At last the authorities have made as example of a man named Campbell who pleaded guilty to having cut in numerou places, the telegraph line between Tillamook and Forest Grove. He was fined $25 and costs, with a warning that a repe tition of the offense would send him to the pen. The Tillamook line, which is of great value to Astoria, has been an expensive piece of property so far, and it has been months at a time that no comnunication whatever was to be had be tween these points. The cannery interests of Tillamook and Nehalem, as well as steamers plying between this city and those points, are controlled by Astoria parties, making the use of a telegrahy line almost a necessity.

RIVER THIEVES SURPRISED.

One of Them Captured and the Other Escapes.

Early yesterday morning, when the louds were tossing and tumbling and the sky was black as pitch, Officer Seafeldt, while groping about the water front in the rain, captured a prize that is likely to prove of value in more than one wayprobably be the means of breaking up the notorious gang of water front thieves that has infested this city for the past few years.

Several days ago Chief of Police Lough ery received information from the Port-Co., capsized on the Great Republic spit land chief that several skiffs had been stolen from that city and directing that a sharp lookout be kept for them. Satur pants were saved. This is Smith's second day a strange skiff was located under the old Parker dock, and from the time of its discovery a constant watch was H. Bell and Joseph Walsh, who have kept on the frail craft, for it was expectbeen levying property on Clatsop Plains ed its owner would call for it sooner of for delinquent taxes, have completed their later. Saturday morning about 1 o'clock, work and for the next few days will so- Officer Seafeldt was on the watch, sitjourn at Cannon Beach, where a few no- ting quietly in the old coach back of the tices will be posted in the vicinity of Elk warehouse, and directy opposite the skiff. He had just relieved Chief Loughery, who had been standing watch for a while, and had only settled back comfortably when he heard a noise under the dock and slipping out in the darkness, peered over the edge of the dock. He had not long to wait, for shortly a boat's bow came out from under the dock, and in it was standing a man. Either a slight noise made by the officer, or a glimpse of his portly form, caused the man in the bow of the boat to jump head foremost into the water, where he was lost sight of, evidently swimming ashore under the dock and making his escape. The officer instantly whipped out a revolver, and lying flat on the wharf commanded the remaining occupant of the boat, who had World. by this time appeared, sitting in the stern, to throw up his hands. So surprised was the fellow, that he jumped up and went over backwards into the boat arising at once with both hands in the air but not until the officer had taken a shot > at him. He was soon secured by the Now when a watch was put on the skiff under the dock it was not expected that it would lead to the capture of a far more important personage than an ordinary boat thief, but it did, for when the skiff out of which the prisoner was taken was examined, it was found to contain five bales of twine, marked Elmore, Sanborn & Co. This was an important haul, for the bales, which weighed 144 pounds each, were, it was afterwords ascertained, valued at $720. Word was immediately sent to Mr. Elmore, and upon his arrival an examination of the archouse was made. It was found that the thieves entered at the north door by arying off the bottom cleats, and entering by swinging the door outward, unfastening the lock from the inside. After this was accomplished the task of removing the bales of twine was an easy matter. It is thought the fellows intended to make mother haul, after having stowed the to be present and have their book or re-first load away somewhere. At the station the prisoner gave the name of Henry Gilbertson, and claimed to have come here on the sealing schoone Kate and Ann. He said he could not re member the name of the man who jump ed out of the boat, as he had noly me him earlier in the evening, and did no
