Packing Business.

How the Short-Sighted Policy of the Canners is Fast Ruining a Magnificent Business.

The San Francisco Herald of Trade says editorially in its hast issue: "The fail run of fish in the Columbia river is inferior in every respect to the salmon taken in the spring, and is in very many instances absolutely unfit to eat. This fact, however, does not prevent a considerable number of canners from putting up quantities of inferior fish, labeling them so that the general public will not know the unwholesome pack from the splendid salmon taken in the spring and send them abroad to do great damage to the honest product of the Columbia. The Astorian is liberally roasting the unprincipled and foolish practice. After speaking of the pains it has taken to disseminate information as to the superior quality of spring salmon, and the necessity of keeping up the high standard, the Astorian says: "It is therefore absolutely incompre-hensibe to us how any body of sane perons, seemingly good and shrewd business men can deliberately inaugurate a policy they have done during the past few days, the effect of which will be not only the nullfileation of any results our teachings have had, but the creation of a feeling of absolute distrust for anything bearing the label "Columbia River Balmon." Haif of them are today engaged in packing for the "fall" trade a base imitation of the Royal Chinook, which as the weeks go on will become worse in color and go on whi become worse in color and quality. Some of the packers, a very few, will place in the cans containing the trash the words "fall pack of the Columbia;" others will label them "Co-lumbia River Salmon," with no distinct-ive season of packing, and still others, we are sorry to say, with even a more blind and short signted policy, will send them out over the country as the spring pack of the Columbia, and in all prob-ability with the words "Royal Chinook" ability with the words "Royal Chinook" up in the corner.

"With the canned horse from the upper end of the Columbia river, and the tasteless, sickly, humpbacked "salmon" flooding the markets of the country from this end, the reputation of Oregon as a state of questionable canning methods is fast becoming established. Our Eastern friends can rest assured that we intend to supply them, minus all disguise, with the facts about this fall fishing, and we feel no compunction in warning, even in feel no compunction in warning, even in threatening the local cannerymen, that we do not intend to allow them to pack for export, under Columbia river or any other labels, fish unfit for human any other labes, has bone for human food, without taking care to expose their methods and to state without reserva-tion who they are."

"In its fight for honest dealings the Astorian has the support of every fair minded packer, whether he handles fish or any other product. The principle is the only one upon which enduring suc ess can be built, and such efforts to deceive the public, while they may be temporarily profitable, will in the enwork the greatest injury."

old Astorian, tells the story of the Ol-sen's trip and seizure as follows:
"We left Victoria for Japanese waters on the 22d of January and after light weather and an uneventful trip reached the neighborhood of Hakodate where we fished for some months. Our luck was very poor and the whole season only netted us 600 skins, which we set ashore Hakodate. Six of our heat pullers left. Hakodate. Six of our boat pullers left us at this port, and went away in va-ious vessels. None of the schooners we fell in with on the Japan side had much luck, and we fared better than most of them. The Olsen then made for Benring Sea, which we reached and fished in for over a month. We had 340 skins aboard when one day as we were laying to sorth of the island of St. George, with no boats out, the revenue cutter Rush ran up to us in the fog and sent a boat crew alongside. The commander informed Captain Cole that the vessel within the proscribed 60 mile limit St. George Island, nearly 7 miles and that he would have to seize her and convey her to her home port. We protested that we believed ourselves to be 30 miles outside of the limit, but the head officer outside of the limit, but the head officer of the Rush put every man on board under arrest and placed Lieut. Dunwoody in charge with instructions to bring the Olsen to Astoria and there await orders from the department. He ordered our captain to make for the Cotumbia River, and here we are. The lieutenant wired to the department tonight but has not yet received any answer. We are anchored in Scow Bay, but no restrictions are placed upon the

The seals seemed to be keeping too far off shore all the year for the majority of the vessels, and this season they forsook their old haunts considerably. A sad accident happened the day we were leaving Ounalaska. A boat puller aboard the schooner W. M. Morrid, of Seattle, had his left leg blown off by a discharge from a small brass signal cannon. He was brought into the settlement but it was not thought he could live more than a few hours."

Those who issued the call for the convention claim that it is not contemplated that physical forces shall be advised in the attainment of the independence of the Irish people as a nation, unless such means be deemed absolutely necessary, and the objects in view be probable of attainment. It is believed that the convention will serve to revive interest and infuse new life into the Irish cause both in America and Great Britain.

Considerable comment is being aroused by the fact that among fifty delegates from New York City who have arrived are Jeremiah O'Domavan Rossa and P. J. P. Tyman, celebrated in 1822 as "No. 1," shaving in charge the "removal" of government officials in Irefand.

Havana, Sept. 23.—News has been received at military headquarters here of a desperate fight at Neft, near Palma Sola, a province of Santa Cara, between 299 insurgents, led by Bermudea and Poeks, and a detachment of government cavalry under Captain Riestra. The van guard of the cavalry, consisting of a sergeant and seven privates, were first surrounded by the insurgents and in the engagements every one of the vanguard was killed. By this time Captain Riestra, with the main body of cavalry, thirty in number, came up and engaged the insurgents, whom he forced to retreat, leaving three of their number on the field dead. Their wounded they carried off with them when they retreated. It is reported that the insurgent chief, Josquin Rique, has been wounded in an engagement with government troops.
