STATE NEWS.

Interesting Items Culled From Oregon's Leading Newspapers.

It is reported that three of the professors of the State University are confirmed drunkards.

The Coos Bay News says the fishermen on the Coquille are receiving two cents per pound from the cannery for their salmon.

The customs officers on Tuesday took possession of what was billed as "eight cases of liquor" on the schooner Ewood.

The Florence West says: Protection to salmon is made good of, but seemingly no law can be passed that the people will observe.

The fishing season opened much better than had been anticipated, states the "Daily Times-Mountain," Association.

How a Californian Got More Than He Bargained For.
