THE WAR SPIRIT

Its Cause is Explained by a Prominent Collegian.

HISTORY TAUGHT CHILDREN

Prof. Adler Says Has Bred a Feeling in Americans Against English Aggression Which Supports Monroe Doctrine.

Special to the Astorian. New York, Jan. 12.—Professor Felix Adler spoke on "The War Spirit in the United States and the Monroe Doctrine," in Carnegie Music Hall.

"A way of war feeling, unexpected and unlearned, has swept over the United States during the last three weeks. It has temporarily subsided, but may well again assume mighty proportions."

"The Monroe doctrine has excited great discussion in the United States. It has become a momentous question, the greatest in our modern history, in the morning of this century. It has peace and serenity; in the evening the whole country was aflame with the idea of a possible war. In my mind the matter is not yet determined."

"The Chamber of Commerce declared that the Monroe doctrine had the unanimous and enthusiastic support of the American people. They were some in that body who did not believe that the Monroe doctrine was applicable to the present dispute over the Venezuelan boundary."

"In the doctrine there are two declarations. The principle is opposed to monarchies on this continent, and opposes the extension of monarchy powers already having a foothold in this hemisphere."

"The Monroe doctrine declares that civilization on the American continent shall be founded on liberty and peace, and we do not want the Old World powers to secure judgment on this continent to threaten the people."

"The Monroe doctrine is not a war doctrine. It is not a policy of aggression against England. It is a policy of peaceful relations with the Old World."

"The Monroe doctrine is not a war doctrine. It is not a policy of aggression against England. It is a policy of peaceful relations with the Old World."

ON THE INSIDE

St. Mary's Hospital by Daylight—Its Medical Staff.

Following up the report made of work done in St. Mary's hospital during the year past, an Astorian representative yesterday visited the institution and through the kindness of the sisters was shown through the department. Its cleanly halls, public and private wards, operating rooms, pharmacy, dining rooms and kitchen were all "spick and span," and a sweet and clean air pervaded the whole.

"Another cause of the war fever was the readiness of the democracy. We are aware of vast physical resources and are desirous of being among the first nations of the world."

Did Not Mean to Threaten War Against England.

MESSAGE ONE OF SYMPATHY

Interest in Great Naval Preparations, However, Continues to Absorb the Public Mind in Germany.

(Copyrighted, 1896, by Associated Press.) London, Jan. 12.—It seems pretty well established in the public mind that Emperor William did not mean to threaten war upon England by his message of sympathy to President Kruger, of the Transvaal, and the report that he sent circulate a few days ago of the European alliance back of Germany and against England find little credence. It seems to be accepted that the German emperor simply intimated to express his opinion of the Jamestown raid in that message and the temporary sentiment of irritation which it caused him.
