Our yesterday's tomorrow now is gone. And still a new tomorrow does come on. We by tomorrow draw out all our store. Till the exhausted well can yield no more.

Side-combs at Dunbars. Every body gave thanks yesterday. R. R. Dunn, of Portland, is registered at the Occident.

The holiday was spent by many in the discussion of politics. Umbrellas, 50c at Dunbars. John M. Barbour, a prominent San Francisco merchant, is in town.

James C. Murray, the well known Portlander, is in Astoria on business. Auction sale of dry goods Friday afternoon at 2 p. m. at Oregon Trading Co.

Royal Society silks at Dunbars. The music at the Red Men's ball Wednesday evening, was said to be the best ever heard in the city.

Odds were being offered, by some enthusiastic politicians, but it is not known what bets were made. Foster's real kid laced gloves at Dunbars.

Mr. W. C. Graves yesterday drilled the boys' brigade, of which there are now four companies, A, B, C and D. Good work has been done and the boys have worked like Trojans. Many boys who were rapidly running to waste have joined the brigade and are living up to its requirements.

The new enlistment blanks have arrived, and Monday evening a public drill and installation will be given in the Presbyterian church by Company C under Commander Will Simpson. Nothing will be said by any one during the evening, except by the boys themselves, and Drill-Master Graves, who will explain the objects and workings of the order.

A Portland man tells the following incident which happened on a Sunday car shortly before 11 o'clock last Saturday night, and many of the men were not of the abstemious class, particularly two who sat opposite each other. After a while one took out a pencil and began to draw on the margin of a newspaper. He would make a few lines, glance at the man opposite and draw some more. He had had a few lines looking at him, and his victim was acting very fidgety and squirmed about in his seat. As the artist got up to go to the other man stopped before him, and laying his hand on his shoulder, said: "Let me see that picture."

"See before you get off this car," the really L. began to scribble, but the paper was grabbed from him and the whole car load of people read in finely proportioned letters, "The bears are on you." They were.

CHILD PREACHER. Ten Year Old Girl Who Has a Mission. The following interesting account of the latest child wonder is told by a New York reporter.

Cloretta Nora Avery is a very new young woman. She is only ten years old, yet she can preach with all the fervor and command of language of one who has labored many years for the conversion of mankind. She has been in the work of evangelization for two years. She will preach her maiden sermon on Saturday night at the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, at No. 35 Bleeker street.

There is an air of dignity and decorum about the young girl which is not to be expected in a woman three times her age. "Do you expect to continue in this work?" I asked her yesterday afternoon when I saw her at the home of Mrs. Prince Johnson, at No. 161 Sixth avenue.

"When once I have put my hand to the plow," she said, "I will not turn back. I believe that the Lord has called me to this work."

"Have you decided upon your text for tomorrow night?" I asked.

"What the Lord directs me to say," she replied, as she folded one small hand over the other, "that will I preach for the Bible and turn over the leaves until I come to the passage upon which I feel that I must preach."

This was from a child who had progressed as far as the third reader in her school when she felt called to preach to all men. She has never read any other book than the Bible. Yet in her talk and in her sermons, several of which have been printed in the South, she shows a knowledge and an insight into human nature which comes to most only after years of observation and study.

Her father was a minister who went from place to place in the South with a Gospel panorama. She used to sit on his lap. One day she said that she felt the Lord had called her to do something "more with her voice than mere singing, and she has been raising it in the cause of religion ever since. Yet when the "child is not speaking on religious subjects like the Bible and her own age."

"I wish," she said to me, "that you could see my dolls. I have 150 of them. One of them is as big as me. When I got it I thought like a child. I have six with me now."

are folded something like an envelope, are beautifully decorated, and on the interior contain photographs of different points of interest in and about Astoria. Nothing more appropriate could have been prepared for those who have traveled at a distance to remember, and such little things as these often lead others to think of more important matters.

The thirty or more, guests at Miss Pearl Holden's party last evening, were most pleasantly entertained. In the early part of the evening Miss W. Gray, occupied the time, the players changing places many times amidst laughing and merriment. Delicate refreshments, served and music and dancing filled the remaining hours.

The bids were all filed yesterday on August Erickson's new building, to be erected on the corner of 8th and Astor streets, and will be opened today in Portland. Mr. Erickson stated that regarding the contract of any other consideration, the contract will be given to the contractor. When Mr. Erickson decides whom he will give the contract to the announcement will be made by his agents, both by bulletin and in the papers. The work of construction will commence about December 1st.

The marriage of Mr. Jas. Kearney and Miss Josephine Leinenweber was solemnized in St. Mary's Catholic church yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was tastefully decorated with flowers for the occasion. A large number of friends and relatives witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. L. Dielman. The bride wore a very pretty dress of soft cream colored silk, with veil and train to match. After the ceremony congratulations were tendered to the happy couple, and they, in company with the invited guests, regaled to the home of the bride's parents, where an elegant luncheon was served.

The following resolution introduced at the last session of the Trans-Mississippi Congress at Omaha Wednesday, probably refers to the connection that will some day be made with the Oregon Central and Eastern, which will eventually have Astoria for its Pacific Coast terminus: "Resolved, That we urge the speedy construction of the proposed railroad from Butte, Mont., via Boise, Idaho, to the Pacific coast. This will shorten the route to Duluth, at the head of the Great Lakes, from the coast, by 200 miles, and from point to point proportionally giving advantages of the part-water cheap freight route to the markets of the East."

THEY GAVE THANKS

Thanksgiving Day Generally Observed in the City.

BEAUTIFUL SERVICES HELD

The Good Outweighs the Evil—The Flag of the Country Emblem of Love, Mary, ydum and Parity.

Thanksgiving day was observed generally in this city, both publicly and in the private family. One of the features of the day was the dinner given by the ladies of the Presbyterian church, which was largely attended. Everybody seemed cheerful and happy and all had appeared to have something to be grateful for. The church services were appropriate and largely attended.

THE UNION SERVICE

Held at the Baptist church by the Congregationalists, Presbyterians, Methodists and Baptists, drew out a large attendance. The music, furnished by the Baptist church choir was most beautiful and fitting the day.

The invocation was made by the Rev. Mr. Schmid, and the Rev. Mr. Liddell read the lesson. The Rev. Mr. Walter offered the prayer, after which the sermon was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Bolinger, of the Congregational church, who chose for his text, "Give thanks unto the Lord, at the head of the city. The congregation joined in singing "America," and were dismissed by the Rev. E. D. Huntley.

At the close of the sermon a collection was taken up which was given to the ladies of the W. C. T. U. for distribution among the needy of the city. The congregation joined in singing "America," and were dismissed by the Rev. E. D. Huntley.

GRACE CHURCH. Held a union service with the members of Holy Innocent's chapel, who came in to the mother church, which was most beautifully decorated for the occasion, with fruits, flowers and vegetables, while a grand array of substantial viands were in front of the altar rail, the donations of the members, which are to be sent today to the Good Samaritan Hospital—the church.

The choir rendered special anthems for the day which were expressive of the one thought in the minds of all, while the beautiful hymns and choruses of the Episcopal church were heartily responded to by the large congregation.

The Rev. Mr. Short made his address more to the members in taking the text from Deuteronomy, in the passage where the fathers are instructed to teach the sons concerning the things received of God and that they give thanks. Among other lessons drawn by the preacher was one of loyalty to the flag of our country, which he said the young men do not love too much. That flag, which represents the liberty gained for us by the settlers in New England and the heroism of the Revolutionary fathers, is a source of gratitude to the people who live under it. Its blue is an emblem of love, its red represents the blood of the patriots, and the white is the purity in which it should always be maintained.

OUR COUNTRY'S REAL ENEMIES.

They Are Those Who Refrain From the Faithful Discharge of Their Duties.

Ex-President Harrison contributes his secretary article of a series on "This Country of Ours" he is writing for the "Home Journal," in the December issue of that magazine. In discussing the country's real enemies in his paper General Harrison says: "The impulse of patriotism is not to be instructed, it is to be brought to the wheel—if it is to do the every-day work of American politics. Sentiment? Yes, never too much; but with it, and out of it, a faithful discharge of the prosy routine of a citizen's duty. A readiness to go to the field? Yes, and equally to the primary school for the child. The real enemies of our country—the dangerous ones—are not the armed men and the armored ships of the great powers. If there is too much exuberance in the thought that we can whip the world it is a safe saying that we can defend our land and coasts against any sort of war that will ever be in arms against us. We are alert as to foreign foes—the drum tap rouses the heaviest sleepers. But we are a dull people as to internal enemies upon the integrity and purity of public administration. Salvation Army methods seem to be needed in political reforms. It has seemed to me that a fuller knowledge of our civil institutions and a deeper love of them would make us more watchful for their purity; that we would think less of the levy necessary to restore stolen public funds, and more of the betrayal and shame of the thing. A food argument might be made for the wave theory as applied to patriotism, for it seems to have its ups and downs. There are eras when it rises to the combining point and others when greed and selfishness rise above it on either side."
