is altogether cowardly, and one other than a contemptible brute would resort tered 3394, John Gay, of Eugene, being to it. But Hoodlum Harry has that sort of stuff in him, and it cropped out in good sized chunks yesterday when he silently stole up behind Ed. Lewelyn and attempted to shove an ugly-looking knife into his back. Lewelyn, who is a teamster for H. B. Parker, was in the little office adjoining the stable An Enthusiastic Meeting Held Last on Parker's dock, busily engaged in shaving himself, when glancing into the mirror he saw Hoodlum Harry with a big knife in his hand, sneaking up behind him. He turned instantly, just in time to dodge the murderous sneak, who said, as he made a wicked lunge at the teamster:

"I've got you at last, you and I'll cut your heart out."

But Lewelyn was not ready to be leprived of his heart, so he watched his chance, and leading out with a couple of sledge-hammer blows, sent the cowardly bum rolling onto the wharf. In a quiet but forcible way he jammed Mr. Hoodlum's face into a pulp, and it is though, broke his nose. The would-be heart slasher simply lay on the wharf and with his dirty hands over an ugly mug, tried to avoid punishment. There was not a large audience present; only a few who had been attracted by the scuffle. After Lewelyn had punished the man what he considered a sufficiency, he walked away and left him lying on the dock squealing like a stuck hog. He disappeared after a while, and it will take several weeks for his ugly phiz to heal

The cause of the attack on Lewelyn dates back a few months ago when he had Maneuer arrested for stealing a float line from him. Judge Osburn gave Hoodium 90 days but after a week or so, let him out with an understanding that he stay away from the burnt district and lead a reputable life.

Everything in the way of improve ments, both public and private, just now seems to hang on the result of the railroad situation. THE CROAKERS REASSURED. Night and the Railroad Situation Discussed.

Last evening the Ancient Order of Croakers held a meeting in Gray's old warehouse on the waterfront and discussed the latest news regarding the railroad situation. Dr. Kinney, during the day, had received information that Starton was coming back to Astoria and instantly the members of the organization threw up both hands, and declared the lig up. It was for the purpose of discussing ways and means of raising another subsidy and making a new start that the meeting was called. Space prevents mention of other than the chairman's address, which was as follows: "Friends and feller-citizens," he said in thunder tones, "we have met here this evenin' to take some action on this yer railroad that is promised us, of we will do our sheer tor'ds gittin' it. Our city for ye'rs has set with folded hands while less favored places has gone to the front a whoopin,' The time has come now when we air called upon to come to the front ourselves. And we have got to do it or bust. Bust, I say, feller-citizens, fer we air mighty nigh busted right now. The railroad, fellercitizens, stands fer progress, and we need progress. Ef we had that railroad today we would be a different kind us people. We would have more'n we hey now, and wouldn't hey to work so hard fur it. Ef we had that railroad runnin' right past our doors and farmhouses and workshops, we wouldn't have to go fifty or seventy-five miles er even a hundred in all kinds of weather to hold up a train, but we could do ti right here at home, and the wilderness would blossom like the
