Shade of Bunsby! Where are we?

Are our statesman so far carried away on the tide of their own eloquence that they can no longer recognize the meaning of words? Has the ambition of the stump speaker to dazzle an ignorant audience by uttering elaborate sentences without the least regard to sense overcome them? Here is the committee on foreign relations of the United States senate reporting a resolution to that body concerning a matter of grave importance to this country and to the rest of the world which might have been drafted by a debating club in a boys' high school.

The time to the tide of their own eloquence that they can no longer recognize the meaning of words? Has the ambition of the same, I find 'em handy to have their fallings, of course, like all of us, but on the whole I approve of 'em.'

Once a man says to me, "Bobby, do you love your parents." "Well," says I, will never fail to recommend it to others, on every occasion that presents itself." Chas, Regors.

"I'm not a-quarreling with 'em." Once a boy at boarding school went to calling his Pa the Governor, and got his allow ance cut down one-half. His Pa said he ought to have waited till he was going to college. Much more might be written about parents, showing their habits and so forth, but I will leave the task to abler pens.

The late Paul Verlaine, the French fallowing many academitable with the was going to college. Much more might be written about parents, showing their habits and so forth, but I will leave the task to abler pens.

It not only is so, it must be so, One a debating club in a boys' high school. This resolution solemnly declares that the United States will regard any European is the result of a healthy physical conaggression which it shall deem "to be dition. dangerous to its peace and safety. . .

This oracular sentence is regarded by miserable. these statesmen as embodying a message which it is important the nations of Eq. rope should learn concerning the policy of the United States. We are seriously and officially to tell them that we cannot which the state of the special crans which result in "signs of inflammation," regard with indifference anything that we may deem dangerous to our peace and membranes, and in discharges from the lining may deem dangerous to our peace and membranes, and in distressing irregularisafety. This is doubtless true, and good ties—this medicine effects perfect and for foreigners to understand and cannot be objected to by them, but, if needed at all, it does not go far enough. It should be accompanied by an avowal that if anybody offends us we shall not be pleased, that if anybody wounds us we shall be hurt, that if anybody kills us we shall die; for the senators must be convinced that such results do not follow from such causes in Europe, and, unless we make official announcement of the 'em mixed!'

cal collocation of words to obscurity. there is no need for it on any other theory than that the laws of thought are different in the two halves of the world. It is one thing for the United States government to defend its rights when they are assailed, to express its disapproval of any specific action of a foreign nation which it may believe inimical to its interests. Every nation so protects itself. If France objects to the policy pursued by England in Egypt it makes a diplomatic representation of the fact. If the United States sees fit to inquire into relations between Great Britain and an American republic which threaten to be prejudicial to its welfare, that is a proper exercise of its functions as one of the family of nations. But the passage of tion is an entirely different thing, which does not conform to the dignity of the United States. The ridiculously worded utterance now before the senate has no excuse for existence. It is needless for application to Venezuela. In that specific case the president has already taken such action as he deemed was required by the occasion. The world understands the attitude of our government on the question, and there is no other issue calling for our intervention. A general manifesto to the effect that we Jno F.
