HOW IT HAPPENED.

on First street.

Pive years ago, as was stated openly and frankly at the Republican mass meeting on Saturlay night, there was in this city a small clique of corrupt Republican politicians who ran the city offices and who ruled everything and everybody with on iron hand. Four years ago the great mass of the Republican party in Astoria got tired of it. They organized-organized in a legitimate and honorable manper to kill off the stigma still attaching to the name of the party. Why did they do it? It was not merely to depose from power one man or set of men on merely personal grounds. Why was the control of these men so offensive to every honest voter in the city? Just for this: These sharks had for years used the machinery of the Republican party not only for selfaggrandizement, but for the perpetuation of miscule. This statement is not a bit too broad. No one who is at all familiar with inside political history in Astoria needs to be reminded that year after year these people, as the self-constituted leaders of the Republican party controlling fir action through their command of the sources of power at the primaries and in conventions, were able, upon any occasion when they deemed it necessary, to advance all kinds of schemes, and to fill places and positions with their chosen favorites.

The voters of this town, Republicans and Democrats allice, had fully made up their minds to make an end of this mispreservation, of redemption from a reign of terror in the police department, of filth "reformation" had landed them. They saw a Democratic mayor in office, a Democratic city auditor, a Democratic city attorney, a Democratic street superintendent and a Democratic police commission. It was all chance of course, fairs had been brought about. And they the old Jacksonian stock. were not long in reaching a conclusion. The Democrats, taking advantage of the public spirited and honorable action of the large body of Republican voters, had His wandering about the country talkshelter of the reform cry, were gradually (with the assistance of their political op-

No class of people know these things to be true better than intelligent women. They also know that if they spent more time cultivating household accomplishments and less in "culture," their lives would be better spent and their peace more secure. For if a woman gain all can be had every morning at their stand and be able to take a ship's log but is unable to "keep house," she knows better beat well and bake in greased muffin than any one else that her life is a combination of farce and failure. These are old-fushioned ideas in a time of new fashions in women's ways.
