Mr. Hammond. The interview in Friday's Portland Telegram regarding the certain facts regarding a supposed difficulty between Judge Page and Mr. Hammond on the railroad question, must have been written under a misapprehension, as the Judge states that there was no such scene.

It was rumored yesterday that a party of county surveyors who had gone out on the jetty to survey some seining grounds were politely informed by the United States engineer that they must leave. As the engineer had a locomotive with him the surveyors gladly availed themselves of the opportunity to ride back and save a long walk.

A gentleman, in commenting on the matter, remarked that if Governor Penoyer were now in office there would now be an exchange of comments between the state and federal authorities.

A rumor was current yesterday that Surveyor N. W. Raymond, who left here on the 15th to make a survey of the new road to be built from the Necanicum to the Tillamook line, had lost his horse, which had been found near Necarney mountain. It is supposed that Mr. Raymond is walking back to Seaside, although some of his friends are a little hardly possible that as experienced an engineer as Raymond would allow himself to get into any difficulties or dangers and he will no doubt arrive in a few days or send some word.

Suez canal traffic for 1914 is reported by Commodore-General F. C. Penfield of Cairo as follows: The number of vessels passing was 3,352, in excess of 1883, and the amount received from tolls was $14,707,881. In 1914 only 1,844 vessels used the canal. The year of largest tonnage was 1891, when 429 steamers passed through. By reason of the application of electric light nearly 50 per cent of the vessels using the canal in 1914 were enabled to travel at night. Only five American ships passed the canal--war ships and yachts. The British ships numbered 2,394 of 6,009,902 aggregate tonnage; Germany sent 294 ships through France 184, and Holland 132. The aggregate net tonnage of all ships in 1914 was 8,693,108 tons.

The decoration exercises at the Alderbrook school on Friday afternoon were of the most interesting and profitable nature. The songs, recitations, addresses, historical sketches, and concert exercises were all well rendered and of a high order; and for two hours the interest did not flag. Decorating a grave and presenting flowers to the soldiers present by the little folks was particularly affecting and brought tears to the eyes of the old veterans. Visiting comrades Dillon, Weyland and Bushong made interesting addresses, well received and applauded by the children. Such exercises cannot fail to strengthen a love for our common country and for her brave defenders in the hearts of both participants and hearers, and its influence will long be felt.

To one man at least, H. Schoene, the Occident barber, was the most numerous man in the city yesterday. A stranger dropped into the barber shop, and seating himself in a chair, received a neat and refreshing shave at the hands of Mr. Schoene. Leaving the tonorial shop he loitered about the hotel a few moments, and desiring a cigar he stepped across to Theo. Brucher's. Going up on the counter he called for a Hatannah, and was waited on by the man who had recently shaved him. From there to the post-office, where he next went, he wondered if the cigar dealer was the barber or his double. The next place he went to was Alex. Gilbert's dispensary on Astor street, and here he was started to find Mr. Schoene manipulating the money drawer of a nickel-in-the-slot machine. Remaining there for a few minutes, in conversation with the proprietor, he sauntered toward the hotel, but when passing Mrs. Lock's bethoug himself of a refreshing beer, and entered. Standing by the bar he was the barber-clear-dealer-nickel-in-the-slot individual, ready to serve him. It was more than he could stand. Whispering to a man standing near, he said, indicating with a jerk of the head, the man behind the bar, "Who is that man? 'He is a police commissioner.'" was the answer. "I thought so," said the perplexed stranger, "for I have met every place I have visited for the past hour."

A SOMNAMBULIST.

The other night an Albany policeman arrested a somnambulist while walking around the street in his night dress.

When the somnambulist awoke he exclaimed: "Surely you are not going to arrest me; I am a somnambulist." "I don't care what church you are a member of," said the officer, "you can't walk the streets of Albany in your shirt tail if you belong to all the churches in the city."

The purpose of the committee to have the people pay tribute through the schools. This is a magnificent plan, and should be taken up by every teacher, patron and pupil. When children become interested, they are the greatest enthusiasts we have. Interesting them would be the battle won. To do this a gold badge bearing an engraving of this ship "Oregon" with a suitable subscription, could be offered as a prize to the one securing the largest donation to this cause. Such an incentive would call forth every effort of youthful enthusiasm. The badges could be manufactured in quantities and furnished to each school at a reduced rate. Such a lesson in patriotism would not only never be forgotten, but we would have less cause to lament the deplorable condition of political affairs.
