As well as want of thought." By want of thought mothers allow daughters to become frail and puny. Over-study in girls induces uterine dis-orders and weaknesses, and blights their future happiness as wives and mothers. Joined to proper hygienic care, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a priceless remedy in such aliments, its value be oming even more apparent every year. Using it, the wan debilitated school girl gains color, flesh and spirits, losing those deathly heada hes tormenting backaches, languor, dejection, and other symptoms of functional irregularities and nervous debility. It never harms the most delicate girl.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

UNDER THE VERANDAH. By Hugh Kal. The present epidemic of deep sea captains in the vicinity of Flavel's dock calls up a few thoughts in connection with that honest, gruff-voiced class of men. All of them have the Captain Cuttle look, and in many ways conform to that gentleman's wellknown characteristics. By the way, how is it that the nether garments of there skippers, no matter how trim and smart the balance of their rig, invariably look two sixes too large? Certainly it is not because they are ship captains, for the same peculiarity is a distinguishing feature of Martin Olsen's get-up. And Martin, as every pants (forgive me, ladies) never see the light of day after they leave Liverpoof till they arrive at this port, and are then ruthlessly dragged out of snugfitting lockers with creases down the front that would drive a Portland dude to despair. The life of a ship's master ashore in Astoria is a short and a merry one. He steps out of his boat, makes a bee-line for the office of his consul, and after he leaves that functionary, acts for a couple of hours Rogers. as if he were a criminal seeking to get away from a posse of detectives. But commandments. He is only seeking to North Pacific Brewery throw off the track three or four representatives of rival butchering establishments. They manage to corner and he resigns himself to each in turn, pormising all of them, probably, the trade of his ship as long as he remains in port. Then changing his tack with all canvas out, he steers for that haven of refuge-the stevedore's office. Here he is surrounded by a crowd of cronies after his own heart, and in the animation caused by their sympathetic string of remembrances, soon forgets his troubles with the butchers, and inis the king of this little maritime court, and from his pinnacle he eagerly answers all sorts of questions relating
