A sad story comes from the far away coast of Gaspe. This year the cod fish have not frequented the coast and the Gaspe fishermen, who have nothing to depend upon other than fishing, are at the end of the season worse off than they were at the beginning. They are penniless and on the verge of starvation. Some of the best fishermen on the coast son with a catch of three or four fish. At other times the entire fishing fleet has been idle for days at a time on account of storms and a scarcity of balt. Typhold fever has broken out in severa. of the parishes. Headed by their clergy-men the poor wretches are crying out for government aid, which should be acorded them without delay.

The schooner Arthur D. Story, the first of the Iceland balibut fishing fleet, arrivel during the week, with 60,000 pounds of fletched baifbut, says the Fishing Ganette. Captain Joseph Ryan, part owner and master, died suddenly on board May The crew at the time was out in the dorles attending trawls and as there with great difficulty that he rescued the crew, as a strong breeze suddenly sprung up and the vessel was under way at the time. However, he managed to run the vessel among the dories, and by so deing, notified them the captain had died. When they came on board the mate took charge and put into Dyrefjord, where the skipper was buried. All the people at that place attended the funeral, and among those who showed special attention was Mr. Gram, a Danish merchant, his wife and daughter, while the English, French and Norwegian vessels in port displayed their colors at half mast as a mark of respect. The woyage was prosecute under the charge of the mate, and when the vessel was ready to sail for home, the remains of the captain which had been interred in a metallic coffin, was taken up and brought home.

Mr. Clark, who is an exper in this kind of work, believes that by confining, the channel of the river to a space from 300 to 400 feet wide by the construction of wharves and docks or otherwise keeping the water in its course the force of the water would be suffi-cleut, combined with a moderate amount of dredging, to cut out a channel naviga-ble for the largest vessel affoat for nearly mile above the mouth of the stream. The idea is an important one, to which little thought has been given heretofore, in view of Tacoma's matchless natural shipping facilities. Were a fresh water harbor really of such remarkable importnargor really of such remarkate impactance, one could here be obtained at a minimum expense, filled with running-water as accessible as the Sound itself, and without unnecessary towage, at no cost of maintenance, with banks affording splendid wharfage and warehouse acmodations and easily reached by the rallroads." This statement pretty well explodes the lie that Congressman Clark is opposed to river improvements.

THE HYSTERICAL SEX.

Mrs. Eliza Connor Hits the Nail on the Head.

The dreary lucubrations of the medico-legal congress, now in session in New York, were relieved Thursday last by the to preach about the duties of motherhood when the majority of women are as unfit to be mothers as the majority of cen are to be fathers. There is wealth of common sense in

Mrs. Connor's suggestions. Every doctor knows how true they are, though perhaps they encourage imaginary and bysterical aliments for the sake of bus-iness. Every lawyer knows also how true they are and how much the maud-in sympathy visitations and flowers ex-pended upon their criminal clients have done for them. The principal responsi-bility, however, lies with the doctor. He is the one who should find the remedy, for morbidness, hysteria, and overemo-tionalism are as much diseases as measles or smallpox. The remedy may be a difficult one to find, for the disease is one which those who have it thoroughly enjoy, and most likely they do not want to be cured and would stoutly resist any move in that direction. Mrs. Connor thinks the doctors should teach hystericommodations for 200 cabin and 15,900 steerage passengers. Her delivery to her owners is to be made in ten months. lady is right in theory, but the difficulty will be to put the theory into practice. Hysterics upon any given occasion, from the spectacle of a mouse up to the sight of a horrible disaster, have long been considered prerogatives of the sex, and have become so ingrained through centuries of heredity that it will noticeable that Mrs. Connor suggest ed no remedy for the over-indulgences of the masculine appetite.
