Mr. F. L. Parker in rising to speak said earnest speeches and all met with a splendlid reception from the audience.

Mr. F. L. Parker in rising to speak said that he didn't believe in making promises. He didn't know what he was going to do if he got into the council, for it was impossible to forecast the matters that would come up for consideration. But he felt safe in promising his friends and the voters of Astoria that, whatever matters he might be called on to consider ters be might be called on to consider, and decide about, he would hand's in a careful and henser manner, atriving to rive satisfaction to his constituents and the city of Astoria. The expenditures of the city should be carefully watched, and its interests guarded at every turn, and this he proposed to do, if the people saw fit to elect him.

Mr. H. C. Thompson said: "I believe
