Looking to the past record of the commission and its persistent stand in defense of the public welfare and public morality the people of Astoria need have no fear that it will sarring from its duties in the future or fall to act up to its customary course. Some months ago Mr. K. Z. Ferguson of this city, errected on Bond street, a well built residence. Duiring the course of the construction it was rumored that the place was being built for and would be occupied by notorieus women coming from a lawer part of the city. MORE JOURNALISM.

The Roseburg Plaindealer, commenting on the special New Year's edition of the Roseburg Review, says editorially: "The 'greatest' came out yesterday with its holiday lasue as heraided for the last two months. Its cuts of some of Roseburg's prominent citizens reminds one of those in a detective's office evident, notwithstanding all the Review's blowing about its enterprise, tha title cuts were executed in a cheapjohn establishment. As quite a number of cuts are all that they learn of the neighbors' doof Republican candidates for office, it is mestic arrangements through playing thought by some to be a put up job of the Review to make them appear as repulsive as possible as an electioneering scheme." This is small business. The New Year's issue of the Roseburg Review, which was received by the Astorian a few days ago, is not only a credit to the office from which it came, but a lasting credit to the town of Roseburg, and an advertisement of its position and advantages that was both valuable and timely. For a newspaper with the small facilities at the disposal of Roseburg, to present to the outside world such an excellent and the outside world such an excellent and creditable issue as has been published THE COUNTY COURT by the Review, is most commendable. by the Review, is most commendable. For a paper in the same town to attempt to deery the efforts and success of an opposition enterprise which has done Lewis and Clarke Bridge Contract more than its share to build up Roseburg, is contemptible.
