The tables are turned on the people of Astoria. In place of the stereotyped ble of Astoria, and is a most positi question "What is Hammond going to guarantee not only that the railrou do?" the inquiry now is, What will will be built, but that he foresees Astoria do? No man who heard Mr. future of magnificent growth and pro Hammond's plain and business-like statement at the subsidy committee meeting yesterday can entertain any shadow of doubt as to his intention and ample ability to place Astoria on a more than even footing with her envious rivais on the Sound and elsewhere. The responsibility of determining when and how it sha'l be done is now shifted from Mr. Hammond's shoulders onto those of the property owners and husiness men of Astoria. The problem of whether they can get the railroad this year, or when they can get it, or whether they shall get it at all, depends for its solution solely on the enterprise and action of the people of Astoria. Some idea of the prosperity that Astoria may reasonably expect to enjoy immediately following the completion of our transcontinental connection is to be obtained from a reading of the following portion of an able editorial in yesterday's Oregonian: "Dur-
