And that's all I could get out of a man who might be supposed to have constructed them constructed is now invested in them, and that the mileage is very extensive. In North Carolina nearly 50 miles of such lines have been built. The longest private road is in Southeastern Texas. It is a train road seventy-five miles in extent. In Kentucky, North Carolina, Texas and Georgia the investment of capital in these roads has exceeded $1,60,000 in each case. The figures given by the Manufacturers' Record show that the greater number have been profitable, one line in North Carolina carning ten per cent in annual dividends, while another company has built diffeen miles of extension from the profits of twenty-five in operation.
