MARVELOUS RESULTS. From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderson, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make the extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding influenza. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery. It was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Charles Rogers' drug store. Regular size, 50c and $1.

HOW EDITORS ARE TREATED IN CHINA.

Nineteen hundred editors of a Peking paper are said to have been beheaded. Some would shudder at such slaughter, who are heedless of the fact that consumption is ready to fasten its fatal hold on themselves. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the efficient remedy for weak lungs, spitting of blood, shortness of breath, bronchitis, asthma, severe coughs and kindred affections.

Stamps, La Fayette Co., Arkansas. Dr. R. V. Pierce: Dear Sir—I will say this to you, that consumption is hereditary in my wife's family; some have already died with the disease. My wife has a sister, Mrs. E. A. Cleary, that was taken with consumption. She used your "Golden Medical Discovery," and, to the surprise of her many friends, she got well. My wife has also had hemorrhages from the lungs, and her sister insisted on her using the "Golden Medical Discovery." I consented to her using it, and it cured her. She has had no symptoms of consumption for the past six years. Yours very truly, W. C. ROGERS, M. D.

Delicate diseases in either sex, however induced, speedily cured. Book sent securely sealed, 10 cents in stamps. Address, in confidence, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

ALONG THE WATER FRONT.

Several tons of the new wheat feed are expected to arrive in the coming week.

Investors Edwards and McDermott have completed their Southern Oregon prospecting tour.

Captain Benning's two daughters, accompanied him on his trip to Vancouver, B. C., in the Signal, yesterday.

Fish continued to run well yesterday, and by 4 o'clock had just several of the canneries had packed from 60 to 80 cases.

It is expected that the final report of the surveyors who have been working in the vicinity of this city on board the Lincoln for the past month, will be submitted to the engineering department in Washington next week.

The steamer Signal came down the river from Portland yesterday morning with a very large load of freight and several passengers. It was being towed on a car load of salmon from Elmore's cannery, she proceeded on her way to Vancouver, another carload was engaged to go by her but there was no room to take it on the present trip.

The report of the naval inspecting board, of which Captain Francis White was chairman, on the trial of the new cruiser Olympia as a fully equipped naval vessel, says that during the four hours of her trial the ship developed an average speed per hour of 13.6 knots which gives much gratification to naval officers, particularly as the vessel had a displacement of 1,000 tons more than she had on her acceptance trial trip.

When the steamer Strathcona sailed for Yokohama on Saturday night from Tacoma she had a new first officer aboard in place of First Officer Dunton whose connection with the ship was severed several days ago by the Astorian yesterday. Mr. Duncan and Captain Patis have been unable to agree for some time, the captain taking exception to the officer's work. Mr. Duncan did his work. Accordingly the latter secured a discharge from the ship at the British consulate. Second Officer Robertson was promoted to the position of first officer and each of the junior officers was promoted a step.

One of the ships that has been due at this port for the past few days came in yesterday. Whether others that are due will follow remains to be seen. There are about a dozen vessels in the harbor including the Benjamin Sewell, 145 days out from Baltimore; Helena and Port Patrick, 140 and 132 days out from Liverpool; Queen Margaret, 81 days from Hongkong; Sokoto and Sierra Nevada, 100 and 124 days from Liverpool; Lord Templemore, Manxham and Earl Burslem, 100, 134 and 123 days from Santa Rosalia; and five ships from Australia, which are out 32 to 90 days. It is hoped that these ships will come in rapidly. Most of them are under wheel charter, and they will soon be needed to take the places of those loading.—San Francisco Bulletin.

A letter dated Yokohama, June 19, was received in Victoria on Thursday from Captain William O'Leary, of the schooner Geneva. It bears the news already received that the catch this year on the Japan coast is a light one, though the weather has been fine. The cargo was reported "lightening" with something over 1,400 skins; the Geneva had arrived on the 15th of June with 1,137; the Umbria had 1,185; the Ocean Belle, 1,065; Hestia, 575; Agnes Macdonald, 710; Rosie Olson, 655; E. B. Marvin, 546; M. H. Currier, 500; Cox, 500; and Mascot, 730. One of the best parties of the Geneva celebrated her arrival at Yokohama by filling up on Japanese whisky and then a fire of cartridges was being discharged from the foremast and jumping off. He struck the water on his side, but though badly injured there were strong hopes of his recovery.

One of the most interesting jobs in the marine line ever attempted in this country is that of righting the steamship Alleghany, which was sunk below Philadelphia several months ago in collision with the steamship Alleghany. The ship was towed into shore water. The contract for the work has been let to Captain John L. Mills, of Cooper's Point, and he expects to start on the job in the first of this month. It is certainly a big contract, and it is said the like has never been known or undertaken before, but Captain Mills is a confident of his ability to succeed when he bids everything in readiness. Others have bid on the job, but gave it up when they saw what was to be done. Captain Tucker was in command of the Alleghany when she was run into, and he and the underwriters felt that the plan of Captain Mills was the best. The ship's executive ability is not lacking. Meantime the eyes of the maritime world are upon him awaiting his performance of the feat.

The stein ship Max King, Captain Karren, arrived in port about 11 o'clock last night, in view of the fact that she had been in the harbor for several days. She is a typical English built vessel; is owned in the Isle of Man, and is captained by a native Manxman. She sailed from Kobe on June 16, and brings about 400 tons (consignment of China and Japanese teas of this season's crop, and several small consignments of silk and other goods from the Orient). The crew of the vessel were engaged all the forenoon in stripping the ship of her canvas and making ready to turn her over to the stevedores to be unloaded. The crew of the vessel are 400—three men, three women, and three smaller ones, through which the cargo will be loaded. Effort will be made to unload the ship rapidly as the steamer Elsdale is expected to arrive Sunday next or Monday, and cannot be docked until the Max King's cargo is shipped off.

"The rush to Alaska this season has hurt the business of local merchants, strange as it may appear," said Charles A. Crocker, a Southern California merchant, who returned from Juneau a few days ago. "When asked to explain, he said: 'I saw the best grades of flour in Juneau this spring for 50 cents a sack, and everything else in proportion. The whole story is that business is overdone, and that the competition is so strong that merchants are doing business at a loss. You may possibly think it a sore spot to be laid, but such is not the case. I simply went to Alaska to look around a bit, and I found a profitable opening, would probably have branched off into business. The merchant here had no opportunity to invest in merchandising without being kept money, right from the start. This being my honest belief, I of course, have not gone. I believe, though that Alaska is the coming country and there is no question about the richness of the mines. It is too early to go there to make money, unless a man wants to prospect, and of course there are plenty of men in that field, too.'"

D. Drysdale, the well known canneryman, from Blaine, is at the Butler, says the Post-Intelligencer. He is the manager of the two canneries of the Alaska Pacific company, one of which is at Point Barrow, and the other at Seward, employing 200 whites and 150 Chinamen. The salmon season has just fairly begun," said Mr. Drysdale last evening. "We get a large part of our catch from the mouth of the Fraser, but in the fall they come from all over the Sound, some from the Strohmann, the Nozack, the

Our rates are no higher than others, for the same kind of a policy, and our contract is so much more liberal to the insured that you cannot afford to take anything else but an Equitable policy. Skagit and from Hood canal. The first year we used an immense trap, but without catching a fish. It is necessary to study the habits of the fish in the particular water where the operating is done, as they differ. We use largely a purse seine, 150 fathoms in length, and any one would suspect it close in the manner of a purse. They sink 100 to 150 feet in the water, and after closing them we use smaller seines inside, say 50 fathoms in length. The greatest catch this year is one of the latest. Mr. Drysdale followed the salmon business for twenty-five years on the Fraser river. He seems entirely confident that the industry will be kept up and that an attempt to prevent his company from taking fish and intimating that the whole trouble was started by rivals in the canning business.

The officials in re-measuring the steamer Portland yesterday, says the San Francisco Call, made a discovery which astonished how wonderfully the old snagging vessel was built for her former shabby transactions. When Chauncey B. Drayton, the official, and his assistants had carefully worked their tapes round her forebowed they came aft and found a mystery. There was a great discrepancy in one of the greatest dimensions that could not at first be accounted for. After a close examination false decks and bulkheads were found which concealed the true dimensions. The vessel was found to be 400 feet long, and 40 feet wide, and 10 feet deep. The discovery of this increase of carrying capacity caused the raising of the steamer's tonnage just 400 tons.

ANNIE'S 'LEAF'S.'

Annie Martindale was a very little girl. You could count her old story as one of her own small hands. When she had said "one" for the thumb, "two" for the first finger, and "three" for the middle finger, and "four" for the third finger, and "five" for the little finger, you had told the story, for Annie was only five years old.

See only no brothers and sisters, and all the neighbors were grown up people; but she was a happy little girl, and knew how to play story.

This is the way she played it: Mamma and papa had her a story, while Annie listened with all her might. Then she slipped away to act, as well as she could, as they d. d. in the story. It was a story play.

The summer was very dry and dusty, but Annie did not mind, she was so busy playing story. Down the street there was a sick man, he had been ill, and his eyes were closed. Annie stood by and looked at him, and her heart beat fast, for she was afraid. But she did not run away.

Especially did she look at his eyes. He did not smile at the little girl. Instead he frowned. Poor fellow! He could not forget how bad he had been, and he was so afraid of his eyes.

"Do you like flowers?" asked Annie. And her voice was very sweet. "No," said the sick man, and shut his eyes. Then Annie stole out and ran home. "Leaves will do, leaves will do," she said. "I'm so glad."

Annie was standing on the porch reading when Annie reached home. "Mamma, will you let me have some leaves, please? Lots of leaves of all kinds. I've got to make the sick man well." "Yes," said mamma, "I will."

"She did not ask any questions, for she was used to having Annie play story. So she brought out the stop-ladder and the pruning shears, and she cut up bunches of oak and apple and elm and maple and cherry leaves, and some sprigs of hawthorn and rose hedges.

"Oh, thank you, mamma! you did get me a lot, didn't you?" "Give me a kiss for them, darling," she said. Annie promptly gave the kiss, and then began to examine her leaves.

"These leaves are too dirty for the sick man. Oughtn't they to be washed?" "Yes, little daughter, take them to Nora."

"An' it's make!" the sick man well, it's washed the leaves Nora. "Sure an' I'll wash 'em for you. Leaves is an elegant medicine, I'm thinkin', if only you don't be afeard 'em. He'd better be holdin' 'em 'till they are washed."

"Yes," said the delighted child. "An' here they are, clean an' shinin', an' have ye a kiss about ye for Nora?" "The man looked at her. "Hand 'em here," he said. "The child obeyed. "Nothing but leaves," he quoted, sadly.

"Why, you said you didn't like flowers," explained Annie, "and there aren't any either. But I guess leaves will make you well, same as flowers, if you don't eat 'em."

"The man looked at her over the leaves he was leafy holding. "Make me well," repeated. "Yes," answered Annie, confidently. "When there aren't any flowers, leaves will do 'em good."

"Leaves will do the crick the man, and a light shone in his eyes. "Lord, take the leaves, and give me but one more chance for the doctors and the fruit!" "Then Annie went home. But the Lord heard the cry, and gave the man his chance.—S. S. Times.
