IMMIGRATION DANGERS.

With improving times the old danger of unchecked immigration returns with all the attendant evils. During the depressed financial period, immigration, like everything else, fell below its previous records, and among the many unfortunate conditions which prevailed we enjoyed one good of immunity from the previous influx of undesirable population.

The publication of figures showing how immigration had declined in the two years of depression led many people to suppose that it had been permanently checked and that some radical improvement had taken place, either in the nature or the enforcement of our immigration laws. This is a wholly mistaken idea.

As long as it rests with the officers of the steamship companies to decide who shall enter and who shall not, there is likely to be little or no improvement. These officials may be men of average integrity, but they are working for the interests of their companies, not for the interests of the United States.

TAXING THE RICH.

There is an interesting and useful object lesson in the abstract of the taxes assessed for the present year in New York for state and city purposes, as shown by the Globe-Democrat.

EXPORTING GOLD.

The shipment of $200,000 in gold at the close of last week from New York for shipment is reported to have caused considerable talk on the seaboard. Some people profess to see in the movement a weakening of the power of the bond syndicate and others see a suspension that it is a "new attack on the government's policy of accumulating free coinage."

but by the few, that the taxes of the country are principally paid, and all talk to the contrary is refuted by the official figures which are all open to inspection everywhere.

Our state and local taxes consist of the bulk of the aggregate contributions that are required to be made for carrying on the business of government. The federal revenue is obtained in an indirect way, chiefly from tariff duties, but the state, counties and municipalities levy tribute directly upon the property within their jurisdiction, not in a per capita fashion, but according to its value; and the result is that in every community a majority of the people pay most of the taxes.

The navy department, through the construction corps, and special officers detailed for the purpose, is making up a report for the use of the pension department, showing just what American steamers are eligible for subsidies under the law passed by the Fifty-first congress. So far they have examined thirty vessels, including the steamers of the International Navigation company (the American line), the Pacific Mail vessels, and many others of lines plying between the United States and foreign countries.

The money question is being agitated to divert the public mind from the real issue—the tariff. The two questions are bound to go hand in hand. The Democrats want to keep the people from thinking about the tariff for a few years, and they hope that in the meantime the country with its wonderful resources, will have regained its lost business sufficiently to throw the people off the track.

Now that the season for valuing the seaboard resorts has fairly set in, and the overworked business man and tired housewife are seeking relaxation from care and the recuperation of spent energies in a short communion with nature and a dip in old ocean, it is not out of place to suggest that Oregon is far Oregonian, and that our home shores should be paraded in profusion to others.

The mainly deficit will probably grow smaller as business goes better and the period of Democratic rule becomes shorter, but such a thing as a surplus is hardly to be expected until after the inauguration of a Republican president in 1896.

The American people are not worrying so much about the possibility of a third term for Cleveland as they are about the fact that there is said a good deal of his second term to be endured.

Wages are being advanced because the fact is recognized that the next administration is to be a bond-paying instead of a bond-issuing one.

Notice to figure in the statistics as surplus over and above the current requirements. Chris. Cox, has been again in price.
