The British bark Bedfordshire is still lying at Sand Island anchorage. On her irip down she ran out of the channel and into a sand bar, but was easily towed off. She will probably go out to sea today.

There was some little difficulty with the seamen on board the Bedfordshire yesterday and in consequence, it was re-perted, the captain laid off the entire crew. He expects to go to sea today and will ship at least eight new men from this city.

Twenty-six years is a good age for a schooner. The Julia Ann, of Winter Harbor, Me., has been in active service for that period, and is said by her captain to be even now as good as she ever was. The insurance companies back up the captain's statement, too. In her long life the schooner has walled over a good part of the world's sait water, and is well known in every harbor on the Maine coast.

The coasting bark Vidette, lumber lader for Redondo, is still in the stream Whether or not she will go to sea today depends upon the tugs taking the Bed-fordshire and Glide out. According to her captain the Vidette is a right smart ittle vessel. When off the mouth of the iver on the last trip down, she sailed 'all around" a large English ship. The bark has 540,000 feet of Portland lumber aboard, and the charter price is $5 per

The steamer Ardandearg arrived yes-terday from Japan in balast under char-ter to Balfour, Guthrie & Co. She will take on a cargo of lumber at the St. Paul and Tacoma mill, and then move over to the flouring mills wharf, where a quan-tity of flour and wheat will be loaded. A large consignment of canned goods will form part of her cargo. She is bound for South Africa. She left Yokohama January 10, being twenty-six days out on her arrival here. Her detention was due to heavy winds encountered off the coast.

YOURS IN COMMITTEE The Chronicle says: The American ship Glory of the Seas came into port yesterday with a bad list to starboard, fifty feet of her starboard bulwark gone and one of her crew missing—the result and one of her crew missing—the recult of a stormy passage of fourteen days from Departure bay. She was caught in the southeaster which began its raging a week ago last Saturday and swept the coast for three days. Stanch build and seamanship saved her from worse disaster than fell to her lot. The Glory of the Seas caught the gale on Saturday in the neighborhood of latitude 45 degrees much, longitude 125 degrees 20 minutes weest. Capitain Freeman had made ready west. Captain Preeman had made ready for the gale, but his ship was tossed about in a most alarming manner. At I o'clock that night four men were sen-out on the libboom to secure the lib, and

Dixon, one of their number, was carrie Dixon, one of their number, was carried from his position by a huge sea that buried the boom. It was very dark and the rain was falling in torrents, and Dixon was never seen after he released his hold. It was impossible to go to his rescue. The ship got her roughest hamiling during the early hours of Sunday morning. Sea after sea broke over her, breaking in the starboard bulwarks, and carrying away doors and other articles that offered slight resistance. The cargo began shifting and the ship took
