Over fifty tons of the cargo was jettisoned, but the leak could not be reached. Captain Weeden then decided to run for the island of Tengreva, which to run for the leand of Tongreva, which place he reached on March 25. For a few dollars he hired a couple of pearl divers, and in less than an hour these men had located the leak and patched men went down stark naked, and work work under water a couple of minutes at a time. THE TRUE GENTLEMAN.

As He Was Understood by Cardinal

Exchange.
This is Cardinal Newman's definition of a gentleman. The remarkable pas-sage occurs in his "IX. Discourses Ad-dressed to the Catolics in Dublin."

It is almost a definition of a gentleman to say that he is one who never inflicts pain. This description is both reduct and, as far as it goes, accurate. He is concurs in their movements rather an takes the martive himself. His melts may be considered as parallet to what are called comforts or con-veniences in arrangements of a personal nature-like an easy chair or a good fire, which do their part in dispelling cold and fatigue, though nature provides both means of rest and animal heat without them. The true gentleman, in like manner, carefully avoids whatever may cause a jar or a jolt in the minds of those with whom he is cast-all clashing of opinion, or collision of feeling, all restraint, or suspicion, or gloom, or his great concern being to He has his eyes on all his com-he is tender toward the bashful, pany; he is tender toward the bashful, gentle toward the distant, and meriful toward the absent. He can recollect to whom he is speaking; he guards against unseasonable allusions, or topics which may irritate; he is seldom prominent in conversation, and never wearisome. He makes light of favors when he does them, and seems to be reconvent when he is makes light of favors when he does them, and seems to be receiving when he is conferring. He never speaks of himself except when compelled, never defends himself by a mere retort; he has no ears for slander or gossip, is serupulous in imputing motives to those who inter-fere with him, and interprets everything for the best. He is never mean or little in his disputes, never takes unfair ad-vantage, never mistakes personalities or vantage, never mistakes personanties of sharp sayings for argument, or insinu-ates evil which he dare not say out. From a long-sighted prudence he ob-serves the maxim of the ancient sage, that we should ever conduct ourselves to our enemy as if he were one day to be our friend. He has too much good sense to be afronted at insults; he is well employed to remember injuries and too indolent to bear malice. He is and too indomit to patient, forbearing and resigned on philosophical principles; he submits to pain because it is inevitable, to bereavement because it is inevitable, to bereavement because it is irreparable, and to death because it is his destiny: If he engages in controversy of any kind, his disciplined intellect preserves him from the blunder-ing discourtesy of better, perhaps, but less educated minds, who, like blunt weapons, tear and hack instead of cut-you.

He knows the weakness of human reason as well as its strength, its province and its limits. If he be an unbeliever, he will be too profound and large-minded to ridiule religion or to act against it; he is too wise to be a degmattet or fanate in his infidelity. He respects plety and de-votion; he even supports institutions as venerable, beautiful or useful, to which he does not assent, he hences the min-leters of religion, and it contents him to decline its mysteries without assailing or denouncing them. He is a friend of religious teleration, and that not only be-cause his philosophy has taught him to look on all forms of faith with an impartial eye, but also from the gentleness and efferminancy of feeling, which is the attendant on civilization. Not that he may not hold a religion, too, in his own way, even when he is not a Christian. In that case his religion is one of imagination and sentiment; it is the embodiment of those ideas of the sublime, ma-jestic and beautiful, without which there can be no large philosophy. Hometimes he acknowledges the being of God, asym-times he invests an unknown principle or qualities with the attributes of perfection. And his deduction of his reason or creation of his fancy he makes the occasion of such excellent thoughts, and the starting point of so varied and systematic a teaching, that he even seems like a disciple of Christianity itself. From the very accuracy and steadiness of his logical powers he is able to see what sentiments are consistent in those who hold any religious dectrine at all, and he appears to others to feel and to hold a whole circle of theological truths, which exists in his mind not otherwise than as a number of deductions

THE OSTRICH Gets Raitled, but Even Then Is Hard to

Ostriches are caught by hunters horseback occasionally, but it is not be-cause they lack the speed to send away to safety. The ostrich is a very stupid bird, but he does not know it. When pursued by the horseman he becomes excited to that degree termed "rattled." Having no idea of strategy, he thinks he has, and he commences running over the velvet in a signag course, deviating from the straight course a matter of a mile at each turn.

ince thereby saving the animal, and at the same time getting the benefit of the deviation of the ostrich. Even then the chase is a long one, lasting for hours, and on some occasions all day. If the ostrich ran in a straight line the horse-man would not be in the chase for a minute. The bird at last, however, loses heart, and then does the most ridiculous thing that any living creature is guilty of. He buries his head in the sand. The bushmen say that the bird does not fear danger that it does not see. Others thinks that its act is a simple surrender to fate. Men, stood up to be shot by a file of soldlers, close their eyes, or ask to be blindfolded. Astorians and Clarson County Citizens Will fush forward to the Goal - Step by Step" and "Stone by Stone" Will Be Built Greater Astoria.

The final transactions connected with the transfer of the Boow Bay depot site to the railroad company were completed yesterday. The railroad company now has nothing to do but to proceed with the work of construction, and assurance is given that this will be done at once. There is not a resident of the city or cours who is not well pleased that this question is settled. The railroad company on its part is more than glad that the matter of terminal factilities in the city has been disposed of and that work can be pushed forward intelligently. Contractors W. W. The architects are proceeding with along the whole line. Now that a good start has been made upon railroad construction for this sea-running him closely. The race for school superintendent was the closest of all, a Mr. Smith having tied Miss Warren on the first ballot, On the last ballot the vote was 44 to 43 Punched heads and generally disfigured ountenances, such as they have in Portland, were not in evidence, and the convention passed off harmoniously. Republicans generally express satisfaction with the ticket, although there are some doubts as to the election of a few can-Messers. McGregor and Parker are both taunch gold standard men.

Considerable dissatisfaction was expressed fast night over the nomination of Howell Lewis for the office of county commissioner. The dissatisfaction genpowerful legs legs that can give a most commissioner. The dissatisfaction gen-victous and deadly kick, compared to erally was voiced by delegates from the Nehalem, who claim that Mr. Lewis leve tap—and with his wings rotating, is a pronounced Populist, having foris a pronounced Populist, having forsaken the Republican party two years ago for the Populist, which, it is as serted, he thought would be victorious There were several other candidates for the office, but Mr. Lewis received a great deal larger vote than all the other aspirants. Mr. Lewis' Populistic tendencies will probably leave the office of county commissioner the weak spot on the Republican ticket.

> By its declaration against silver the Republican party of Clatsop county greatly assists the honest money men in the state in the fight against the silver craze. The state is almost equally divided on the money question, and this county's action will be the source of much satisfaction to those of sound money views.

Chairman Barker and Secretary Ridehalgh were highly complimented yesterday evening for the manner in which they presided over the convention. Mr. Ridehalgh was especially congratulated and the delegates said he was the first secretary they had ever had whose voice could be heard all over the hall.

CLIFF-DWELLERS

Remarkable Discovery Made by

Prescott Ariz., Cor Globe-Democrat Prescott Aria, Cor Globe-Democrat.

The munimy of one of the shelent diffedwellers of Arizons, the first of undoubted authenticity ever discovered, has been found by a hunter well known in Northern Arizons, John McCarty. In a diff dwelling on the Verde river, a dozen miles from the mouth of the East Verde, he noticed that when one of the walls was hit with metal a hellow sound end. was hit with metal a hollow sound ema-nated. This led to the discovery of a sort of crypt. In this crypt the mammy was discovered. It had evidently been propped up in a sitting position against the wall, though there were no indica-tions that the cilif-dweiter of long ago had been walled up alive, and there left had been walled up alive, and there left to die of starvation or suffection. By the side of the mummy were found several broken pottery bowls and a stone ax, and in the very vault were picked up a dozen obsidian and flist arrowheads, several of them exceptionally large-sized and of rare workmanable.

The mummy, which weighs 21 pounds, was taken away by the finder on an Indian litter dragged behind a burro, this a wagon road was reached. It is now in this city. The body is that of a male, and is of unusually large stature. The skin, which is broken in soveral places, revealing the bones, is of the color of dried beef. The trunk is perfect, the dried beef. The trunk is perfect, the skin covering it being unbroken. In the skull, however, lies the element of great-cat interest. The formation is entirely different from that typical of the annost Caucasian cranial features. skull of the mummy, with forehead re-treating from the nose and large rear development, is of the Astec type. The tenth are entire and well preserved, and protrude as in the canine tribe. As t mummy showed signs of disintegration McCarty has given it a cost of varnish, preparatory to placing it in an air-tight
