The new moon last night was propition and the ball given by the Assembly Club in Fisher's Hall proved to be the society event of the geason. Parson's orchestra, of Portland, furnished the music and the four hundred were in attendance.

The ball room was a scene of beauty, the sheen of light reflected upon the dainty and beautiful costumes of the ladies, contrasted with the regulation evening dross of the gentlemen, made a picture of pleasing lights and shadts, ever changing, like the colors in a kaledoscope, in the masses of the merry dance. There were many unique and exquisite effects noticed among the ladies' costumes; the music was excellent throughout the denoing was recoil and each and in length, is for the last one hundred out; the dancing was good, and each and all enjoyed to the full the pleasures of the evening.
