AGAINST THE ADMINISTRATION.

The fact is becoming clearer every day that the Democratic fight for free silver is really a fight against the administra tion. There is a teeling on the part of a large proportion of the Democrats that Cleveland's general course has been contrary to the principles and sentiments upon which he was elected. He has disappointed them in every respect. His personal opinions and wishes have been substituted for those of a majority of his party, and he has not been at all mealy-mouthed in the expression of his supreme belief in himself. There has never before been a president who seemed to be so indifferent to the advice of party leaders and the views of the average voter. He has not hesitated to repudliate the Democratic platform and to adopt the Republican decirine with regard to the currency and other financial interdenounced it as a thing of "perfidy and dishonor," and refused to sign it. in many other instances he has asserted his mdence in such a way as to provoke serious criticism and to generate strong and bitter antagonism. His pronounced attitude in favor of sound money is only one of numerous things that make him obnoxious to a formidable Democratic element; and it is easy to see that hostility to the administration is the true basis if the free silver crusade.

In the recent litinois state convention, the speeches most loudly cheered were betriayer of his party and a tool of the capitalists. It was the same in the late convention at Memphis, where he was stigmatized by a United States senator as the Benedict Arnold of the situation. In Kentucky, Blackburn is conducting his campaign on a direct anti-administration line, and boldly proclaiming that the contest is one between the president and the people. Scratch a free silver man anywhere and you will find an enemy of Cleveland. Even in states where the money question cuts no figure in current politics, the Democrats are divided into administration and anti-administration factions. The split would exist if there had never been such a thing as a silver issue. It represents conflicting forces and tendencies which are not fined to this one matter, and which can not be harmonized by any kind of compromise with regard to the currency. The anti-administration Democrats are fighting to eliminate Clevelandism from their party and to restore the sway of the leaders who have been put aside by the arrogance and ingratitude of the man whom they helped to make president. There can be no amicable adjustment of such a controversy. It will have to be fought to a finish; and meanwhile the Republican cause will gain increased strength, and the country will profit ac-

Minister Thompson, writing to the state department, thus discusses affairs in Dru-

"With the exception of spasmodic fighting in Rio Grands do Sul and occasional election disturbances in some other states, notably Pernambuce and Bahla, tranquility prevails throughout Brazil, and confidence in the government seems to grow stronger every day. Several impediments must be overcome before any large increase in the consumption of the products of the United States by this country can be accomplished. The mercantile trade of South America, especially on the Atlantic seabourd, has been built up through English and other European channels, and their methods of doing business prevail at every point. The English prevail in all port traffic. They know the market and cater to the demands of traders. The consumers of Butsil, I. e., the masses of the people, have the most friendly feeding for our country, and would favor American products of all kinds at even prices with compoting goods, but the channels through which they are to be obtained are not established."

cates moreover that the people appreciate the importance of the fishing industry, and its needs of protection, and are awakening to the fact that the prospects and promise for the future growth and development are such as call for their closest attention, care and consideration." .

And we note in the Salem Statesman a timely comment on the same subject, as follows: "If both Oregon and Wash ington had stringent laws to protect the food fishes, and both had zenious officials to look to their enforcement, it would not be more than the future of this great industry demands. We will warrant that no Oregonian will ever interfere with any Washington officer trying to enforce a law of that state for the protection of the fish."

We had it from the highest Democratic authority that the new tariff would stim ulate the trade of this country abroad and yet the exports the first nine months of its operation fell more than $66,000,000 below those of the corresponding months last year under the McKinley law. But this is about he near as Democracy comes to meeting its pledges.

According to the statistician of the United States treasury, the population of And the good little thoughts came troopthis country increases at the rate of about a million and a half a year. On May 1 the estimate of our total population was 69,629,000. That will mean at least 75,000,000 by the federal census of 1900.

The volume of silver dollars in circulation in the United States increased $5,000,000 from December to May. This was due to the increase of business and the revival of industry.

THE FREE SILVER SET-BACK.

Philadelphia Times, (Dem.) The free silver crase has suffered a serious set-back in the national convention of the Republican league. The measure of the defeat of the free silverities can be appreciated only when it is remembered that large delegations from the southern and western states were excelled as the property of the convenience of th especially set up to attend this conven-tion, to storm it with a deliverance in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver on the basis of 16 to 1.

It goes without saying that many of these delegations were arranged for on purely commercial principles, as have been many delegations in the past from the south to Republican national conventions. It is an open secret that the free silver combination has an enormous free silver combination has an enorm fund of money that is being expended freely, not only for the circulation of free silver literature, but for the organization of a free silver element in every state of ents. When the representatives of his the Union, and it was determined some party in congress passed a tariff bill he months ago that this national conventured by the free sliverites, and thus apparently commit the great Republican party to the theory of the unlimited free coinage of sliver.

Fortunately the movement of the free Fortunately the movement of the free sliver speculators was discovered in time and the monest Republicans of the country organized against it. It seemed like a hopeless task when they began the movement, but as in all such contests, when the free sliver craze comes face to face with honest sentiment it perishes like the mists of the morning. There was a stubborn struggle in Cleveland, but the free sliver men were finally compelled to free sliver men were finally compelled to assent to the policy of making no deliver ance on the question, which is an abso sland as a lute defeat and a terrible set-back to the free silver speculators.

The fact that the Cleveland convention of the Republican league will not make any deliverance at all on the silver question is of little consequence. It is not a representative body and has no right to speak for the Republican party. or to attempt to commit it in advance on any important public question. But the facts that the free silver leaders had ex-hausted their efforts and their means to control the convention, and apparently had the absolute control of it until within a few weeks of its meeting, and that they were finally driven to a surrender of any expression on the subject, furnish con-clusive evidence that the free silver craze has met with a fearful set-back ut Cleveland, as it has in every section of the south and west during the last few

It is now reasonably safe to assume that both the Republican and the Demo-cratic national conventions of next year will declare for honest money, and if by that time there shall be any considerable number of free silver fanatics they must flock by themselves.

SCORES THE ASTORIAN.

A Vigorous Defense of the Principal of the Cedar Street School.

(Out of the batch of correspondence received yesterday on the subject of the present school controversy we publish the following communication, for the reason that its whole tenor proves that the writer is probably in greater opposition to our course than any of the others, and because we have all along striven to give Mr. Jackson's side of the casa fair and impartial hearing. We have thought up to this time, remarkable as it may seem to "Pro Bono Populo," that a principal of an important school, having under his charge not only a large number of pupils, but several highly educated and thoroughly capable ladles acting as teachers, should certainly know how to read and spell correctly. But, as our correspondent says, we may not have mingled with our harsh views enough of the leaven of brotherly love and charity, and our ideas may be all wrong. The writer states very authoritatively that they are, and while we are sorry that Mr. Jackson's course finds such staunch friends we cannot refrain from being generous enough to give the fact publicity:)
